Japan Masses Troops Near Peiping for Major Drive

Crisis 'Imminent,' Say Chinese as Fighting Rages at Nankou.

Fear of Shanghai Conflict Allayed

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Shanghai (Wednesday), Aug. 11.—Japan today massed a formidable army outside Peiping to start her long-expected major drive into Chahar and Suiyuan Provinces along the Peiping-Suiyuan Railway.

The Chinese Central News Agency said the beginning of large-scale hostilities was "imminent."

Chinese air scouts reported to the central government's field military headquarters at Paotingfu that fighting was taking place in front of the pass, through which the railway passes from the North China plain into the mountainous region along the Great Wall.

Japanese Plane Shot Down.

The News Agency asserted the Chinese had shot down a Japanese plane near Paoting, where Japanese planes again strafed the Chinese concentrations along the Peiping-Hankow Railway. The pilot was killed, but an observer with him escaped.

The Fifth Division of the Kwantung Army—as the Japanese forces in Manchukuo and north China are called—was due to arrive in the Peiping area this week to join the Chahar drive.

Meanwhile, a tense situation still prevailed in Shanghai, where a Japanese naval officer and a seaman were shot and killed Monday evening by Chinese soldiers of the peace preservation corps.

One Chinese soldier also was killed in the interchange of gunfire.

While Japanese and Chinese authorities on the spot were investigating this incident, the highest officers of the Japanese naval staff met in Tokyo and decided China must be "punished" if her armed forces persist in displaying a "provocative attitude."

For the present, it was decided, Japanese naval forces at Shanghai "will preserve a strictly prudent attitude but will protect all Japanese residents in the Shanghai area."

Chinese believed the Japanese would be reluctant to start trouble here until they have complete the large-scale campaigns in north China.

Europeans were alarmed, however, and the Portuguese consulate-general instructed hundreds of Portuguese residents of the Hongkew district of the international settlement to leave their homes.

Japanese Wiped Out, Claim.

Tientsin, Aug. 10 (AP).—Action in the undeclared war in North China shifted today to the entrance to the mountains northwest of Peiping.

Unconfirmed Chinese reports said a Japanese army detachment had been wiped out in a clash in the vicinity of Nankou Pass, 30 miles northwest of Peiping. Japanese officials here, however, asserted action was limited to slight skirmishing.

The version in Japanese headquarters was that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Nanking government premier, had ordered the Chinese holding the Great Wall pass at Nankou to attack Japanese forces in the area.

New War Steps Taken.

Tokyo, Aug. 10 (AP).—Japan launched new measures today to strengthen her hand in the Sino-Japanese conflict in North China.

The cabinet decided all emergency taxes for raising war funds shall apply to the colonies as well as Japan, including Korea, Formosa and South Sea territory.

Plane Carrying 9 Driven to Earth by Flock of Seagulls

Seattle, Aug. 10 (AP).—Coast Guard headquarters said tonight the pilot of a seaplane with nine aboard, long overdue in Alaska on a flight from here, telephoned the plane was safe at Port Ludlow, about 30 miles from Seattle on Puget Sound.

Tony Schramm, the pilot, said, the Coast Guard reported, that his plane ran into a flock of about 3,000 seagulls as he was flying low over Puget Sound an hour after leaving Seattle for Alaska at 3 p. m. yesterday.

The pilot told the Coast Guard the party stopped at Port Ludlow, a small community, overnight to see if repairs were needed, and planned to take off again tomorrow morning.

Officials had feared the big ship had been forced down at sea by severe storms en route to Ketchikan. It had just been purchased and was being shipped for service as a hospital ship for an Alaska air line.

Besides Schramm, former Hollywood Calif.) aviator, the following were aboard:

Mrs. Schramm, Thelma Westley, of Tacoma, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson, of Petersburg, Alaska; their children, Carl, jr., and Marian, and two pilot's assistants.

British to Expel More Germans, Paper Indicates

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 10.—The Daily Herald said tonight three expelled German newspapermen headed a Nazi organization here and worked under control of the German foreign office, and added that the home secretary is considering expulsion of other Germans.

Scotland Yard investigations, the newspaper said, may result in the possible additional expulsions.

The three whose working permits already have been suspended, the Herald asserted, had established their Nazi group with headquarters in the Bayswater district of London.

They are Werner Crome, correspondent for the Berliner Lokal-anzeiger; Franz Otto Wrede and Wold Dietrich Langen, employed by a German news agency specializing in news of Germans abroad. The latter two already have left London.

Nazis Warn of News Purge.

Berlin, Aug. 10 (AP).—Nazi newspapers, apparently officially inspired, warned foreign newspapermen today all those who persisted in writing critically about the Third Reich might be expelled.

The threat, taken up by other papers from the highly-connected Boersen Zeitung, followed upon government action in giving the Times of London two weeks to replace the veteran correspondent Norman Ebbutt in Berlin.

That was in return for the action of the British home office in expelling three Nazi correspondents from England.

(The Times refused flatly to accede to the German demands, and said it would prefer to leave the Berlin post open, if Ebbutt must go. There still was no explanation for the London expulsions, although some sections of the press hinted at espionage suspicions.)

Other foreign writers in Berlin were under "investigation," following the Boersen Zeitung's threat.

D. C. Baby Killed When It Crawls Beneath Truck

Clara Lee Davis, 20-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lee Davis, 13 Quincy place northeast, was crushed to death yesterday under the wheel of a truck that had come to deliver bread to her grandmother, Mrs. H. A. Briggs, with whom she was visiting at Fairland, Md.

The child crawled under the truck while it was stopped in the driveway. Luther Lochstamphfor, of Odenton, Md., driver of the truck, said he had started out of the driveway when he felt the impact of a rear wheel on the child's body. He stopped, picked up the unconscious baby and took it to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Olney, Md., in his truck. It died there an hour later. Lochstamphfor was not held by police, who considered the accident unavoidable.

'The Last Round Up' Booms Out As 60 Senators Honor Barkley

Two Pigeons Flutter Like Doves as Democrats Dine in Dubious Harmony; Lewis Slap Believed Meant for La Follette.

By Sidney Olson.

While an organist unfortunately played the melancholy strains of "The Last Round-Up," 60 mellow men—all Democrats and all Senators and all acting temporarily like brothers—assembled last night in a hotel night club to sing, cheer and bellow of political harmony.

Above them roosting on the modernistic beams of the ceiling, perched two live pigeons which had been dubbed "doves of peace" for the purposes of the meeting. The "doves," after fluttering casually about the room, settled on the pink-lit beams above the speakers' table, causing many a speaker to gaze uneasily upward during his remarks.

Two significant speeches were made during the lengthy flow of tributes to Floor Leader Albert W. Barkley, of Kentucky; Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, and Vice President John N. Garner.

Slap at La Follette.

One came when Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, party whip, said flatly and impressively:

"The Senate must beware of those persons who do not have the courage to be good Republicans nor the common sense to be good Democrats.

"We must be on our guard against those who profess to lead us and who have not been indoctrinated with sound Democratic and constitutional principles."

The reference was immediately construed as a direct slap at the Wisconsin Progressive, Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., much in the Presidential favor and confidence in recent weeks.

Lewis' speech was accorded some of the heartiest applause of the evening, as the much-torn ranks of Appeal Planned For Dr. Greenhut As 'Vindication'

Baltimore, Aug. 10 (AP).—Attorneys for the family of Dr. Armen Greenhut, now-dead convicted attacker of a 13-year-old school girl patient, studied today the question of whether it is possible to take an appeal for a dead man.

Dr. Greenhut was convicted last Friday in Bel Air, Md. Saturday morning he was found dead in his cell there.

Sentence had not been passed at that time, defense counsel having elected to file a motion for new trial. That motion, however, has not yet been filed. Yesterday Edgar Greenhut, brother of the physician, said "it is our present intention to proceed with the appeal to vindicate his good name."

Woman's Scream Frightens Away Four Boy Bandits

A youthful would-be boy bandit was frustrated at the Zoo yesterday when a woman screamed as he poked a gun at her and he and his gang fled into bushes.

Bertha Blachos, of 1007 Twelfth street northwest, the intended victim, said she was walking near the animal cages when a group of "very small colored children" approached her furtively and the largest of the four punched a gun into her ribs and said it was a holdup.

Mrs. Blanchos said she screamed, threw up her hands and dropped her pocketbook all in the same second. The youthful desperadoes did not stop to pick up the purse, but scurried off toward the hills.

Former Nats' Announcer Files Suit for Divorce

Kissimmee, Fla., Aug. 10.—E. Lawrence Phillips, of Washington and Orlando, Fla., filed suit here today to divorce his wife, Almina Dablin Phillips, of Washington.

Phillips was known to Washington baseball fans as the announcer at ball games before the present announcing system was installed.

Child's Death Spurs Survey Of Narrow-Street Parking

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Parking on at least one side of every narrow, traffic-congested street in Washington may be prohibited as a result of mass demands from citizens in the 2900 block of Twenty-eighth street northwest, it was predicted last night.

With the name of another child added to the city's growing casualty list, Acting Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge, moved yesterday to curb additional "parked car" deaths by ordering a city-wide survey of all hazardous thoroughfares less than 35 feet in width.

"Deeply aroused" by the recent accident death of 4-year-old Richard Levy, 2929 Twenty-eighth street—killed when he ran from between two parked autos—residents of the block again petitioned traffic authorities for a parking ban yesterday.

If their request is refused, the petitioners warned, "full responsibility and accountability for consequent traffic accidents" will be placed squarely upon the shoulders of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

The petition, signed by 29 residents of Twenty-eighth street, was received by Eldridge in the vacation absence of Van Duzer. He immediately summoned members of his staff and ordered a survey of Twenty-eighth street conditions, together with similar studies of every other narrow street in the District.

More than a year ago, authorities were asked to eliminate parking on one side of Twenty-eighth street. The request was refused, officials

Latin Nations Assail Brazil Ship Leases

By William V. Nessly.

The proposal of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull to lease six decomissioned destroyers to the Brazilian navy encountered international protests yesterday, while the question of whether the plan is contrary to the 1936 London Naval Treaty brought from Secretary Hull insistence that neither the letter nor the spirit of the treaty would be violated.

Developments included:

1. The Argentine press protested strongly against the proposal, voicing the fear that the balance of naval power in South America would be upset.

2. Concern of Brazilian officials over growing Japanese and German settlements in southern Brazil was reported, while Brazil's plan to strengthen her navy was attributed to hunger for land and raw materials on the part of other "overpopulated, super-industrialized" nations.

3. Berlin newspapers caustically commented that the arrangement would make the Latin American countries closer to the United States "than the dominions are to England."

4. President Roosevelt said it should be emphasized that the ships to be leased are out of date and are to be used only for training purposes.

5. The Ambassadors from Italy, Argentina and Chile called at the Brazil foreign office to inquire into significance of the destroyer negotiations.

A "Neighborly" Gesture.

These reactions in other lands, reported by the Associated Press, centered attention on Secretary Hull's request to Congress on Saturday that American destroyers no longer being used be made available in furtherance of the "Good Neighbor" policy, for leasing by South American countris on a basis of strict equality of treatment.

At his press conference yesterday Secretary Hull's attention was called to a section of the 1936 naval pact which reads:

"No high contracting party shall, by gift, sale or any mode of transfer, dispose of any of his surface vessels of war, or submarines in such a manner that such vessel may become a surface vessel of war or a submarine in any foreign navy."

The Secretary said that in addition to the equality of treatment provided in the proposed leasing plan, there will be included a drastic recapture clause which may be exercised by the United States at any time.

Cites the Safeguards.

In addition, he said, the policy would prohibit utilization of the ships in any military controversy with another power with which the United States is on friendly terms, or utilization in any way that would violate this country's international obligations.

The United States would expressly prohibit the vessels becoming a part of the Brazilian navy for any military operation, he insisted.

Regret was expressed at what was called the misunderstanding on the part of Argentine papers.

From Rio de Janeiro, the Associated Press reported that Brazil, in her plan to protect her 4,880 miles of coastline, already has bought three submarines from Italy. Whether that sale might not clash with the clause in the London treaty became a question.

The storm of Argentine press protests brought the assertion by La Nacion, of Buenor Aires, that Brazil's expressed fears were the concern of the whole continent, and held the Inter-American consultative pact signed at Buenos Aires last December should be called into immediate operation, bringing a conference of all the American nations on the supposed danger.

La Prensa declared the manner in which the lease proposal was advanced "gives it the importance of an international political act" and said the reasons advanced by Secretary Hull did not "soften the surprise occasioned by the bad step."

Congress Plan to Quit By Aug. 21 Entangled In Crop, Reform Snarl

Roosevelt Is Given Merger Authority

Proposed Act Sets Up New Department of Welfare.

By Robert C. Albright.

In an unexpected coup aimed at winning Government reorganization powers for the President this session, a special House committee yesterday approved a modified bureau merger bill, and reported it to the House for action this week.

Representing only one phase of the vast Government reorganization plan laid before Congress by the President, the bill nevertheless embodies the pivotal section giving Mr. Roosevelt power to abolish, shift and reorganize Washington's complex tangle of Government agencies.

As approved by the House Reorganization Committee, the President's powers were severely curtailed. Twelve independent commissions and agencies were exempted, and the President could abolish no executive department. But a new department of welfare would be set up, with a secretary in the cabinet.

Orders Held Up 60 Days.

The President would be limited to two years to do the job. None of the President's reorganization orders would take effect until 60 legislative days had elapsed. Congress could stop any reorganization order by passage of a bill repudiating it. But the President could veto the repudiation, and it would take a two-thirds vote of both houses to repass it.

The surprise maneuve, was executed by Chairman John J. Cochran, of the House Reorganization Committee, in conjunction with Representative Lindsay C. Warren, of North Carolina, chairman of a special reorganization sub-committee. Committee approval was strictly along party lines.

White House interest in the move was immediately evidenced. Representative Cochran and Warren were called to the White House for a conference at 10:30 this morning. With them will go Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Reorganization Committee, which is holding hearings on an omnibus and more drastic reorganization plan. All three denied knowledge of the White House conference last night.

Plan Split in Four Parts.

Warren predicted passage of the House bill this week, possibly Friday or Saturday.

Weeks ago the House committee divided the President's original reorganization plan into four parts, with subcommittees on each. The first, providing only for six special assistants to the President, already has passed the House, and is before the Senate committee.

Originally, it was contemplated the reorganization phase would go over until next session, and that only one additional feature of the original plan would be approved by the House before adjournment. That feature, providing for reorganization of the Comptroller Gen-

House Beats Bill to Legalize Liquor Sale Across D. C. Bars

By Edward T. Folliard

The House yesterday voted down a proposal to permit Washington bartenders to serve hard liquor to drinkers across the lunch counter. As a consequence, whisky drinkers will continue to order from a table. Only beer and wine drinkers are allowed to stand up.

The vote, 190 to 119, was pretty much an old-fashioned wet and dry alignment, with certain important exceptions.

Representative John J. Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, a dripping wet in the prohibition days, voted against the proposal because, as he explained later, he did not want to see women and young girls standing up to the bar. Cochran is very much concerned about the way American girls are going after liquor, and he fears they may bring back prohibition.

In wedging itself between the bartender and the whisky drinker, the House sided with the District Alcohol Beverage Control Board, which had disapproved the lunch counter proposal on the ground that it would give restaurants the atmosphere of the old-time saloon.

The whisky-over-the-counter proposal was one of three amendments to the local liquor act which the House was asked to approve in an omnibus bill. It was backed by organized labor for economic reasons.

The first vote taken yesterday was 61 to 31 in favor of Collins' motion. This was an "aye and nay" vote. Chairman Palisano then made a point of no quorum and demanded a roll call vote so as to get the members on record. This resulted in the 190-119 victory for Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), Mississippi, who opposed the plan.

Since there was only one provision left in the bill—an amendment designed to stop wholesalers from shipping liquor to individuals here without paying the local tax—Chairman Palmisano immediately asked the House to vote on the truncated measure.

This was done, and the bill now goes to the Senate. An attempt may be made there to restore the two amendments knocked out by Collins.

Ship Aid Halted Until a Survey Untangles Data

Plans for 95 Craft Held Up Pending 2-Month Investigation.

The Maritime Commission, charged by Congress with rehabilitating America's merchant marine, has run into such a maze of contradictory views and unproven data that it has halted its program until a thoroughgoing and expert survey of the shipping industry can be made.

The difficulty of attracting private capital into the proposed expansion of the American industry, augmented by the unsettled labor situation, is providing the chief problems, Chairman Joseph P Kennedy said yesterday in announcing the survey to be made before the commission undertakes to formulate a long range program. The survey will require about two months.

Tentative plans for construction of 95 new ships have been set aside and the contracts will not be let, Kennedy said, until the commission can appraise the cost in the light of facts developed by the survey.

Warning that outright Government ownership is the only alternative to providing a stable, predictable policy, with a chance for profits that will attract the needed capital, Kennedy declared in a statement that shipping has been made "an orphan of the investment world."

At the same time, he issued a warning to the warring American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization that the Government "cannot permit factionalism to jeopardize our position in international shipping."

The survey is intended to enable the commission to measure the ship needs of the country, "to set forth as clearly as possible all the

'Action Later' Talk Leaves Him Cold

Roosevelt Loath to Accept Promises for Future.

By Franklyn Waltman.

Carefully laid plans for adjournment of Congress by August 21 yesterday appeared to be knocked into confusion and uncertainty by a series of rapidly developing events.

These events were:

President Roosevelt strongly intimated he would not permit any loans to be made on cotton or other farm products until legislation for control of crop surpluses was enacted by Congress.

The House reorganization committee unexpectedly reported a controversial bill clothing the President with authority to transfer, consolidate and abolish Federal agencies and bureaus—with 12 regulatory commissions excepted—subject to the disapproval of Congress within 60 days.

Difficulties over the Administration wages and hours bill continued in the House, with the Democratic Steering Committee—a majority of which is reported opposed—failing to vote on the subject in a specially called meeting.

The Wagner housing bill struck a temporary snag in the House Banking and Currency Committee with members of the committee apparently bent on further modification of the measure.

Senator Frederick Van Nuys, of Indiana, announced that he and Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, both Democrats, would attempt today or tomorrow to get their antilynching bill before the Senate, where they claim support of a majority of the votes if a filibuster can be avoided.

Speed in the Senate.

On the other hand, the Senate in almost the twinkling of an eye approved the conference report on the revised judiciary reform bill. As soon as the House acts, probably today, the measure will go to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature. The Senate also took action on several bills of minor national importance but close to the hearts of some members.

The Senate Finance Committee formulated what it hoped would be an acceptable compromise on the warmly controversial sugar bill and prepared to hurry the measure to the Senate. The House Ways and Means Committee continued work on a measure to plug loopholes in the income tax law.

Meanwhile, some members of House and Senate commenced packing their bags with the intention of leaving the city within a few days irrespective of whatever jams might develop. Republican Senate Leader Charles L. McNary sought and obtained permission from the Senate to depart on Thursday.

The key log in the legislative jam, however, was the President's insistence on crop surplus control legislation. Instead of being softened by the gestures made on Capitol Hill toward giving him assurance that such legislation would be considered early in the next session, the President appeared to be growing more adamant in his demand for action now.

Farm Study Ordered.

During the day the Senate adopted a resolution authorizing its Agriculture Committee to undertake a study of the farm situation, with instructions to have a bill ready within a week after Congress meets in another session. It was explained this could mean either the regular session in January or a special session called by the President some time during the fall.

The Democratic Steering Committee of the House also voted that farm legislation should have the right of way in that body, but no time was specified. These two actions at first were taken as giving the President the assurance he required that action to control crop surplus would not be interminably delayed, especially since the Senate resolution was called up by Democratic Floor Leader Alben W. Barkley. Senator Hugo L. Black, a leading agitator for a farm law, said he would abandon his move for a special session on October 15 in face of these developments.

But these moves did not satisfy the President. He apparently believes that the widespread desire in

Sugar Changes Fail to Satisfy Cabinet Group

Quotas Fixed for Offshore Refiners Too Rigid to Suit President.

A "compromise" sugar bill was agreed on by the Senate Finance Committee last night over protests of Administration representatives so violent as to cause some doubt whether it will end the long struggle over the bill.

Under the leadership of Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, committee chairman, who lunched at the White House earlier in the day, the group voted in a "compromise" amendment which would set refined sugar quotas for both United States and offshore producers at their peak production limits.

They also voted to strike from the bill which passed the House an amendment slapping an excise tax of 2½ cents per gallon on blackstrap molasses imported for use in manufacturing of industrial alcohol.

Passes by Vote of 15 to 2.

The total United States sugar consumption was used as the basis, or 100 per cent figure, for the bill, exclusive of Cuban shipments. The percentages, which "freeze" refined production in each area at present levels, were:

United States refiners, 97.5004 per cent; Puerto Rico, 2.024 per cent; Hawaii, .4756 per cent.

Harrison said: "I don't think this meets the views of the Interior Department, but it meets the views of the committee by a large majority."

The vote for the amendment was 15 to 2, with only Senators Bennett Clark (Democrat) Missouri, and John G. Townsend, jr. (Republican), Delaware, voting against the committee amendment.

Although termed a "compromise," the amendment does not in any way satisfy the wishes of the President or of the three Cabinet Departments, Interior, State and Agriculture, according to Administration representatives present yesterday.

Want Curbs Eased.

The Administration throughout has insisted that the restrictions in the bill on the refined sugar imports from the offshore producers—Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands—should be lifted. Domestic refiners have fought this bitterly. The amendment adopted yesterday, by freezing the quotas, will not permit the refiners from the territories to increase their production beyond its present point, which they regard as too low.

Although Harrison indicated after visiting the White House that the dispute had been straightened out by the "compromise," the President, at his press conference, said Harrison had only told him of a compromise proposal, and that he had suggested the finance chairman put such a proposal on paper so that he could study it.

The controversial bill, subject of a long-drawn-out fight among lobbyists representing all sections and industries concerned, will now go to the Senate floor, where quick passage is predicted.

A real battle is then predicted for the Senate-House conference, and the President is then expected to veto the measure or to give it a pocket-veto, by withholding his approval until the session ends, when the bill, which is to supplant the expiring Jones-Costigan act after December 31 of this year, will die.

If he gives the bill a quick veto, it is still possible the Congress may override such action, although this was doubted yesterday.

New Faces in Congress

Last Election 'Biggest Handout In History,' Says Rep. Cluett

New York Legislator Sees National Swing to Republican Party When 'Bills Start Rolling In;' Asserts Roosevelt Seeks 3d Term.

"The so-called election mandate to the contrary, the November Administration vote was the result of the biggest handout in history," according to E. Harold Cluett, self-designated "black" Republican, of New York.

Hope for the future of the party never dies in the breast of the 63-year-old legislator, who confidently crystal gazes into the '38 Congressional elections to faithfully report the first sinking signs of the Democratic star.

"We may not make a comeback in 1940," he said, "but look out for the whirlwind of public opinion when the Nation's bills, marked 'long overdue,' start to roll in."

Perturbed about the present trend toward regimentation, Representative Cluett is pessimistic about a future era under the guiding principles of the Rooseveltian banner. "And, mark my words," he will tell you, "Roosevelt will run for a third term if he feels he has a ghost of a chance."

Biographical sketch: he was born in Troy, N. Y.; was graduated from Williams College in 1896, after two years as an undergraduate at Oxford University; became active in his father's shirt and collar manufacturing plant in 1898; was a Presidential elector on the Republican ticket of William Howard Taft in 1912 and Charles Evans Hughes in 1916. During the World War he was head of the employment division of the Watervliet (N. Y.) Government Arsenal, and later became a member of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. mission to France. In 1934 he was an unsuccessful Republican candidate for the United States Senate, being defeated by the present incumbent, Senator Royal S. Copeland. He was chairman of the board of directors of Cluett, Peabody and Co., Inc., for ten years, but retired on his advent to Congress, though he still is a director. He is past president of the Troy Chamber of Commerce and director of that city's National City Bank. Married, he has six children and five grandchildren.

Senate Vote Authorizes Long Haul Route Fixing

By the Associated Press.

The Senate passed and sent to the House yesterday a bill permitting the Interstate Commerce Commission to establish through railroad routes as it does for joint rail and water transportation.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, author of the legislation, said it would give the shipper a choice between a trunk line's long haul route and a shorter and perhaps cheaper route.

Senate Votes To Ban Pickets At Embassies

Exception Granted in Case of Building Dispute; Fight Seen in House.

The Senate yesterday adopted the Pittman resolution to prohibit the picketing of embassies and legations here, a measure requested by Secretary of State Hull to save the State Department the "embarrassment" growing out of demonstrations against foreign missions in Washington.

Chairman Key Pittman, of the Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate the United States could not ask foreign governments to protect Americans unless it could guarantee protection to the envoys of those governments in this city.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, contended the Pittman resolution was too broad, and he offered a substitute which would have extended police regulations to cover unlawful assemblies before embassies and legations. This was defeated.

However, the Senate accepted La Follette's amendment which would permit labor organizations to picket an embassy or legation building in a dispute growing out of building contracts.

The Pittman resolution makes it unlawful to display within 500 feet of any embassy or legation any flag, banner or placard designed to intimidate, coerce or bring into public odium any foreign government party or organization, or to bring into public disrepute the political, social or economic acts of any foreign government, unless a permit for such demonstration has been issued by the superintendent of police.

The resolution now goes to the House, where Chairman McReynolds, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, has introduced a similar measure. A fight on the resolution is in prospect on that side of the Capitol.

Bethlehem to Issue $48,000,000 in Bonds

By the Associated Press.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation notified the Securities Commission yesterday it intends to issue $48,000,000 worth of 15-year sinking fund convertible debentures.

Of the proceeds, $10,000,000 will be used to retire a similar amount of promissory notes of the Bethlehem Steel Co. and the balance for increasing inventories and working capital.

Minister's Funeral Fee Free of Security Tax

LaGuardia Pleads For WPA Workers

By the Associated Press.

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, president of the United States Conference of Mayors, urged Congress yesterday to forbid the dismissal of WPA workers who cannot find "suitable" employment in private industry.

He supported his request with a conference report saying a large percentage of recently discharged WPA workers have applied for direct relief from local agencies. This means that, in the main, they are not finding it possible to obtain private jobs, the report said.

Mergers Mean Milking C. & O., Senators Hear

Experts Say Van Sweringen Unit Might Lose Improvements.

A Senate committee's investigators yesterday contended a pending proposal to reorganize the Van Sweringen rail empire might involve milking the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.

They said the C. & O., most prosperous operating company of the system, might lose necessary improvements.

Robert R. Young, top man of the system, denied this. He said necessary improvements would not be neglected. R. S. Marshall, C. & O. vice president, agreed with him.

Young conceded, however, that the C. & O. is the only operating unit on which the new organization could depend for "immediate returns of a substantial character."

Young is chairman of the board of Alleghany Corporation, top holding company of the Van Sweringen pyramid. His reorganization plan involves merging Alleghany with Chesapeake Corporation, another holding company, at the top of the corporate pile. It would also consolidate C. & O., Pere Marquette and the Nickel Plate lines, operating companies.

In response to questions by Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, Marshall told the committee yesterday he expected C. & O. earnings for this year would be at the rate of $4.69 per share.

Reorganization Bill Reported Unexpectedly by House Group

eral's office, under a bill by Representative Fred Vinson, of Kentucky, was passed over yesterday. Another highly controversial feature—a bill by Representative James M. Mead, of New York, providing Civil Service reorganization—also was passed over.

The Senate has refused to split the program, and has held hearings on all phases in one drastic omnibus measure introduced by the late Senator Joseph T. Robinson.

Agencies specifically exempted from reorganization in the House bill are the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, Federal Power Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Communications Commission, National Labor Relations Board, National Bituminous Coal Commission, United States Maritime Commission, United States Tariff Commission, General Accounting Office, Corps of Army Engineers and the Coast Guard.

Although two new departments were recommended by the President, the House group dropped plans for a Department of Public Works and proposed only a new Department of Welfare. Section 203 of the new bill provides:

"The Secretary of Welfare shall promote the public health, safety and sanitation, the protection of the consumer, the cause of education, the relief of unemployment and of the hardship and suffering caused thereby, the relief of the needy and distressed, the assistance and benefits of the aged, and the relief and vocational rehabilitation of the physically disabled and in general shall co-ordinate and promote public health, education and welfare activities."

Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, chairman of an independent Senate reorganization committee, has been opposing reorganization action this year because of vast powers contained in the President's original plan. The House group thinks it has met many of Byrd's objections.

Agreement to Abandon Military Road Ends Deadlock Over Airport Expansion

$25,000 Given To Construct New Highway

Arlington County Consents to Plan Which Will Speed Repairs.

An agreement under which Military road may be closed was reached yesterday by the Arlington County Board and Washington Airport. In an unanimous vote the board agreed to accept the closing of the road in return for $25,000 which will be contributed by the airport toward construction of a substitute highway. Under the agreement a traffic light at the junction of Columbia pike and No. 1 highway will be provided by the air terminal.

War Department officials have long favored closing of the road which has ceased to have military value, but have been restrained by opposition of county officials. With the controversy over Military road out of the way, immediate efforts will be made to hasten Congressional authorization for the improvements at Washington Airport.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, sponsor of the Senate measure, said yesterday he expected immediate consideration of his bill. When notified of the agreement, he replied, "That's good; that should simplify matters.

Quick Solution Seen.

Representative Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, the author of the House bill which is similar to the Copeland proposal, said, "that ought to enable us to work out a speedy solution to this problem."

The Senate bill, which probably will receive consideration today, would authorize the Secretary of War to give the airport company title to Military road in return for $25,000 which would be used to construct a substitute highway.

He also would be permitted to lease part of Boundary Channel to the airport, which would fill in the lagoon for use as part of the field.

The Secretary of Agriculture would be directed to lease 53 acres of the Experimental Farm to the Airport "under such terms and conditions as he may prescribe," for use as part of the terminal.

Smith Drops Opposition.

Representative Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, who previously had objected to the closing of the Military road, said yesterday he would no longer oppose it.

The agreement provided that if the Airport is abandoned as a flying field at any time the right of way of Military road will be deeded to Arlington County, thus restoring the present road, though not necessarily over exactly the same route.

Copies of the resolution of the Arlington County board were sent to Senator Harry F. Byrd and Representative Smith, who were asked to co-operate "in securing the passage of legislation necessary to effectuate the foregoing agreement."

Following the meeting, Frank C. Hanrahan, county manager, and Samuel J. Solomon, manager of the Washington Airport, made a joint statement pledging mutual support to bring about the closing of Military road and the utmost possible improvement of Washington Airport.

Road Promised Soon.

"We have recognized the rights of the people of Arlington County to the use of Military road or an adequate substitute," Solomon said.

Hanrahan announced that Arlington County, through its county board, has pledged "its whole-hearted support" to bring about the long-sought closing of Military road to improve safety conditions at the airport.

Hanrahan stated that as soon as the necessary legislation is enacted by Congress authorizing the closing of Military road, Arlington County will proceed without delay in providing a substitute road to connect with the Washington-Richmond highway. He stated it will take but a short time to complete the required plans for its construction.

School Crowded As Teacher Faces Evolution Charge

Waynesburg, Pa., Aug. 10 (AP).—Farmers and their wives converged today on the one-room Kirby schoolhouse to hear a teacher defend herself against charges of incompetence and cruelty.

They vied for the 50 undertakers' chairs which had been moved into the schoolroom in preparation for Attorney Jesse R. Scott's anounced investigation of complaints that Mrs. Laura Elms Morris, the teacher, had taught evolution.

Mrs. Morris admitted as the hearing opened that she had struck Jack Jones, a pupil, with a board approximately three feet long. But, she added, he resisted her, took the board from her and boke it over a desk.

"I think it is my duty as counsel, not only for the board but indirectly for the parents to investigate thoroughly this phase (dealing with evolution) of the case."

'Babe Is Weaker; Can't Last Much Longer,' Report

Increased weakness due to lack of food last night marked the condition of Babe, 99-year-old elephant awaiting death at the Washington Zoo.

A bulletin from Ernest P. Walker, acting director, stated that her heartbeats and temperature were about normal, with the exception of fever in her feet.

"She ate some bread today, but was unable to eat any hay. We do not believe she is in much pain, or that she is entirely conscious. She cannot last much longer."

Babe stumbled on a doorsill Sunday morning, or she probably would have died standing—a position she had maintained ever since her feet began to wear out on her nine years ago.

The best shots among the Federal agents who guard the President, protect the Government's currency, run down smugglers and patrol the Treasury Building had it out with pistols yesterday on the Camp Simms firing range.

The Bureau of Customs took both team and individual honors, leaving in its wake the Secret Service, Alcohol Tax Unit, Narcotics Bureau, Bureau of the Mint, Bureau of Engraving and Printing and Treasury guards—all under the Treasury Department—and the White House Police.

L. E. Echols, customs agent stationed at San Juan, Puerto Rico, won the Secretary's Cup for individual honors with a score of 298. His service scored 1,459 points to win the Secretary's Cup for team proficiency.

Silver medal winners in the singles competition were A. L. Meloche (Alcohol Tax Unit), second, 297; K. A. Wilson (Alcohol Tax Unit), third, 295; J. D. Jamieson (Mint), fourth, 294.

Those placing fifth to tenth, respectively, and receiving bronze medals, were R. G. Ford (White House police), P. M. Chapman (Customs), A. W. Quick (Customs), R. P. Hallion (White House police), L. J. Nay (Alcohol Tax Unit), and W. E. Frey (Narcotics).

E. L. Ballinger, customs agent, who triumphed in te 1936 singles, failed to place in the first ten, although he bettered his score of 281, which was good enough to win last year.

White House Guard, Secret Service Prove Also-Rans.

Alcohol Tax Unit was second in the team contest, with 1,437, and the White House Police, 1,433, were third.

Sponsored by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, the first match of what will be an annual contest among the eight services was held here last November.

This morning Agent Ballinger will give a quick-firing exhibition, using a moving silhouette of a man as a target.

For the first time the program this year will involve selection of a six-man team to represent the Treasury Deprtment in the National Championship matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, August 22 to September 11. At this meet teams from the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, National Guard and police departments will participate.

$50,000 Suit Faced By Joan Crawford

Hollywood, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Joan Crawford, screen star, tonight was threatened with a $50,000 lawsuit involving a mysterious "friendship" which a young Detroit stenographer, Dorothy Rogers, said had developed between herself and the actress.

Miss Rogers, who was questioned recently by an investigator from the sheriff's office, assertedly at Miss Crawford's request, blamed the actress for the loss of her job as a stenographer at RKO-Radio Studios.

The actress denied any such "friendship" existed. Miss Rogers did not reveal the issues in her proposed suit.

Baby Dies 2d Time After Living a Day Following Revival

New Market, Tenn., Aug. 10 (AP).—A 2-pound baby girl, who "came back to life" for a few hours and then died, was buried in a county cemetery today.

Dr. D. R. Roach, obstetrician, said the three-months premature child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cochran was born in a hospital Sunday night and was pronounced dead when examination failed to reveal heart beats.

The infant was taken to the Cochran home in a cardboard box, left over night in the smokehouse, and was discovered alive by the child's grandfather when he opened the box to transfer the baby to a homemade coffin for burial.

The grandfather, John Foster, a carpenter, said he rushed the baby back to the hospital where it lived until last night.

Seger Joins Fight OnCampaign Book

By the Associated Press.

Representative Seger (Republican), New Jersey, said in a statement yesterday a constituent had "put $500 on the line" for a book of the Democratic National Convention and never received his copy.

He backed up Minority Leader Snell, of New York, in demands for an investigation of sales of the books, which bear President Roosevelt's autograph.

"Should an investigation be agreed upon I am sure my constituent will describe his experience. In the meantime, for quite obvious reasons, he reveals a passion for anonymity."

King George Sends Greetings to Scouts

'Streamlined' Prison to House Worst Pennsylvania Criminals

$2,000,000 Structure to Consist of Three Circular Towers, Overlooking Barren Fields; Cells to Be Built in Solid Rock.

By the Associated Press

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 10.—High on a rocky hillside, Pennsylvania will build a $2,000,000 stream-lined prison for hardened criminals—first of its kind in the Nation.

It will consist of thre circular towers, overlooking a barren enclosure and will be a prison within a prison.

The penitentiary, Pennsylvania's fifth major prison, will rise from Mount Gretna, overlooking an abandoned military reservation not far from Harrisburg. Trees and underbrush will be removed, starting this autumn. The lot will be enclosed by 10,000 feet of tool-resistant steel mesh.

Col. Augustine Janeway, head of the general State authority handling plans, said the departure from the old style rectangular to circular walls was to gain additional strength. Wind resistance and general wear and tear also were considered. The circular walls also can be built $100,000 cheaper, Janeway said.

The center tower of the three will house a prison within itself, with 594 cells.

There will be a "lock" for vehicles and a guards' shelter outside the center gate. The two gates forming this lock, as in all other points, will lock in pairs. It will be impossible to open both at the same time.

Convicts will be taken through receiving and quarantine units entering the circular tower. They will go down by elevator into the solid rock and through this rock a tunnel will stretch to the interior of the big circle. A prisoner will pass through a dozen "locks" before he is put in his cell.

One of the smaller circles will house the workships. The other will be used as an exercise ground until it is needed to house more cells.

Dr. France to Pay For Wife's Voyage In Md. Divorce Suit

Elkton, Md., Aug. 10 (AP).—Dr. Joseph I. France, former U. S. Senator form Maryland and one-time aspirant for the Republican Presidential nomination, was ordered today to pay expenses of his wife from Paris for hearing of their divorce suit here.

Dr. France filed the suit in circuit court here last June. He alleged he and his wife have been seperated for more than five years.

Mrs. France was Tatiana Z. Dechterava, a Russion emigre who fled that country after the revolution. She and her mother had been living in England, Italy and France. She is Dr. France's second wife, his first having died some years ago. They were married in Paris in July, 1927.

Appeals to Make Tug 'Duck' Under Bridges Rejected

The tugboat Albemarle will not be required to hinge its mast, notwithstanding objections of 3,000 motorists who daily use Arlington Memorial and Highway bridges, the United States Engineer's Office announced yesterday.

The decisions means that through August the two spans will continue to split themselves in the middle from 16 to 19 times daily in deference to the tug, which is hauling dredged material from above Memorial Bridge to Gravelly Point. Hinging the mast so the craft could pass under the bridges without lifting the spans would not be practicable, the announcement said.

The Norfolk Dredging Co., owner of the Albemarle, informed Army engineers that possible damage to vessel or bridges resulting from hinging of the mast might jeopardize its license from the Department of Commerce.

College Services Honor Dr. Kellogg

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 10 (AP).—A memorial service for Dr. Vernon Lyman Kellogg, of Washington, D. C., distinguished scientist who died here Sunday, was conducted today in Trinity College Chapel by President Remsen B. Ogilby.

Two former United States Senators, Frederic C. Walcott, now Connecticut welfare commissioner, and Jesse H. Metcalf, of Rhode Island, were a guard of honor.

Among those present were Perrin Galpin, of New York City, sent by former President Herbert Hoover to represent the Belgian Relief Commission, on which Dr. Kellogg served during the war.

The body of the 69-year-old zoologist, a former professor at Stanford University and for many years secretary of the National Research Council, was sent to Springfield, Mass., for cremation following the service. Burial will be in Monterey, Calif.

U. S. Agents Seek Florida Robbers

An intensive manhunt for two Florida bank robbers, each with a $500 reward on his head, was announced yesterday by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The wanted men are Hugh Gant and Alva Dewey Hunt, brothers-in-law accused of numerous bank robberies and other crimes in Florida and adjoining States. According to Hoover, they are the principals in a gang which has operated since 1920.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings has announced $1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to their apprehension, or $500 for one or the other. Gant and Hunt are under indictment for the $4,000 robbery of the Dixie County State Bank at Cross City, Fla., on January 14, 1936, and other holdups.

Riot Breaks Up Union Meeting In Strike Area

Effort to Organize Against Both A. F. L. and C. I. O. Brings Pa. Battle.

By the Associated Press.

Hazleton, Pa., Aug. 10.—Pickets and non-strikers battled with fists through the corridors and over the lawn of city hall today, after a crowd broke up a meeting of workers opposed to the seven-State silk strike.

Women fainted in the stampede. Eyes were blackened and faces scratched and battered. Traffic stood still.

The disorder came unexpectedly when the Independent Labor Federation of America, recently organized at Hershey, 'the chocolate town,' made its first bid in an industrial dispute.

The mills in this industrial city of Pennsylvania's middle anthracite region were closed. Notices were posted that non-strikers would meet at city hall to form a union of their own.

Charles E. Hallman, president of the federation—which opposes both the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization—attempted to make a speech.

Catcalls and cheers greeted him as he tore into Lewis. He declared the anthracite industry and the colliery workers had suffered from Lewis' policies.

"That," he cried, "is why so many people are using oil burners."

The crowd grew. Down the street appeared bands of men and boys who said they were pickets. They drew near. They howled derision at Hallman and several moved toward him. Others followed. Hallman shouted defiance—then bolted for the door of City Hall.

Hallman and Cassidy were rescued by Chief of Police George A. Brownson, who locked his office door and, drawing a pistol, stood guard on the inside.

When order was restored, the two organizers were given an escort to the railroad station.

Republic Steel Accused.

Canton, Ohio, Aug. 10 (AP).—Former employes of the Republic Steel Corporation testified at the National Labor Relations Board's hearing today that they were discharged because they joined the C. I. O. and did not "stick with the company."

Martin H. Beckner, vice president of the local C. I. O. lodge, almost shouted from the witness chair that "Republic threatened to blow up my house. A man in the employment office told my wife."

"Before I leave the stand," he said, turning to Trial Examiner John T. Lindsay, "I'd like to tell you about one thing they won't ask me. That is, the Republic men shooting at our men from inside the plant."

Sabri Shaban said he was discharged on April 27, 1937, "two or three days after I walked into the plant with a steel worker's paper in my pocket."

The plant superintendent saw the paper, he said; pulled it out of his pocket and threw it away. He quoted the superintendent as saying: "You've gone to C. I. O. now. Why didn't you listen to me?"

2 N. Y. Democrats, 3 Republicans in Mayoralty Race

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—A three-cornered Republican fight and a two-sidded Democratic contest for the party nominations for mayor were finally lined up for the September 16 primaries when the deadline was reached tonight for filing of petitions.

The first big batches of designations placing Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia in the race for the Republican nomination reached the elections board only a half hour before the midnight closing.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, outspoken critic of President Roosevelt and a Democrat, was entered in both party primaries, his lone opponent in the Democratic contest being former State Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney. Grover Whalen entry was also listed but he has said he wil lwithdraw in favor of Mahoney.

The third entry in the Republican primary was Charles G. Bond, former congressman with the backing of Jacob Livingston, former Brooklyn Republican leader.

James Roosevelt's Bodyguard Expires

Rye, N. H., Aug. 10 (AP).—Michael Murphy, 38, Secret Service agent detailed to guard the family of James Roosevelt, son of the President died tonight at Roosevelt's summer home at Little Boars Head, near here.

Dr. W. P. Bryer, of Hampton, said Murphy suffered a hemorrhage and died within 10 mintes.

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

Crooked Realty Dealers' Bill Reported Out

The Senate District Committee yesterday favorably reported a House bill aimed at crooked real estate promoters. Agitated for 10 years, the bill sets up a board to issue licenses to real estate brokers and salesmen, and to revoke those licenses on proof of fraudulent dealings, after a public hearing.

The committee also approved four other bills, including one to change the names of four streets in the Mall from Washington, Adams, Jefferson and Madison to Ohio, Oklahoma, Maine and Missouri. The States bearing the last four names feel that they have been slighted in the matter of street names in the National Capital.

The National Capital Planning Commission had hoped Congress would allow the names of the Presidents to remain on the streets, and Secretary of Interior Ickes sent a letter to the committee suggesting other streets which might be given the names of the four States. He proposed that either Concord avenue or Riggs road be given the name of Ohio; Benning road or Nicholas avenue, Oklahoma; Reno road, Maine, and Linneau avenue, Missouri. The committee, however, voted 5 to 3 for the House bill changing the names in the Mall.

The other bills approved were:

A bill to extend westward toward the Potomac River the area in which the Treasury is authorized to make land purchases for Federal buildings.

A bill to grant a charter to the Southeastern University, located in the Y. M. C. A. building.

William Dougherty, 92-year-old Civil War veteran, died yesterday at his home, 1324 Monroe street northwest. He had been ill for only a few days.

Born in Coleraine, Ireland, Mr. Dougherty came to Philadelphia when a boy. He enlisted in the Nineteenth Regiment of Pennsylvania Cavalry in 1863 and served under Gen. Thomas until the end of the war, participating in the bloody battle of Nashville and in innumerable minor engagements.

After the war Mr. Dougherty went to Dubuque, Iowa, where he engaged in the wholesale grocery business until the outbreak of the World War. He came then to Washington and served as a civilian clerk in the quartermaster department at Camp Meigs.

In talking of his Civil War days, Mr. Dougherty would recall his few days encampment at Chain Bridge here. The subject of food always reminded him of his Christmas dinner of 1864, consisting of salt bacon and hardtack eaten in the saddle.

One time, near Huntsville, Ala., he and a party of comrades went on a lengthy search for food. Eventually they collected a small supply of meat, sorely needed at their headquarters, only to be captured by Confederate troops.

His Civil War tales included one account of the capture of 5,000 Confederate soldiers without the firing of a shot. They wandered into the Union camp at night, and were captured easily without resistance.

This June, on his ninety-second birthday, he announced he is "still a Lincoln man." He did not approve of local G. A. R. posts, however. He visited one some years back and encountered "too many colonels, majors and captains. I couldn't even find a private," he said.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Mary E. Kerr and Mrs. Blanche H. Kerr, and two granddaughters, Blanche V. and Ruth D. Kerr. All are of Washington.

Wagner Housing Bill Assailed by Va. Realtor

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—Edwin A. Page, president of the Norfolk Real Estate Board, launched an attack on the Wagner housing bill today and announced he had asked Representative Norman B. Hamilton to oppose the Administration's efforts to place the Government in competition with private landlords.

The Wagner bill was passed last week by the Senate and is now pending in the House.

Finsler's Comet Starts on Return Trip Into Space

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 10 (AP).—Finsler's comet swerved out tonight toward the stellar spaces from which it may never return within the lifetime of those who viewed it.

Harvard astronomers said it was flying southward at a rate of about 5 degrees a day, and probably would pass from sight as it crossed the equator at the eastern edge of the constellation Virgo early in September.

The Finsler comet, for weeks rushing visibly earthward, came its nearest to this sphere last night. It was 50,000,000 miles away—nearly twice as close as the sun—when it slipped past the second star in the handle of the Big Dipper under the Northern midnight sky.

Thousands have watched the Northern sky several nights for a glimpse of the object, which has a head eight times larger than the earth, a tail 2,000,000 miles long and a stubby second tail some 200,000 miles in length.

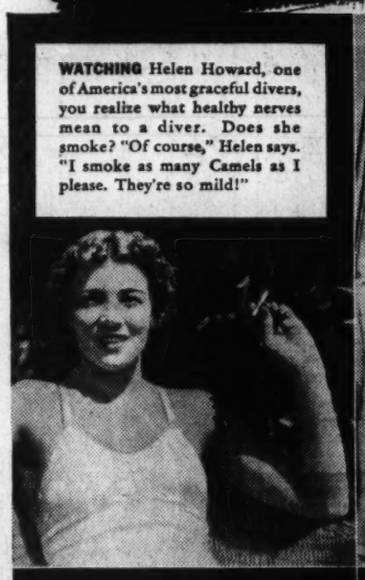
DID YOU SAY Action?

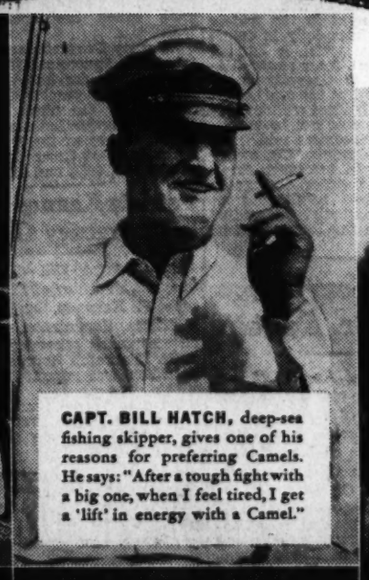
THERE'S PLENTY DOING when Bob Bullock's in the game! Follow him up the field. (He's wearing the dark shirt in these pictures.) Bob is one of the great No. 3's of polo—plays this key position as it should be played—with strategy, skill, and courage!

RIGHT ON THE NOSE! Consistent, accurate hitting makes Bob Bullock a dangerous scoring threat. Above, he rides an opponent out of play—at the same time makes a well-timed shot to the uprights at such blinding speed that even a fast-action camera catches the ball only as an egg-shaped blur!

CLOSE QUARTERS! Bullock is famous as a hard-riding defense player too. Above, he's playing to retrieve possession of the ball for his side. Like Lou Gehrig (the Iron Man of Baseball), Lenore Kight Wingard (America's Premiere Speed-Swimmer), and Glenn Hardin (World's Champion Hurdler), Bob Bullock has a decided preference for the extra smoking pleasure that Camels bring him. He's smoked Camels for over a decade.



WATCHING Helen Howard, one of America's most graceful divers, you realize what healthy nerves mean to a diver. Does she smoke? "Of course," Helen says. "I smoke as many Camels as I please. They're so mild!"



CAPT. BILL HATCH, deep-sea fishing skipper, gives one of his reasons for preferring Camels. He says: "After a tough fight with a big one, when I feel tired, I get a 'lift' in energy with a Camel."

AUCTIONEER. "I work at a tense pace," says John M. Mitchell. "Jittery nerves? Not me! My cigarette never gets on my nerves. It's Camel, of course. My throat is very important to me. Camels don't irritate my throat."

NO JANGLED NERVES for this busy secretary. Miss Rosamond Morse says: "I can't afford jangled nerves. That's why I prefer a milder cigarette—Camels. I've smoked Camels for years. They never jangle my nerves."

Naturally Bob Bullock Appreciates Mild Smoking

POLO enthusiasts will agree with Mr. Bullock that it takes healthy nerves to play polo—nerves that don't fail in a pinch. Bob Bullock says: "Camels deserve the blue ribbon for mildness and mellowness. I've smoked Camels for years. They never jangle my nerves!"

Mealtime (right) finds Bob, as usual, enjoying Camels—for digestion's sake. "Camels at mealtimes and afterwards add a world of enjoyment to eating," he says. "'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'"

For unvarying mildness, flavor, and fragrance—make it Camels! Camel's costlier tobaccos are naturally mild and fine-flavored.

William Pierce Rites to Be at Silver Spring

Retired D. C. Lumber Dealer, 83, Dies After Brief Illness.

William A. Pierce, 83, former Washington lumber dealer, died yesterday at his home, 9210 Brookeville pike, Silver Spring, Md., after a short illness. Until his retirement several years ago he had been president of the William A. Pierce Lumber Co., at 616 Rhode Island avenue northeast, which he started about 40 years ago.

Born in Delaware, Mr. Pierce spent the early part of his life there, receiving his education in the schools of that State. When he was 25 years old, he moved to Philadelphia, where he was associated with a large department store.

He came to Washington 45 years ago and opened a dry goods store on the site where Kann's store now stands. Several years later he gave up the store and entered the lumber business. Before the days of the automobile he was well-known as a horse fancier.

His wife, Mrs. Mary M. Pierce, died last February. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. S. Wrenn Howard, of Washington; a niece, Mrs. A. P. Clark, of Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; a nephew, B. R. Gannon, of Silver Spring, and two nieces, the Misses Mary and Kathryn Butler, who made their home with Mr. Pierce.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. at St. Michael's Catholic Church in Silver Spring. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mother Is Buried With 'Death Baby'

Philadelphia, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Mrs. Mary Boccasini and the baby born after her death were buried together in a plain gray coffin today as 200 curious strangers and a handful of relatives looked on.

The "death baby," Frances Mary, who died Sunday morning in her forty-sixth hour of life after a rare post-mortem Caesarean operation, lay in the crook of her mother's left arm. The coffin was lowered as an aunt of the 27-year-old woman sang a brief Italian burial chant.

Police, fearing recurrence of traffic congestion caused by an unruly crowd of 12,000 persons who visited the funeral parlor where the bodies were on view last night, held back 150 curious who pressed forward to glimpse grief-stricken relatives.

M. A. Healy Dead; Hospital Engineer

Michael A. Healy, 54, engineer at Providence Hospital for 13 years, died at the hospital yesterday. He had been ill for several months.

Born in Westernport, Md., Mr. Healy came to Washington when a boy and for many years was employed as an engineer on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He was a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Peter's Catholic Church.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Poston and Mrs. Mary V. Madigan, both of Washington, and three brothers, Denis and Patrick Healy, of Washington, and John R. Healy, of Stockton, Calif.

Mrs. Anna Larson Dies in Hospital

Mrs. Anna L. Larson, 64, of 860 V. Buren street northwest, died yesterday in Sibley Hospital.

Mrs. Larson, a native of Sweden, came to the United States more than 45 years ago. After living in Springfield, Mass., she came to Washington in 1919 with her husband, Jacob F. Larson, a cabinetmaker.

Surviving are her husband, a son, Frederick Larson, of Springfield, Mass., and two daughters, Gertrude and Dorothy Larson.

Funeral services will be held at the Takoma Evangelical Lutheran Church at 2 p. m. Friday, with burial in Washington Memorial Park Cemetery.

Harry O. Wilson's Rites To Be Conducted Today

Funeral services for Harry O. Wilson, who died Sunday at the Emergency Hospital, will be held at 11 a. m. today at 1908 H street northwest. Rev. Richard A. Cartmell, assistant rector of Epiphany Church, will hold services. Interment will be at Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Wilson was a lifeling resident of this city. He was formerly a teller at the National Metropolitan Bank. He retired 15 years ago. A graduate of Randolph-Macon College, Mr. Wilson is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Wilson Shircliff, of Washington, and Mrs. Lucy W. Stoddard, of Rockville, Md.

Five Called to Hearing On Interlocking Boards

DEFENSE OF RICHMOND National Battlefield Park against unsightliness about its boundaries was requested of Congress yesterday by Senator Adams, of Colorado, in a bill he offered at instigation of the Interior Department. A similar bill will be proposed in the House.

The Interior Secretary would be authorized, under the bill, to obtain easements of land within one mile of the park, "when in his opinion such lands are used or likely to be used for purposes inconsistent with the operation and maintenance of the park." Farm land, however, is specifically excluded from the bill's provisions.

The House voted two bankruptcy measures designed to protect investors in financially-distressed corporations.

One is the 212-page Chandler bill, revising the bankruptcy code for the first time since 1898. The other is the Sabath bill authorizing the Securities Commission to aid Federal courts in administering the bankruptcy law relating to reorganization of corporations.

In some respects the bills overlap. Both authorize the commission to advise the courts on fairness of reorganization plans and to intervene to protect investors.

W. L. Edison, Eldest Son of Inventor, Dies

By the Associated Press.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 10.—William L. Edison, 58, eldest son of the inventor, the late Thomas A. Edison, died today at his home in Westover Hills after an illness of six weeks.

Edison held many patents on basic principles he discovered during several years of experimenting at Centerville, Del., and in Westover Hills. Among his best-known discoveries were those which adopted the single radio tube to multiple uses.

At his bedside were his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Danby, of Chadds Ford, Pa., and Miss Frances Travers, relatives of his wife.

Edison retired from active work about two years ago.

He was born in Menlo Park, N. J., October 3, 1878. He was graduated from the Shefield Scientific School at Yale University in 1900 and studied later with his father.

His education was interrupted by the Spanish-American War in which he served with the U. S. Engineers. During the World War he was assigned as an ignition expert in a special unit with the British Royal Tank Corps.

At one time he was associated in the design and manufacture of automobiles in New York City, and also experimented with game preserves and the breeding of game birds in Virginia and New Jersey.

Ear Insurance For Accordion Player Advised

Beverly Stull Alarms Mayfair Crowd When She Cuddles Squeeze Box.

By Chanticleer

Wondrous are the far reaches of the imagination. Just, for example, the incident at the Mayfair the other night when Beverly Stull began her turn for the customers. Beverly plays a huge squeeze box in case you aren't keeping abreast of the goings-on in the play spots these days.

Three gentlemen at a nearby table suddenly were intrigued by the way in which Beverly dips her head to one side when she is coaxing some particularly soft and soothing melody from her accordion. One suddenly gripped his companion's arm and opined that if Beverly didn't watch out she would lose one ear in the folds of the maw of the instrument.

The other fellow snapped his fingers as he got his inspiration. "I've got it," he shouted. "Marlene Dietrich has $50,000 insurance on her legs; Beverly must have insurance, too. On her ear!"

It might further be recorded that Jack Campbell is vacationing. The injured leg is now being sun-baked on the beach at Long Island.

Trusts Challenge SEC Investigation

By the Associated Press.

William R. Rawick, New York attorney for a group of investment trusts sponsored by Donald P. Kenyon, challenged yesterday the authority of the Securities Commission to continue its investigation of investment trusts.

Rawick contended the investigation lapsed on January 4, when the report of Congress was due. On that date, the commission filed a preliminary report and said it intended to hold more hearings. Officials have indicated the final report will be sent to Congress next winter.

The scheduled hearings of the Kenyon group yesterday was postponed temporarily to give Rawick time to draft a formal motion.

The Federal Diary

REG. U. S. PATENT OFFICE

By Scott Hart

The Night

Interior's big event comes off tonight—the party about which the I. D. R. A. has been talking so much and writing so many press releases. From all the preparations it should be a knock - out, a double-barreled affair of fun and frolic . . . It will afford two kinds of dancing, the modern and the old - fashioned square . . . And sandwiched between will be all sorts of talent recruited from the department's employes . . . Two ballrooms in the big Interior Building will be required to accommodate all the goings-on . . . Hillory A. Tolson, assistant director, National Park Service, is the I. D. R. A. president.

TOLSON.

Rumpus.

As these employes plan to amuse themselves, another group battles for the reinstatement of Sidney Katz to his job in the WPA . . . This situation, between the WPA union (U. F. W. A.) and certain officials of the Works Progress, has taken on the features of a regular fracas . . . The aggressive union contends: "The dismissal of Sidney Katz cannot be explained on the basis of inefficiency, lack of seniority or State apportionment. It must therefore be due to discrimination against him for his active work in behalf of WPA employes. There is clear and conclusive evidence of antiunion activity on the part of officials in the division in which Katz worked." The union said it "protests his dismissal and demands his immediate and unconditional reinstatement. We also demand the immediate cessation of all antiunionism in this division."

It seems that the Government should, for the sake if its face at least, have some sort of board through which this sort of thing might be settled quickly, definitely and finally. Certainly, a private business concern would settle any such seething before the clock struck 8:30 a. m. The N. L. R. B. seems distant, somehow, from these rumpuses.

* * * *

Lights! Action!

The untiring National Civil Service Reform League, which recently announced a frontal attack on the patronage system by bringing the situation to light and life on the movie screens of the country, has sent the President a telegram (it may be another telegram) about the Black-Connery wage and hour bill . . . The President was asked to use his good offices with Congress toward elimination of patronage provisions from the bill.

But the movie—which undoubtedly lambastes, even if by subtle indirection, what the N. C. S. R. L. calls the "grab bag," is far more engaging. We've been wondering if the story is plotted, and if so, who played the parts . . . It would have been swell to have used real-life Congressmen, placing big mustachios on their lips and gleams in their eyes. And have them stalking about, slipping boys and girls into the Federal service without any examinations at all . . . And then came the dawn, or something, and the Civil Service knight riding up, boots, spurs and spears, to sweep the stage clear of all but those who had made at least a good 75 by merit.

Courtesy

A visitor to Washington went on the tour of the F. B. I. Building that is a regular feature of the bureau and insists that we put something here about how courteous the building guides were . . . And it does seem that when someone says something nice of guides it should be reported . . . Their lives must be dreadfully tedious ones, what with the monotony of eternally saying: "On your right and on your left" . . . Courtesy must appear strained and automatic, at times . . . But not so in the F. B. I. . . . The young man seemed positively enthusiastic in showing us around," the visitor related. We pass the compliment on, for whatever satisfaction it may be.

On page 1 the other day: The story of a former convict strangling a young girl to death . . . On June 14, in a public address J. Edgar Hoover said: "In all too many of our States, the administrators of the parole systems are incompetent and shortsighted. The cause of our more heinous crimes, murders, attacks by degenerates, slaying by perversion and other horrible crimes, is all too often found lying at the slimy doorway of inconsiderate parole."

President William G. Copley, of Commerce Lodge No. 9, A. F. G. E., urges all members to attend the business meeting to be held the night of August 17 in room 2062 . . . Coal Act Exemption Hearings Are Started

By the Associated Press.

The Bituminous Coal Commission started hearings yesterday on the application of seven United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries for exemption from provisions of the Guffey coal control act.

After James W. Hamilton, secretary of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, had described the relationship between his company and other subsidiaries, the hearing was recessed to allow Hamilton to obtain additional information requested by the commission.

Dyer Denies Slaying Girls, Asks to Testify

Los Angeles, Aug. 10 (AP).—As jury selection dragged through the third day, Albert Dyer, 32, said today he wanted to take the witness stand in his own defense against charges that he slew three young Inglewood girls last June.

"I didn't do it!" Dyer cried to newspapermen who were permitted to talk to him.

Tells Dad About Life in Circus

Pretty Doris Major, former cigarette girl at the Shoreham, whose mysterious disappearance a week ago Sunday led police to fear she had met with foul play, tells her father, Malcolm Major, newspaper artist on The Evening Star, how she likes her role as an equestrienne in the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, where she was discovered in Norfolk. Bored with her job and a desire for adventure led her to the "big tops," she said.

'Doves' Flutter As 60 Senators Honor Barkley

Then, at the very end of the three-and-one-half-hour session, Senator Barkley rose to say firmly:

"Let us keep in balance the executive and legislative branches of our Government.

"In piloting the Senate I intend to have the Senate tell the other branches of the Government what we will agree to, and not to have them tell us."

Wild applause came from men weary of a four-year reputation as "rubber stamps" for the White House.

Change in the Text.

Reporters who could hear this speech clearly through the closely guarded red drapes rushed to Barkley as the legislators, looking slightly buffeted after the hours of wining and dining, sauntered forth.

Barkley's version was slightly different.

He said: "I told the boys I would attempt to be frank in bringing together the executive and legislative branches of the Government. I said I will portray to the Senate the views of the President and to the President the views of the Senate.

"I will act as a sort of glorified messenger boy to the best of my ability—or more dignifiedly, as a legislative ambassador to the White House, you might say."

The Presidents' letter, not specifically asking for party harmony, was read to the group by Col. Edwin Halsey, secretary of the Senate.

Sent to "Dear Jack."

The President said, addressing it to "Dear Jack" (Garner):

"The quality of a man's friendship is always a safe barometer of his character and in the case of Alben Barkley this is particularly true. And it is as an old friend that I write this note; that I embrace the opportunity to add my testimony to the words of his other old friends and colleagues who will speak tonight in token of their appreciation of and affection for this man.

"Alben is not only a political friend, but is a friend in a very real and deep personal sense. Our associations cover long and delightful years. We have traveled together; we have barnstormed together; we have known the exultation of victory and we have been together in times of mutual commiseration.

"I know that everyone present this evening will agree with me that Alben Barkley is greatly distinguished for the things he does not say as well as for the things he does say. Whether he was born that way or has acquired this marvelous restraint through years of self-decipline, I do not know. But I do know that it is a great asset.

"He has two great gifts for which he ought to be thankful and for which we are truly grateful—a sense of perspective whereby little things are not unduly magnified and the larger things of life are not minimized, and a sense of humor which enables him to distinguish between the ridiculous and the serious.

"A positive Genius."

"Any man who, when the discussion of some picayune subject waxes serious and acrimonious, can rise in his place and sing "Wagon Wheels" is a positive genius. He knows by sound instinct that on occasion party harmony is aided and abetted by close harmony."

The 60 good men and true plowed their harmonious way through a long and carefully plotted menu, replete with such items as stuffed squab, Texas Ranger salad, Berncasteler Riesling 1934 wine, but which was featured by the following special from the Raleigh Hotel kitchens:

"Coupe Harmony"—a peach soaked in brandy until its very tissues were imbued, placed in a large champagne glass, covered with layers of vanilla ice cream, raspberry ice and chocolate ice cream and topped superbly off with a white iced-sugar dove of peace.

Senator William H. King, of Utah, old-school Democrat and foe of the New Deal, said as he emerged from the meeting:

"Harmony? Why, everything was as cold and still and dead as the doves on the ice cream.

Numerous speakers during the evening referred only casually to the slashing battles of the past session, but spoke glowingly of a united future in which Democrats will march shoulder to shoulder to perpetual victory at the polls.

The elders told them the party was returning to Jeffersonian principles after its recent division. The younger ones pictured the glories of driving forward with the New Deal. Both sides were applauded.

Nine absentees wired or wrote their regrets—Robert Wagner, of New York; Mrs. Hatttie Caraway, of Arkansas; John H. Bankhead, of Alabama; Carl Hayden, of Arizona; F. Ryan Duffy, of Wisconsin; Richard B. Russell, of Georgia; Josiah Bailey, of North Carolina; Millard Tydings, of Maryland, and Vic Donahey, of Ohio.

The President's letter was variously interpreted. Several Senators found his lack of a direct invitation to party harmony to be a serious omission, but they would not be quoted.

Carter Glass Speaks.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, bitterly anti-New Deal, stood to say:

"It is an honor for an unreconstructed rebel to be called on at a time like this for a speech. I have not always agreed with President Roosevelt. I have not always agreed with Senator Barkley. But I am a Democrat first, last, and always."

Lewis' remarks were regarded as the most significant of the evening by other Senators. They were surprised by the vehemence with which the pink-bearded old veteran laid about him. He said in direct worning:

"We cannot and must not accept that which is merely called Democracy for temporary political success on the basis of destruction of property and infringements of personal liberty.

"That is the difficulty with our Administration. It is the trouble with our trustful and benevolent President. They are overwhelmed by these men who are not Republicans nor yet Democrats."

Harrison, Wheeler, Sheppard, Pittman, Smith and McKellar talked after the dinner was concluded, but only Wheeler made news, with his good-natured fun-poking at those Democrats who now label him conservative because of his court bill opposition.

"But we have learned a lesson, I hope, at this session," came his voice through the heavy red drapes. "We have learned what we can do and what we cannot do, and what can be done and what cannot be done to us."

One Senator, glum amid the merrymaking, strode gruffly out at its close to say: "Harmony? Harmony h—!! And don't quote me!"

Slight Drop Shown In August Tobacco

By the Associated Press.

The Agriculture Department's August crop production report showed yesterday a slight decline in the indicated yield of tobacco.

Production, as of August 1, was estimated at 1,417,015,000 pounds compared with an estimated indicated yield of 1,420,943,000 pounds on July 1.

The condition of the crop was reported at 74.9 per cent normal compared with 61.7 per cent the same time last year and a ten-year average of 67 per cent.

An increase of nearly 10,000,000 pounds was reported for flue-cured over the July 1 report.

Flue-cured production, as of August 1 condition, was estimated at 777,475,000 pounds compared with 767,215,000 on July 1.

Decreases in indicated production were reported for fire-cured and burley.

President Signs Interior Supply Bill Regretfully

Roosevelt Attacks $10,000,000 Addition for Vocational Education.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt announced yesterday he had signed the $132,732,000 Interior Department supply bill with "much reluctance" because it provides $10,000,000 more for vocational education than the Budget Bureau recommended.

He asserted it was "not without significance" that a teachers' lobby had pressed for the appropriation. He added the need for expanding the program of vocational education aid to the States beyond the budget figure of $4,483,000 is yet to be determined in studies by a special committee he appointed last September.

Some May Be Saved.

Mr. Roosevelt said he will spend only as much of the $14,483,000 appropriation as can "properly and usefully be spent—no more and no less," because it is clear he would be subject to censure if any of the money were expended "inefficiently and inadvisedly."

The President's stand drew an immediate reply from Chairman Johnson (Democrat), Oklahoma, of the House Appropriations sub-committee which handled the bill.

Denying a lobby was in any way responsible for the size of the educational fund, he declared:

Bill Is Justified.

"There is no item in the bill that is more justifiable or that will be of more assistance to the people generally than the $14,000,000 for vocational education."

Johnson said Congress had appropriated funds to carry out provisions of the George-Deen vocational education act of last year.

It authorizes appropriations of nearly $15,000,000 a year, including $12,000,000 to match State funds for instruction in agricultural, home economics and trade and industrial subjects.

Building Work to Start On Antietam Grounds

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Aug. 10.—Work will start next week on setting up first-aid stations and the construction of a number of comfort stations on the National Antietam Exposition Grounds here and on the Antietam Battlefield, where 50,000 persons are expected during the celebration here next month.

Text of Roosevelt's Interior Bill Message

I have, with much reluctance, affixed my signature to H. R. 6958, the appropriation bill for the Department of the Interior for the fiscal year 1938. The principal item of difficulty was the appropriation of nearly $14,500,000 for the further development of vocational education—$10,000,000 more than the estimate of the Bureau of the Budget which I presented to Congress.

I recognize that a sound program of vocational education is greatly needed in the United States, but an appropriation at this time of the full amount authorized under the Act of June 8, 1936, known as the George-Deen act, is not the way to meet this need.

On September 19, I appointed an advisory committee to study the experience under the existing program of Federal aid for vocational education, the relation of such training to other forms of education and to prevailing economic and social conditions, and the extent of the need for an expanded program. At that time I called the attention of the committee specifically to H. R. 12120, the George-Deen act, and requested the committee to study and report on the present need for an enlarged program as provided for in that act.

The committee has since been at work in accordance with those instructions. The necessary studies were planned and a staff of qualified personnel was employed. Information was obtained from the United States Office of Education, the Federal Committee on Apprentice Training, and several other Federal agencies. Further information was secured from officials administering vocational education and other forms of education in the several States and in many localities, and from a large body of citizens interested in the development of a sound program of education.

The committee conducted a total of 19 days of conferences at Nashville, New Orleans, Chicago, New York and Washington. At these conferences the views were obtained of a large number of educational research workers and administrators, public officials, agriculturalists, industrialists, economists, merchants, personnel directors, representatives of labor and other interested citizens.

The present session of Congress has witnessed the introduction of a large number of bills concerned with educational matters which would greatly increase the permanent financial obligations of the Federal Government. It seemed highly desirable to me that careful study be given the problems involved in these and other proposals with respect to public education. Accordingly, on April 19, I requested the committee that I had appointed to give more extended consideration to the whole subject of Federal relationship to State and local conduct of education. The enlarged assignment of the committee will be completed in time for consideration early next winter.

The committee points out that the training of the personnel necessary for extension and improvement of vocational education is a problem of the first importance. It also finds that readjustments to make possible a considerable expansion and improvement in the training of teachers can be made in most of the States under current appropriations. The fact cannot be overlooked, however, that the teacher personnel is not now available in most of the States to staff enlarged programs of vocational education unless certification standards are materially reduced and teachers are employed who are not well qualified. In many instances vocational education is already suffering from poorly equipped teachers, and it would be a grave mistake to dilute the standards of teaching still further.

The committee has pointed out that the basis for the distribution of funds among the States as provided for in the vocational education statutes, including the George-Deen act, tends in many cases to increase rather than to decrease inequalities in educational opportunity. These increased inequalities arise from the operation of the State minimum allotments and from the matching provisions. They arise also from the difficulties encountered in attempts to administer a vocational program in small rural high schools. The areas most in need of aid are frequently the ones least able to meet the matching and other qualifying provisions.

It should be pointed out that Federal funds spent for the promotion of vocational education under the Smith-Hughes and related statutes are by no means the only Federal appropriations to provide vocational training for the youth of the Nation. During the past four years the problem has been dealt with in many ways. The Civilian Conservation Corps, the Works Progress Administration and the National Youth Administration are among the newer agencies which have been concerned with problems of vocational training. The Congress of the United States has already appropriated substantial amounts to these agencies for activities designed to train for useful employment. The educational programs of these and other Federal agencies, old and new, are now being studied.

It would be premature to launch a greatly expanded program in certain fields of vocational education before the report and recommendations of the committee studying these problems are available for consideration. It is, in fact, of the utmost importance that action should await the committee's findings, for at the present time the necessary statistical studies for planning economically sound programs of vocational education do not exist.

Much of the apparent demand for the immediate extension of the vocational education program under the George-Deen act appears to have been stimulated by an active lobby of vocational teachers, supervisors and administrative officers in the field of vocational education, who are interested in the emoluments paid in part from Federal funds. It is not without significance that in the course of the debates on this appropriation, members of both Houses of Congress referred to the pressure exerted upon them by groups actively lobbying in behalf of the full appropriation. Evidence was read into the records of the debates in both Houses indicating that much of the impetus behind this movement emanated from a single, interested source.

A considerable number of educators interested in general education, many representatives of organized labor, and a large group of employers are profoundly dissatisfied with the results of vocational education under the existing set-up, and have repeatedly urged that there be no further expansion of vocational education pending the report of the committee on the whole Federal program of participation in education.

The advisory committee on education reports that it is unanimous in the recommendation that financial support by the Federal Government for the types of vocational education now receiving support should be continued without curtailment during the coming fiscal year. It is not in favor of the enlargement of Federal support of vocational education until consideration has been given to the whole subject of Federal relations to State and local conduct of education of all types.

In view of the above, it is clear that I would be subject to censure if any of the $14,483,000 appropriated in this act for vocational training were spent inefficiently or individually. The Congress having appropriated the money to the extent of $10,000,000 more than was recommended, I will, therefore, carry out what is obviously the intention of the Congress—that as much of the total sum shall be expended during the current fiscal year as can properly and usefully be spent—no more and no less.

GETTIN' THE BUSINESS

means giving the mileage

It's strictly up to me to make this business go, because I own it myself. I never did a smarter thing for my place than featuring Conoco Germ Processed oil, with all its long mileage for you. We both know that talk doesn't make mileage or customers, but I can tell you what does . . . Oil-Plating your engine with Germ Processed oil. The patent Germ Process makes oil actually take ahold of every working part and keep it coated with a durable Oil-Plating. This Oil-Plating is entirely extra to the regular so-called moving type of oil film. Oil-Plating backs up the oil film while the car is running, and never drains down during hours of parking. Then you'll never make one start—or a hundred—without good lubrication. And at the end of your longest run on a scorching hot day, your engine will still have its full safe plating of Conoco Germ Processed oil. The way it lasts will make you say I've got a good right to be called Your Mileage Merchant.

No Saloons For Washington.

Considered by itself, the proposal to permit the serving of hard liquor at District bars seemed reasonable enough. Prohibition having been repealed, why quibble over restrictions on drinking? But this viewpoint is not tenable when the history of repeal is remembered.

Many who voted for prohibition did so at a considerable sacrifice to their personal philosophies, to say nothing of their personal tastes. Their sincere hope was to bring an end to the old-time saloon, the Monday morning hang-over and all the other unhappy adjuncts of alcoholic debauchery. In this hope, however, they were greatly disappointed. Within a few months after the signing of the eighteenth amendment, drinking began again with a new viciousness. The speakeasy and bootlegger appeared and it was not long before the magnitude of the mistake became generally admitted.

Ultimately, the amendment was repealed. Many of those who voted for repeal, however, had the distinct understanding that nothing like the old era would be restored. Specifically, they assumed that the saloon would never return. Its frequently unwholesome atmosphere, its seductive influence for overindulgence, its open invitation for "a quick one" were all unwanted. Yet to permit the serving of spirits at bars would have been tantamount to a re-establishment of the saloon in the District, notwithstanding the "lunch counter" phrases in the bill.

There was a further point against the proposal happily defeated by the House yesterday. Washington is the Capital of the Nation. As President Roosevelt pointed out at the time of repeal, it should therefore set a high standard for the rest of the country. Whether or not the present standard is high enough it would certainly have been lowered by the "lunch counter" drinking proposal.

The Up-To-Date Eighties.

All the world loves a lover and honeymoons have ever been popular in fiction. But few artificial plots could have more appeal than the current expedition of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Summerfield, of Brooklyn, who have just retraced their wedding trip for the fifty-third time.

There is assurance for the belief that life begins at 40 in a glance at a photograph of the Summerfields, now aged 84 and 77. At someone's suggestion, they are making the ocean trip from New York to Norfolk in their original wedding outfits of 1884. Mr. Summerfield is quite the dandy in bowler hat, shoestring tie, Prince Albert coat and heavy watch chain. His bride's hair, now snow-white, peeps out from under a tiny bonnet and her silk dress, heavy with frogs and embroidery, has a waistline which would put Scarlett's to shame.

Today's bridegroom, amused by the Summerfields' quaint idea, is likely to find that he who laughs first is just an ignoramus so far as styles go. For if his wife follows the latest mode, she will not be far behind Mrs. Summerfield. It was not over a couple of issues back that Vogue upheld the chic of "laced-in-back corselets," bouffant taffetas with "wasp waist lines," and "lapels trimmed with Victorian pink." It would be hard to find a better description of a wedding dress, vintage 1884.

'You Old Turkey Buzzard!'

Some of these days, it may be, man will be so constituted as to be able to eat anything and thrive on it. He will cease to have unhappy allergic reactions to foods, odors and contacts. For he will be chockful of antibodies that know their business and propose to attend to it.

Important steps in that direction have already been taken. Science has not yet wholly mastered asthma, for instance, but it has definitely pointed out how asthma may be avoided in many cases. A skin test tells the asthmatics what to shun. Even hay feverites begin to have a little hope. The day may come when we'll know a race wholly free from sneezes and wheezes and when a small boy may eat his fill of green apples with no subsequent tummy disturbance.

At least, that is the hope of a Richmond doctor who, with a Philadelphia colleague, has been searching for years for a preparation to prevent necrosis of the liver. They believe the livers of hogs and buzzards contain a powerful detoxifying substance which enables the critters to eat poisonous material without harm. Just let the doctors get hold of that substance, and fix it so that man can use it to his own advantage, and the morning after will have all the joyousness of the night before.

Aye, in the happy days to come to "feel on the hog" will be to feel fine and "You old turkey buzzard" will be more than ever a term of affection.

The Lack Of Self-Restraint.

There is much evidence to confirm the viewpoint of those who believe that the chief danger to modern civilization lies in an unspectacular disintegration rather than in another world war. Current events in both Spain and China provide cases in point.

As the Spanish civil war drags out its thirteenth month it becomes increasingly apparent that conflicts of principle, so far as they were ever present, are being subordinated to mere lust for authority within the contending factions. This is indicated by the character of the internal difficulties which now beset both the governmental and the insurgent forces.

Cleavages within the loyalist ranks can no longer be concealed. The anarchists, headed by former Premier Caballero, are at swords points with the more moderate groups supporting the Negrin cabinet. But this threat to the stability of the Valencia regime is offset by the difficulties within the insurgent camp. Here there are continuous reports of mutinous outbursts, and of extreme tension between the Spanish Fascists and their Italian and German associates.

It seems quite possible, therefore, that a complete disintegration in Spain is far more likely than a spread of the civil war beyond the confines of that country. Should the government gain ground, its extremist supporters are likely to demand the establishment of a dictatorial proletarian state. If the rebels advance it will become more clear that their obligations are not to the Spanish people, but to their calculating and masterful Italo-German allies. In neither case are the prospects for eventual stability promising.

The situation in China is somewhat analagous. There Japan is engaged not so much in waging large-scale warfare as in deliberately breaking down such internal unity and national cohesion as the Nanking government has been able to develop. The obvious intention is to substitute an unrestrained Japanese authority for that which is natural and acceptable to the Chinese people. Quite possibly this could be done without very serious hostilities. But that does not make the long-range prospects for peaceful development in China any more encouraging.

The tendency toward the imposition of an unrestrained dictatorial will on dissenting groups is equally apparent in large areas where there is no war. In Russia, in Germany, in Italy and in lesser authoritarian states, the whole power of government is directed to the crushing of the critical faculty and the enslavement of all minority opinion. The best that can be said for such development is that it has been encouraged by a lack of self-discipline among certain groups within the state.

To a greater extent than is generally realized mankind is turning to the arbitrament of force in all differences of opinion, and to the development of arbitrary controls designed to keep dissenters in subjection without regard to the constructive factors which frequently prompt dissent. Such a tendency is the very negation of the democratic principle, and may easily result in the progressive destruction of that principle even without a war to speed the process.

There are, fortunately, numerous signs that the implications of the dictatorial trend are well understood in this country. The American people seem disposed resolutely to set their face in the opposite direction, toward the preservation rather than the destruction of democratic principles. We favor the imposition of self-restaint rather than the encouragement of restraint from above.

One of the most interesting, and significant, of these signs was the statement of American foreign policy issued by Secretary Hull on July 16, enunciating 14 general principles for the maintenance and stabilization of peace. Perhaps the most important of all these vital principles was that stating, in behalf of the Government of the United States, that "we advocate national and international self-restraint."

More than two score nations, a list in which the absentees are as striking as those recorded, have already expressed their formal approval of this notable statement. The reception should encourage Secretary Hull to further action in behalf of moral leadership in a demoralized world. For lacking such positive action, from some authoritative source, the forces of disintegration may well achieve a headway which civilization will not be strong enough to resist.

Airport Progress.

At last a constructive move has been made in Washington's airport puzzle. Arlington County has agreed to close Military road which, bisecting the airport, has been a principal hazard at the field. Presuming quick Congressional approval for the deal, the city should be able to offer reasonably safe landing facilities to its air traffic. With the road barred, landing and take-off runways can be considerably lengthened.

This does not entirely solve the airport puzzle, however. In fact many of the factors remain as confused as ever. The airport commission's recommendation for a permanent air terminal at Camp Springs, Md., is blocked by the Navy Department's objection to flying near its Cheltenham radio station. Moreover, there is considerable local criticism of an airport located so far from the center of the city.

At least one member of the commission refused to approve the Camp Springs proposal, holding out rather for extensive improvements at the present airport which would include abolition of part of the experimental farm on one edge of the field and filling in the lagoon on the other. Finally, the dredgers have been building up Gravelly Point, while proponents of the Benning race track as another site for a landing field have by no means given up their fight.

If the new development does not make the present airport generally acceptable the best advice would seem to be to wipe the slate clean and begin over again. Let one more final airport commission be appointed—whether by Congress from among its members or by the President from among outside experts seems of secondary importance. Let its first meeting be called as soon as Congress adjourns. Let schedules be drawn for immediate hearings, open to all.

Every interested party could then present its viewpoint. And the public, not only in Washington but throughout the country, would know all the factors and all the evidence on which final decision would be based.

Bad Legislative Procedure.

After being virtually rewritten by the Committee on Education and Labor, the wages-and-hours bill was extensively amended from the floor before it passed the Senate. All the sections relating to child labor, for instance, were replaced by the so-called Wheeler-Johnson amendments, designed to prevent or discourage interstate shipment of products of child labor.

The House Committee on Labor has now added to the confusion created by this hasty revision. It suggests no less than 59 modifications of the Senate bill. Among the most important changes proposed is the restoration of the original child-labor proposals, giving the Children's Bureau extensive discretionary powers of regulation.

The closing days of the session clearly ought not to be employed in frantic divergent efforts to whip such important and intricate regulatory measures into shape for passage. Major differences should have been compromised long ago, in committee rooms and in informal consultation between leaders of the House and Senate. Haste has encouraged bad legislative procedure, and is largely responsible for a lack of agreement which casts serious doubt on the basic desirability of the legislation.

Of course there should always be opportunity for full and free debate on all important legislative measures. But that does not justify reporting out bills in a form which subjects them to a destructive barrage of amendments. If any major revisions are supported by a large body of legislators, they should be either voted down in committee or incorporated in the legislative program. Otherwise a coherent program may be utterly destroyed by amendments from the floor.

Much of our present-day legislation is so complex, and so difficult to analyze at best, that it ought never to be radically revised in the course of a free-for-all debate. Whenever an irreconcilable conflict of views arises, which can only be settled on the floor, the issues should certainly be made clear by allowing ample time for thorough examination of the principles involved.

Congressional irresponsibility may take two forms. It may result in rubber-stamp acceptance of ready-made legislative programs indorsed by the Chief Executive. Or it may grow out of too much interference with legislative programs by individual Congressmen. Either extreme is pernicious. What is needed is a middle-of-the-road policy that preserves legislative independence without encouraging individual license.

To that end a full and complete airing of conflicting opinions before the proper committees should be encouraged and the bills reported out should embody the matured opinions of a supporting majority. The time given to consideration of the controversial wages-and-hours bill has evidently been too short to effect a composition of divergent views by such means. The result is almost certain to be last-minute adjustments satisfactory to nobody.

Indeed, judging from the strong opposition that has crystallized in the House, it seems probable that with more time for deliberation the wages-and-hours bill would never have progressed as far as it has toward passage.

Dictators' Habits Exemplary.

Charles W. Ferguson in Harper's.

It is a matter of record that those weird firebrands who guide the destiny of peoples today, and the lesser fanatics who would follow their train if opportunity allowed, are without exception men of exemplary personal habits. Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini are models of sobriety, not to mention the sour Trotsky, alienated by circumstances and exiled by rivals, but not by ineligibility, or the lamented Lenin.

Hitler eats no meats, does not drink, does not smoke. To these suffocating virtues he adds the further and more notable virtue of continence. Trotsky in the fastness of his Mexican holdout allows himself meat twice a week and is content with a hurried businessman's lunch of fruit, macaroni, a single vegetable, and a light dessert. He does not drink. Mussolini is more of a horse in his eating, but he abstains with grim fortitude from spirituous liquors, now and then taking only a tantalizing glass of light wine—but nothing which might seriously interfere with such high matters as the subjugation of an inferior people. Stalin lives frugally in a three-room apartment, dresses inconspicuously and in self-effacing taste, eats frightfully simple meals, and sips brandy like a connoisseur.

The average salary of European dictators is $426 month. Hitler will accept no pay, and Mussolini and Stalin get along on annual stipends of $5,250 and $3,000, respectively. The whole lot exemplify that noble thrift which is identified with clean living.

Twisting China's Tail.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Due to the speedy advancement of its people in social and economic affairs Japan is forced to find an outlet for its surplus production and population, hence the recent acquisition of the puppet state of Manchukuo. She is now determined to partition another slice of the rich region to the southwest, setting her desires on the five provinces of North China.

It stands to reason that the Tokyo government is in accord and possibly connected by some secret treaty with the Reich, but it is generally conceded, regardless of its recent military display, that the Berlin government is in no position to lend a hand at this time. Economically Germany is much worse off today than she was before the war, and it is possible that an international conflict of major size would throw her into social, economic and political degradation.

Japan is also confronted in her recent attempt at territorial expansion by the unfriendly attitude of the fast-stepping Soviet Union. Any bout at this time between these two great powers would have a disastrous effect on the world at large, not to mention the probable defeat handed the Japanese by this great and resourceful nation.

It is the opinion of the writer, therefore, that for the sake of self-sufficiency it is the logical step for Japan to retract her present policy and guarantee the territorial integrity of the Chinese people. If she continues her fruitless escapade of teasing and twisting the dragon's tail, the dragon is bound to roar its revenge, and there is little doubt but what this roar will echo its vengeance around the globe.

In The Sunday Post.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I have been reading with great interest Joseph Reed's articles, "Last Week—a Hundred Years Ago," in The Post on Sundays. I wish to commend The Post for this novel venture in the journalistic field.

Although a newspaper is primarily for the intellectual consumption of present-day items, the past still has its right to existence. History is a service to life. Direction and meaning of historical thought, construction and organization of a true picture of the past are delineated out of the problems and exigencies of the present. All creative life is in need above all, as an antidote for discouragement and resignation, of faith that eminence and greatness are possible. History is the proof that eminence and greatness have existed at one time, and the active and striving life finds in history the prototypal incentive and encouragement, which qualities are of such paramount importance in our present-day social and economic chaos.

The quality of these articles is such that they deserve widespread circulation also in other cities in order to disseminate such valuable and interesting information among our citizenry.

West Potomac Links.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Permit me to join "Amateur Golfer" in The Post of August 5, in condemning the destruction of the golf course in West Potomac Park for the Boy Scout jamboree.

I felt at the time this outrage was perpetrated that it was only a subterfuge to get rid of the little course altogether. Hundreds of people of all ages spent thousands of happy hours there, but such a place could only be an eyesore to the jaundiced minds who could plan such a monstrosity as the proposed shrine to the memory of Thomas Jefferson (and the glory and profit of the concrete trust).

I hope "Amateur Golfer" and many more like him will do all they can to have this little course restored.

Cause Of Assaults?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In all the sickening accounts of young girls and children being kidnaped and assaulted, the writer has never seen any mention of the following act. What do parents expect when they send into the streets and by-ways girls at the period of adolescence with no covering for the body but something not much more than a lion cloth?

In the opinion of the writer this is primarily the cause of the alarming and dreadful increase in cases of assault, child marriages, etc. Parents declare that it is "healthy" not to wear clothes. There is a health of the mind which is more important than a health of body. Moreover, a light and decent garment is just as cool and healthful as the present outrageous exhibition of nakedness.

Two Views On Picketing Embassies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In The Post of August 9 an editorial condemns the practice of picketing foreign embasssies as a method of public condemnation of foreign governments and offers instead that "public condemnation of the action of other governments should be directed to our own (government) with a view to sending unwelcome envoys home if, as and when the provocation is sufficient."

Elsewhere in the editorial there is the implication that peaceful picketing "has several times come close to arousing serious complications." One statement cancels the other, for what would come closer to arousing "serious complications" than the direct insult which would be occasioned by sending an unwelcome envoy home.

Primarily the fault does not lie in the envoy but in the government which he represents. Those who picket do not intend nor do they condemn the envoy as an individual or as a representative of his government. Rather, it is a highly effective method of registering a complaint with the envoy against his government's policies or actions. A complaint that is the more effective because it is public and brings the attention of a non-informed people to the situation much in the same manner as an open letter.

JOHN R. CARROLL.
Washington, Aug. 9.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Please permit me to commend your editorial "A Cheap and Vicious Practice," in The Post of August 9.

Picketing of embassies and legations by communistic-minded Americans, showing their ill-feeling against certain laws passed in the foreign representative's homeland, is insulting, to say the least.

The old adages, "Mind your own business," and "Always sweep in front of your own door," still hold good in these modern days. Neither should we forget the Golden Rule. Some of us may remember the bad feeling aroused here some years ago when our embassy in Rome was picketed because two supposed Italians were convicted of murdering and robbing a paymaster in New England, showing that certain foreigners were trying to interfere with the laws of our land.

As all foreign government representatives here are our guests we should certainly show them all courtesies due from a civilized people to all friendly nations.

The sooner this pernicious picketing is abolished the better for all concerned.

Indian's Plaint.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Senators Wheeler and Frazier have introduced a bill to repeal the Wheeler-Howard Indian re-organization act, enacted by Congress June 18, 1934, for self-government among the Indian tribes throughout the United States.

We came on from Oneida, Wis., to appear before the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs and testify on the report of the present Commissioner of Indian Affairs as transmitted to the President. As found in the annual report of the Secretary of the Interior for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1935, it reads that "the long period of exploitation of the American Indian has ended. The Wheeler-Howard act made mandatory a complete change in Indian policy."

This report, in so far as it concerns the Oneida Indians of Wisconsin, is absolutely and wholly incorrect. It is intended to pull the wool over the President's eyes to perpetuate the Indian Bureau.

With full knowledge of the legal status of the Oneida Indians, the Indian Bureau as of old is permitting the unlawful confiscation of their lands by mortgage foreclosures and tax deeds, contrary to the special constitutional restrictions on alienation of the Six Nation Indian lands which other tribes of Indians throughout the United States do not have.

The Indian re-organization act is vicious, detrimental and injurious to the Indians, as it gives the Indian Bureau absolute and arbitrary powers over us. The act will take from us the last bit of the finest farming lands in the country we are still holding, and will leave us worse off than ever.

The Court Debate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Congress passed an act permitting justices of the Supreme Court to retire on a pension upon reaching a certain age. There seems to be no question as to the authority of Congress to pass such an act. Acceptance by a qualified justice of the terms of the act is resignation, and no reasonable tribunal would decide otherwise, despite the opinion of the learned Senator from Idaho, who is so volubly supported by your contributor, Mr. John Spargo.

Mr. Spargo states that no vacancy exists but that the President could appoint an additional justice to the nine that he says now compose the Court, subject to confirmation. If the President could appoint one additional judge, why not six as provided by the "Court plan" now shelved? The President should have had Mr. Spargo's advice before he proposed legislation to increase the members of the tribunal.

CHARLES J. PIERCE.
Washington, Aug. 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Your editorial, "Reviving the Court Fight," in The Post of August 4 seems to overlook some of the implications of the suggested vacation appointment, when you refer to the opposition that it would arouse to subsequent confirmation by the Senate. Is there any reason why the appointee could not be continued in office as long as the President desires by a succession of interim appointments without ever having to stand for confirmation by the Senate?

Excursion Boat Lunches.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Why pollute our beautiful Potomac with remnants from lunches thrown from excursion boats? When enjoying a ride mid-stream, five or ten miles from shore, it is hard to realize that debris can be washed ashore and be in the way of hundreds of persons cooling off by refreshing dips and swims.

If any Post readers have experienced paper cups, napkins, orange peel and what-not brush against their faces while in the water they will realize how this condition can become most annoying.

From Editor To Dictator

THE medical student, editor and Latin-American politician, called by Richard Harding Davis "America's real soldier of fortune," is little known in his native land. And it is strange that in this age of hero worship, such utter disregard should remain the lot of a figure which is at once the most picturesque and romantic in our colorful annals.

William Walker, the "Gray-eyed Man of Destiny," was born May 8, 1824, in Tennessee's hill-crowned capital.

Of the many famous men who have lived in Nashville, not one, it is believed, had so bizarre and spectacular a career as did William Walker. He was a student, a doctor, a traveler in Europe, a newspaper man, a lawyer, a colonist, a military man, a president at two different times of two different republics, a statesman, a filibusterer, and yet he died at the age of 36. His father, James Walker, was a Scotchman, at first a merchant, then president of the Commercial Insurance Co. His mother's family name was Norvell, probably Scotch also.

Gen. Walker was graduated from the University of Nashville in 1836, and from the Medical College of the University of Philadelphia in 1843. After traveling through Europe where he studied at both Edinburgh and Heidelberg, he became an editor in New Orleans. In 1850 he proceeded to Lower California where he fitted out a colonizing expedition to Sonora, Mexico, which was not successful.

Then he was instrumental in engineering a revolution which made that state an independent republic. Here for a while, things went merrily enough, but soon the province was overrun by Mexican armies, and the Republic of Lower California ceased to exist. Walker, manifesting a keen appreciation of the position of the Emperor Maximilian, took precaution that he should be numbered among the fortunate who survived to tell the tale. Mobile offered a safe refuge and he hastened to enjoy its advantages.

Here he again pursued a career of journalism with success. But the lure of empire-building was in his blood, and he spent his leisure hours watching the waters of Mobile Bay which were plowed with an endless succession of ships from the ports of the Latin republics he loved so well. He next prepared his famous movement into Nicaragua. Long before his arrival among them, the Nicaraguans had a superstition that their country would be freed from oppression by a gray-eyed man. So when his expedition arrived in 1855, having been invited by the democrats of the City of Leon to assist them against the aristocrats of Grenada, he was greeted with wild acclaim. After a short, but sufficiently effective campaign, he captured Grenada, the capital, and proclaimed a provisional government.

* * *

Walker was made commander in chief of the army, and on July 12, 1856, he was elected president of the Republic of Nicaragua. Whereupon the new government was recognized by every country in Europe, but not by the United States, and he was antagonized by the four other Central American states. With an army of 200 he had seized Nicaragua, and with this same army he defeated coalition after coalition of these states, whose desire to be rid of him was exceedingly augmented by capital and munitions supplied by certain foreign groups, which had learned to their undying astonishment that Walker was one who had no price.

Eventually he was forced to capitulate to the armies of these antagonistic states, who, with the assistance of Capt. Davis, of the United States Navy, compelled his surrender and withdrawal. He surrendered to a vastly superior force and beat a hasty retreat to New Orleans.

Undaunted, he fitted out two more expeditions, each of which was successively crushed. Then, in 1860, he took his chosen country by surprise, and regained all that he had lost. He passed numerous much-needed reforms, put his army on a modern basis, and was in a fair way of building a powerful Central American state.

He was acclaimed a second Simon Bolivar, so strong was his arm, so far-reaching his vision, and so determined were his methods But against the Spanish method he was defenseless. There was the clinking of a few pieces of gold, very stealthy and soft, but very effective, and he was betrayed. Ousted again, he made two other expeditions, on the last of which, directed at Nicaragua through Honduras, he found himself with a small force, confronted by the Hondurans on land and a British warship on the water. He surrendered to the British and was speedily delivered to the Hondurans. There was quick work at Truxillo one sun-drenched morning in September, 1860; six men, a walled courtyard, and all was over.

* * *

It has been said of Walker that he was "as calm as Lee, as earnest as Jackson, as tenacious as Grant," and no braver man ever took more desperate chances. In his life were "songs, sword-play and adventurings," a child's reaching for the sunset, an instinctive groping gesture for immortality. One man leading 200, taking, yes, and holding, even if for but a pitiful moment, a dream empire against the world. Here was a following after his own desire.

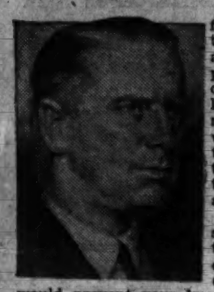
Fair Enough

By

Westbrook Pegler

Resigned To Golf.

AMONG THE SOUVENIRS of my futile search—though always earnest career—in golf is a little jewelry trick with which it was customary once upon a time to mold tees of sand.



Tees thus molded were firmer and higher than those made with the fingers, and this jewelry was supposed to cut several strokes off one's score. It didn't help me, however, and neither did the rubber tee with a small nest in which the golf ball reposed, nor the silver peg which was attached to a silver spike by a silver chain.

You stuck the peg and the spike into the ground, and the idea was that if you did hit the peg with your club the chain and spike would prevent your knocking it to hell and gone. The first time out with my silver chain outfit, however, I hit the peg a terrible lick, and, blam, away went the peg, chain and spike into a water hole—lost for good.

They were always getting up things that were going to save strokes. Another souvenir still around somewhere was a jewelry thing like a gold card of honorary life membership in the National Association of Deputy Game Wardens.

It was engraved with something like a rainbow, with numerals along the hump, and you were supposed to pull this out, squint through a hole in the middle, divide by two, and thus decide which iron club to use from where you were. This was something like artillery work, however, and as I am very bad at mathematics—see expense account—I made some bad miscalculations, used the wrong clubs and lost many strokes.

• • • •

MY ENTHUSIASM for golf has dissolved into resignation now, and I am able to smile over my striving and optimism with which I clutched at new inventions. Everybody was crazy then, and it seemed that most of the business in the country was done on the fairways of Swampy Meadow.

It was the "big shot" era, and a man had a sort of feeling that he was getting on in the world when he would meet casually in the locker room of a golf club over a quart highball glass, someone who was vice president of a big ball-bearing company which regularly advertised in color in the Saturday Evening Post.

You could pick up tips on the market or you might get invited out to some rich citizen's home, where there was a private bar completely stocked with stuff that he had brought in on his yacht.

Most of them have been cut down to size long since, and golf now is just a game that a few people play for fun if they can get time after scuffling for a living. It isn't much fun, though. On the contrary, it is a fascinating agony, for even the best of them are always moaning and bleeding internally over some putt that hung or an approach that took a bad hop into a quarry.

In the big shot days of golf a man had to dress up in a masquerade costume to distinguish himself from the hired help, who dressed like human beings. Bloomers, of course, were practically compulsory—usually those enormous, double-breasted square-riggers, tweedy and garish, which called for long ribald stockings preferably with tassels.

There was a period along about the time when Carnarvon was ghouling around in Tut-ankh-Amen's grave when the golf customers came out with a line of sweaters adorned with picture-writing, and, to make matters worse, the stylish hat for these ensembles was a cross between the French beret and the Tam o' Shanter.

These were supposed to take strokes off your game, too, and so were the golf shoes which had fringes on the tongues and spikes set a certain way. Most of the old Scotch pros viewed all this with quiet disgust, but the young American pros who were coming along, Italian and Irish ex-caddies, mostly thought these effects were the nuts. They used to compete every year for the title of best-dressed pro which was conferred by some clothing company.

• • • •

IT WAS FUNNY about the spikes. They were intended to keep the feet firmly planted for the pivot, but sometimes they anchored a man so fast that he would pull his spine out of joint and spend six months in a casing of poured concrete in some hospital.

Once some pro working for a company that manufactured golf tools hit upon the idea of marking a circle in the middle of the blades of the irons. This was called the beauty spot, or something similar, and the plot was that if you hit the ball right on the beauty spot it would sail in a beautiful arching flight, whistling that delicious fuzzy sound that golfers dream of, and drop right on the pin. But the trick was to hit the ball with the spot, and I was just as bad off as before.

I have had lessons, too, but nothing ever did any good. Nothing ever will. If I had any manhood I would give all my tackle to some kid, but I suppose my widow will be the one to do it when I am gone.

Disguised Tariffs

Eclipse Of G. O. P. Marked Beginning Of "Excise" And "Processing Tax" Camouflage; Barkley Supported Coal Protection.

By Herbert M. Bratter,

Special Correspondence of The Post.

A ROSE by any other name is just as sweet, and a tariff is a tariff regardless of what it may be called. Since 1932, when the device was first employed, there have been increasing efforts by Congressmen representing interests identified with particular commodities to obtain the enactment of virtual protective tariffs under the name "excise tax" or "processing tax."

Indicative of the popularity of this disguised form of import tax is the following partial list of products named in different excise-tax bills introduced in the current session of Congress: Bread, eggs and egg products, beef products, tapioca, sago and cassava, cashew nuts, electrical energy, copper, fuel oil, wood pulp and pulpwood, soy bean oil, sodium products, fish meal and scrap and petroleum.

Device Has Advantage Of Avoiding Long Debate.

SUCH CAMOUFLAGED tariffs have the particular advantage that their passage is not contingent upon lengthy and heated public hearings or discussion, as in the case of the usual prolonged tariff procedure. Secondly, they are not reducible or adjustable by executive action, as are ordinary import duties under the provisions of the tariff act of 1930. Finally, it has been found politically possible in Congress to tack them on to important revenue bills at the last minute, thus making their elimination by veto practically impossible.

The interesting feature about this type of taxation is that it blossomed precisely with the Republicans' loss of power in Congress and has flourished under the rule of the very Democratic Party which, traditionally, is supposed to represent low tariffs and which under Secretary Hull's leadership, is making strenuous and commendable efforts to loosen the barriers to international trade.

In this country the word "excise" since long before Shay's Rebellion indicated duties on articles of home manufacture as distinct from customs duties. A tax on gasoline, on cigarettes, or on whisky is an excise tax. Such a tax, almost without exception, is passed on to the ultimate consumer. Its purpose is to raise revenue, and with such an object it has a very definite place in public finances. Over the income tax, for example, as a revenue source in times of declining business activity it possesses certain clear advantages.

Protection Of Trade Is Design Behind Taxes.

BUT THE PURPOSE of the import excise taxes on coal, petroleum, lumber, copper, and various oils and fats—the domestic production of all of which is not subject to a corresponding tax—is not to raise revenue. It is to keep those products out of our import trade. In this regard they have naturally tended to be successful, although evidence thereon is not uniformly available.

In the case of crude petroleum, imports were $39,220,000 in the year prior to the imposition of the excise tax on them and $17,700,000 in the year following. Gasoline and other light oil products imported similarly declined from $35,100,000 to $223,000; whale oil—which pays a processing tax—from $2,400,000 to $604,000, etc. The processing taxes levied on various oils and oil-bearing substances not produced in this country are quite similar in purpose to the excise import taxes.

An interesting example of excise-tax technique in Congress is the 3-cent-per-pound processing tax levied on Philippine coconut oil in 1934. This tax was included in the revenue bill of that year, thus making it practically impossible for the President to secure its exclusion without a veto of the entire bill. Because the tax was a direct violation of the Philippine independence act previously passed by Congress, President Roosevelt addressed a special request to Congress to repeal the tax. Hence it was later provided to turn over the funds collected on Philippine oil to the island government, subject to certain restrictions as to their use.

Another example is the import excise tax on copper. Prior to the passage of this particular tax, the Tariff Commission had determined that the difference in the cost of producing copper here and abroad ranged from 0.24 cents to 1.42 cents. Yet the excise tax of 4 cents per pound was passed.

Alliance In Congress Put Through 1932 Levies.

THE IMPORT EXCISE taxes on coal, petroleum, lumber and copper went into effect in June, 1932. For years previously those interested in these domestic products had unsuccessfully sought to obtain import duties on them. By combining their forces, however, and concentrating on excises rather than tariffs, the Congressmen concerned were able to attain their ends. Among those who participated in this maneuver were Senator Barkley, from coal-producing Kentucky, and Senators Hayden, Vandenburg and Wheeler, all from copper-producing States.

Although originally designated to expire in two years, these taxes have since been extended several times and now run until 1939. At the time of the 1932 Democratic convention it was debated whether Senator Barkley, because of his activity in connection with such un-Democratic taxes, should be selected as "keynoter." Had he not been selected, he might not today be Administration leader in the Senate.

Since import excise taxes and processing taxes on imported vegetable oils and fats are designed primarily to keep the products concerned out of the country, it is not to be expected that they should form a particularly prominent part of the Treasury's revenues. Actually such collections in 1936 constituted about 10 per cent of gross revenue from tariff duties, or $40,631,000 out of $400,558,000. The sum of $17,411,000, however, was earmarked for the Philippine government, in accordance with the provision described above.

Disguised tariffs in the form of excise and processing taxes are in conflict with the general aims of the present Administration. As revenue producers they are not particularly important. Their elimination, however, will be politically difficult to accomplish.

D. C. Pays $697,999 In U.S. Motor Tax

Motorists of the District of Columbia paid $697,999 in Federal taxes on motor fuels and lubricants in the first six months of 1937, it was reported yesterday by H. L. Allen, vice president of the District of Columbia Petroleum Industires Committee.

This amount constitutes an increase of 20.6 per cent over the same period last year. Allen stated that he had reported these figures 'so that the motorists of the District will know how much Federal taxes are costing them in addition to the gasoline sales taxes, registration fees, and other special additional levies they pay to the District."

"About 90 per cent of this Federal tax bill of $697,000," he said "represents Federal receipts from the tax on gasoline, which duplicates the gasoline tax levied by the District of Columbia . . . these Federal taxes are taking money out of the District that better could be used right here at home, and it is time this injustice was ended by their repeal."

British Army to Remedy Its Lack of Sex Appeal

London, Aug. 10 (AP).—The British army set out today to do something about its lack of sex appeal.

Powers behind the recruiting service, which needs thousands of just plain soldiers, admitted frankly the navy and air corps had been more successful in getting men because "they have more appeal for the girls."

Pensions instead of "it" seemed to be the answer.

The war office announced today a series of improvements in conditions for soldiers.

Daniels Will Dedicate U. S. Naval Memorial

By the Associated Press.

The American Battle Monuments Commission announced yesterday the Ambassador to Mexico, Josephus Daniels, will make the principal address dedicating the American Naval Memorial at Brest, France, Thursday.

Mr. Daniels, Secretary of the Navy during the World War, will lead the dedication in the presence of a group of distinguished persons representing the American and French governments.

Biggers May Get U. S. Post.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 10 (AP).—John D. Biggers, president of the Libbey-Ford-Owens Glass Co. was understood today to have been invited to Washington to discuss appointment to the Federal Communications Commission. He refused comment.

"Youth at the Wheel."

UNROMANTIC FACTS and figures—even at their best—often make for dull reading. But unromantic facts and figures, fashioned into an absorbing and instructive sketch of life and death on our Nation's highways, make for a bit of reading no one—be he motorist or pedestrian—can afford to ignore.

The timely book, "Youth at the Wheel," by John J. Floherty, is unromantic in every sense of the word. It contains hard, cold facts, describing in detail the major reasons behind a mounting, country-wide accident fatality toll.

But its factual side makes it none the less interesting. Mr. Floherty, after an apparent study of our ever-increasing traffic problem, has written a motoring guide book intended for youth.

"The safety of tomorrow," says Mr. Floherty, "is in the hands of boys and girls of today."

• • • •

AS WE LOOK at it, however, this book is not alone for youth. A study of its contents would be time well spent for the veteran as well the novice behind the wheel. It might even be a good idea for some of our so-called "traffic experts" to scan its pages.

Mr. Floherty has not stopped with a recital of accident statistics. True, he tells you that 38,000 American citizens met accident deaths during a recent year; that 1,000,000 citizens were injured and that resulting damage came close to the $3,000,000,000 mark.

Then he goes on to explain "what makes the wheels go 'round'" when you step on the starter of your car and loose half-a-hundred horsepower beneath the hood.

A driver, Mr. Floherty points out, may have an excellent traffic record. But he's not much of a driver if he doesn't know the difference between the choke and throttle.

• • • •

IN SIMPLE, understandable language, the author takes the auto engine apart, piece by piece, and describes the functions of each. He tells you (and we'll bet you didn't know) that 1,200,000 heavy explosions, each with a force of nearly two tons, occur under the hood of your car during a two-hour period of driving.

He tells you what the cylinders do; what the ignition system is for; how the carburetor acts as a "mouth" to feed the engine; what parts of the car need constant attention and lubrication—in short he tells you everything there is to know about what drives an auto and how it should be driven.

Throughout 136 pages of Mr. Floherty's guide book appear diagrams and photographs, illustrating accident causes and necessary rules of the road. He has added other pages for notes and still others contain questions for reference.

• • • •

AS MANY AUTHORS of traffic subjects have done before him, Mr. Floherty devoted much time with police and safety officials while preparing his book. In the introduction, he says: "I wished many times that it were possible to have every one who drives a motor vehicle for pleasure or for a living to hear and see what I saw and heard. Some of it was gruesome; much of it was astounding. Everywhere I went I was conscious of a national carelessness that at times suggested a selfish disregard for life, limb and the rights of others."

Mr. Floherty places the blame for nearly every major traffic mishap directly on the shoulders of the driving public. Only with an increased knowledge of the automobile, its great power, its dangers and its potentialities as an instrument of death, he says, will the Nation have a degree of safety on its highways.

If the millions of those who are now driving cars are really interested in saving lives and promoting safety, let those millions read Mr. Floherty's book—and practice what they learn.

SOME STARTLING STATISTICS FROM "Youth at the Wheel:"

"During the 18 months that we were in the World War our losses were 50,475 killed and 234,300 wounded in combat; while in the 18 months including the year 1936 and the first six months of 1937, 55,000 Americans were killed on our streets and highways, and nearly 1,450,000 were injured.

"In other words our killing rate is about one person every 14 minutes, and we injure more than 30 in the same period.

"The total horsepower developed in the United States annually is 1,672,000,000. Of this, motor vehicles develop 1,425,000,000 horsepower or about 85 per cent of the total. This vast accumulation of power is placed in the hands of about 26,000,000 registered drivers giving each one about 90 horsepower to operate and take where he pleases although he may not know a piston from a crankshaft.

"A car traveling at 40 miles an hour moved 109 feet after the brakes were applied and the clutch disengaged. With the clutch engaged however, the same car traveling at the same speed was stopped in 72½ feet after the brakes were applied. This difference of 36½ feet might well save a car from a bad accident."

Book Ends

A NEW BOOK of poems, "Rowen", by Harold T. Pulsifer is being published next month by Houghton-Mifflin . . . Shortly after the appearance of his earlier book, Mr. Pulsifer received the following letter from Andre L. Simon, editor of Wine and Food . . . "I have just re-read some of your 'First Symphony' lines with so much pleasure that I make bold to write and ask you whether you could not tempt your Muse to give a poem of vinous or gastronomic interest to the readers of Wine and Food? Gold and silver I have none to offer, but I shall send you a case of really good wine in return and as a slight recognition of your poetical effusion as soon as I publish it" . . . Well, I've heard of food for thought, but never wine for thoughts . . . Port for poets, no?

I'M ALWAYS hearing about these women who write Pulitzer prize novels with 11 children, more or less, hanging to their apron strings . . . Now I have a book for sub-debs on my desk by Mrs. Bernie Babcock called "Little Dixie Devil" . . . Mrs. Babcock should know what girls like . . . She has three of her own and two sons, I believe . . . When her husband died years ago, she was mother all day to their children and at night, after tucking them in, she was an author from 11 until 4 in the morning . . . That's the kind of success story I go for . . .

• • • •

APPARENTLY all you have to do in Washington is shake a tree and watch the poets fall out . . . The latest in this every-growing crop is Henry R. Kissling, whose book, "The Hoosier's Log of Poems" is just out . . . You can't say Mr. Kissling isn't versatile . . . His subjects range from "Abraham Lincoln" to "Little Sins" . . .

When Postmaster General Jim Farley made his controversial statement regarding Sir Walter Raleigh in his dedication of the Arlington Postoffice on May 6, he really started something . . . The Representative from North Carolina felt that his State should be given credit for Sir Walter's landing there in 1585 . . . Dr. Matthew Page Andrews, in "Virginia, the Old Dominion," has a map showing the boundaries of Virginia under the grant of James I and Elizabeth's grant to Raleigh . . . And it begins to look as if the Postmaster General and the Representative are wrong, since Sir Walter Raleigh never landed in North America at all . . .

Tom McCarthy

He Likes The Mormons.

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 8.—I like the Mormons! I don't know the elements of their belief. I don't know of what their faith consists. My knowledge of their background is that of the muddled Easterner who knows, simply, that they were driven from place to place because of their practice of polygamy. But I like what they've done. I like those farms blossoming in a desert. I like the impress of their frugality and vision and individuality on virtually everything they've touched.

TOM McCARTHY.

A trip from the borders of Colorado to the chief city of Utah, on the Great Salt Lake, isn't merely a panorama of scenery. It's something alive and dramatic, teeming with the memories of a hundred people, pressing on through the country-side so forbidding that it would have turned back the crack legions of a Caesar.

The reference to Caesar isn't so out of place. When the Mormons, led by Brigham Young, filtered into that basin between the mountains which is now Salt Lake City, transportation hadn't improved much over the days of the Caesars, you'll wonder how—and then why—they ever came there, as you drive over what is now a national highway, from Colorado.

• • • •

YOUR FIRST IMPRESSION of the State can be summed up by the color red. From the Colorado line on into Utah, the countryside is a desolate, fierce maze of red canyons, red buttes, red rock and red clay. After that, comes the desert of scrub pine. For mile after mile, thousands of acres upon thousands of acres, a vast forest of scrub pine stretches out toward all horizons; useless, desolate, forbidding. After the scrub pines, come more mountains, more canyons and, as you near Salt Lake City, strips of farm land made fertile through irrigation attest the presence of the Mormons.

You are given no indication, as you drive along, that you are approaching a city of 200,000 people. You ascend ever higher into the mountains. You dip through canyons surmounted by rock walls and pine-covered slopes. Then, suddenly, you round a curve and Salt Lake City lies below you. There in a basin, of which the mountains are the rim, lies a city. A patchwork of fields stretch out toward its edge and, shining far to the West, is the Great Salt Lake.

You can readily imagine the feeling of those first Mormon pioneers in July of 1847, when they finally broke through the wilderness and gazed upon this, their promised land. Here, protected on three sides by the mountains and on the fourth by the lake, they settled down to work out their own peculiar culture. The finding of gold and precious metals in Utah disturbed their retreat, but they foreswore the easier money of mining and continued with their faith in the soil. This faith was rewarded in the rich farmlands which encompass their promised city, transformed from desert to garden by their unswerving determination.

You can't but admire a people like that, and you can find ample room for admiration. Salt Lake City is one of the most beautiful cities in the world, ringed as it is by the rugged peaks of the Wasatch range. It's a city of sparkling cleanness. Even the gutters of its streets constantly flow with cold spring water, brought down from the mountains.

• • • •

IF YOU WANT to get a good view of the city, and it is a city to be looked at, you can go up to the State Capitol. From there you can view neatly laid-out yards, the soaring spires of the Mormon Cathedral, and the fevered light which shimmers from the lake and the Great Salt flats 18 miles to the west.

While you're up there, you might take a look at the pioneer exhibit, housed in the Capitol. I never was much of a one for museums. On principle, I think I hold a fervent dislike for them; but that exhibit, culled from the stores of the early Mormons, will, I believe, actually thrill you. They've got a lot of pictures of the Mormon pioneers there, and they don't look at all like any comparable group I've ever seen.

There's not a stuffed shirt in the lot. They're people whose vitality actually leaps from the confines of the picture frames. Maybe they had unsung artists in their group, but I don't think they were that good. I don't think an artist could be solely responsible for those expressions.

The men? Well, they were hard-boiled looking boys. Every last one of them had a nose and a chin which didn't actually ask for trouble but definitely assured that they'd be there if anything broke. The women? In their pictures you can also see that pride, that unconquerable assuredness of spirit, and . . . overlooking the deficiencies of early-day photography and clumsy drawing . . . they're uniformly handsome. Not beautiful, mind you. But handsome, definitely.

Those pictures give you some insight into why the Mormons were able to take land that nobody else wanted and, with their own hands and an indestructible will, transform it into a garden spot.

Their movement is traced in some of the pictures they have up there on Capitol Hill and the contrast in faces is interesting. Joseph Smith, founder of the sect, is pictured as an esthetic young man, who might pass for one of the romantic poets. He's the man who climbed up a little hill outside of Palmyra, N. Y., and came down with a religion. He claimed to have had a vision on the hill, to have been given some golden plates, which gave him a new angle on Christianity.

• • • •

NEXT IN LINE comes Brigham Young. Brigham was the man of action and you can see that in the pictures. There wasn't anything particularly romantic about his features, save in their possible appeal to the ladies. Right down to earth, and real good-looking in those early representations, you can understand how he could organize a band of pioneers and, with a bluff laugh and a hard fist, bring them through the mountains to the promised land. In the later pictures, he looks a little too self-satisfied, more fanatic than strong willed; but I expect he can be forgiven that on the basis of accomplishment.

As I said, I'm not much of a one for museums, but there's a lot to start you thinking in that one in Salt Lake City. That same strength of will, evidenced in those stern pictures and the more tangible accomplishments of the Mormons, is a vital force right down to the present day. Recently they felt that Federal relief was sapping the fiber of their church members, so they put on a drive to put a stop to it. According to the most favorable reports, they've taken almost every last Mormon off relief rolls in Utah and, according to even the most cynical, they've cut the greater part of them from the rolls. They don't like charity!

While the balance of wealth in Utah today is held by non-Mormon mining interests, the narrow strip of arable land down the center of the State is held by the church members. Their faith in the soil has never wavered. They believe in the "good earth."

It hasn't always been easy, and right from the start they've had their share of drought and crop failures. They remember those things and one dramatic incident of the past is kept alive by a monument to a bird. In Temple Square, you'll find a monument to the seagulls. Visited by a cricket horde in the early years of their colonization, the Mormons found themselves faced with starvation when, as if in answer to prayer, a great flight of gulls off the Salt Lake darkened the sky, swooped down and devoured the invading crickets. That incident gives the name to a pest which is still wreaking havoc among Western farmers. They're called the Mormon Crickets.

Duty on Imports Of Cattle Raised

By the Associated Press.

The Customs Bureau said yesterday duty on imports of cattle weighing 700 pounds or more under quota provisions of the Canadian trade agreement will be increased from 2 to 3 cents a pound effective tomorrow.

The 2-cent rate for a designated annual quota was provided in the trade accord, with the regular 3-cent rate applying after the quota was exhausted. The 3-cent rate will apply for the remainder of this year.

Between January 1 and August 9, the bureau reported 145,670 head of cattle weighing 700 pounds or more had been imported under terms of the agreement, or 93.5 per cent of the annual quota. If the quota is not exhausted by Thursday, the Customs Bureau will refund any duties collected in excess of the 2-cent rate until the quota has been filled.

1938 Rally Plans 'Heard' by Hoover

Buffalo, Wyo., Aug. 10 (AP).—Former President Hoover took time out from a trout-fishing trip today to say he had "heard" of a proposed 1938 rally of Republican Party leaders.

"There have been some preliminary plans for a mid-term rally," he said, "but there has been nothing conclusive on it."

He reiterated he knew nothing of a report he and Alf M. Landon, Republican Presidential nominee last year, would meet soon at the home of Frank O. Lowden, former Illinois Governor.

Seal and 3 Bears Visit Polar Camp

From a wide crack in an ice floe, a startled seal poked its head out of the water three times and stared at the camp.

The camp also had a brief visit from a she-bear with two cubs. They took one look and lumbered away in full flight.

Seagulls and guillemots frequently fly over the camp, the polar party reported, and jellyfish have been pulled up from a depth of 9,840 feet where there exists what scientists described as a "biological spring."

Gold Buying to Go On, Declares President

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt has heard of no plan to suspend the Treasury gold sterilization program, he said yesterday after the Federal Reserve Board announced the inflow of gold from Europe had virtually ceased.

The President answered in the negative when asked at his press conference whether such a plan was in prospect. Earlier the reserve board had revealed the gold movement had slowed, due to the dollar price of gold in London. The price has fallen so low it is no longer profitable to ship to this country for sale.

1,200 PWA Loans Asked to Replace Unsafe Schools

By the United Press.

Through PWA loans and grants, President Roosevelt said yesterday the Administration is moving forward with its plans to strip the Nation of deathtrap school houses, which take an annual toll of hundreds of lives. A total of $71,000,000 was made available for the purpose on June 30 when Congress extended PWA for two additional years.

More than 1,200 applications for money have been received from virtually every State in the Union. Mr. Roosevelt, PWA administrator Harold L. Ickes and Acting Director of the Budget Daniel Bell are considering the applications.

Mr. Roosevelt said all applications from States listed in alphabetical order from Alabama to Missouri already had been passed upon and about half have been accepted. No allocations have been made. Applications included two California schools which are not earthquake proof.

Ohioan Named as Dean Of College in Virginia

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—W. B. Gates, of Fairfax Junior College, has announced appointment of Miss Elisabeth Scranton as dean of the school. She now is assistant dean at Muskingum College at New Canton, Ohio.

Miss Scranton, who was head of the history department in Marion High School from 1929 to 1934, also will teach history here and have charge of social activities.

She will succeed Mrs. Mary Isham James Green, of Purcellville, who is now at Columbia University.

30 States Ask Housing Act.

Howard A. Gray, director of the Public works Administration's housing division, reported to Secretary Ickes yesterday that 30 States now have adopted legislation enabling their cities to participate in the Wagner low-cost housing program if the bill becomes law.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

When Interested Only in Sightseeing, Is It Proper for Man and Girl to Take Week-End Trips Together?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A very good friend of mine, a single man of about 40, has been eager to take me on week-end trips, since we are both interested in sightseeing. We have exhausted one-day trips nearby, and it is now a question of branching out. He also wishes me to go on a long trip of about 10 days to see the North or West. I was reared in the belief that unchaperoned trips were not conventional and have refrained from going. However, I am considered old-fashioned in this age, and if times have changed to the extent that it is not considered improper, I should very much like to go.

* * * *

This man has a fine moral sense, I have known him for a long time and so far as we two are concerned, a trip of several days' duration would be no different than a day's outing. We are both interested in seeing the country, and it seems a shame that when we have this opportunity we cannot use it. Incidentally, we have been without success in getting our friends to accompany us. Thanking you for an early reply, I am, OLD-FASHIONED.

* * * *

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: Some cynic has said that indiscretion is the greatest social sin, and there's considerable truth in the statement. Purity of intention and rock-bottom propriety of conduct is almost never insulation against wagging tongues and reputation-soiling speculation. The world is full of idle persons and persons with evil minds and envious persons denied opportunity to go and do likewise who are dismayingly quick to bespatter others' innocently adventurous conduct with a poison-gas attack of scandalous comment.

* * * *

It is my opinion that you would be acting most indiscreetly in going for either a week-end trip or a ten-day sightseeing excursion with the man. Inevitably you would be greeted with mocking or challenging glances from various acquaintances on your return, and though you might feel it beneath your dignity—and rightly so—to explain or defend your trip, I am sure you would shrivel under the psychic pressure of their derisive thought. Then, too, you might run across acquaintances during the journey. It's surprising how one runs into the most unexpected persons wherever one goes. The kindliest thought such persons could entertain would be: "What on earth can Jane be thinking of to invite gossip so recklessly!"

* * * *

For another thing, there are at least three hazards of propinquity to be considered in deciding against such an adventure in the best interests of both parties concerned. Firstly, if you know anything of human nature, you must recognize the possibility that the man might, impetuously and almost involuntarily (in the sense of acting without stopping to consider the implication of his action), precipitate a situation embarrassing for you. Secondly, your erstwhile congenial companionship just might be spoiled by the wear-and-tear of a two-some excursion lasting anywhere from three to ten days.

* * * *

The male-and-female human relationship is never static. Either it progresses or it regresses. This being the case, you would return from such a trip either on each other's nerves (to use the vernacular) or more deeply committed. So, thirdly, you face the hazard of falling in love with the man, let us say. A man very likely would take such a trip rather lightly; I doubt that he would propose it to a girl he was gallantly devoted to; he would have the instinctive masculine impulse to protect the name of that girl from careless tongues. But a girl who took such a trip would (whether or not she admitted it) be regarding it, deep in her heart, as a prelude to permanent companionship.

* * * *

I think you'd better tell this man, very wistfully and regretfully, that you simply can't go with him on the proposed excursions. If he would rather do his sightseeing with you than anybody else he knows, he may come through with a proposal of marriage. And if you'd rather see sights with him than anybody else, you then might well say "Yes." Thus the whole knotty problem would be solved to everybody's satisfaction.

M. H.

Aristocrat Wants Work.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: After years of shocking mistreatment at my husband's hands I have been forced to leave him. Forgetting the years when I took care of him when he was ill and out of work, he refuses to contribute to my support now. I must have work. I am considered a very good secretary and stenographer, am attractive, educated, come from an old aristocratic Southern family and can adjust myself to any environment. I enjoy handling and mixing with people and am capable of dealing with the public.

* * * *

I would like a job as hostess, apartment house manager or personnel director in some corporation. I will consider office work as a last alternative, but would prefer not to be tied down to a desk all day. I have no children and would be free to go anywhere. I am absolutely on my own and have obligations incurred by sickness and death in my family, and must support myself and my mother.

* * * *

Until now I had been ineligible to apply for Government work, because of the marriage clause. Now that it has been repealed, I am told there will be no more examinations in my line of work for quite a long time to come. I have tried every job-finding approach I can think of. Yet all the good places are filled. So what am I to do? I read your column regularly, and beg of you to make one more exception to your general ruling not to print job-seekers' letters. I am in desperate need; and you are my last resort. Sincerely, CAROLINIAN.

* * * *

DEAR CAROLINIAN: Here is your letter in print—one more exception to that rule of mine which seems to be more honored in the breach than in the observance. If you have tried every other "job-finding approach" in vain, I feel you have earned this one further opportunity for contacting the occupational berth you want and need. If any inquiries or letters are forthcoming, you will be notified. I wish you luck. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Junior high-school girl, several of whose friends have "brought disgrace on themselves and their families" through misplacing confidence in immortal young men, is "almost afraid to go out with a boy. She wonders if a girl has to betray her standards in order to keep a man interested, says she is "almost frantic" and asks for "the truth." She will be advised here Thursday.

Two Suggestions for Going Modern in Easy Stages

Modern with Mexican accent is the theme of this living room with shades of white, terra cotta and gray. It is especially adapted to apartment house dwelling. The filmy window drapes covering a large part of the wall help give the illusion of light.

The furnishings in this modern living room may form the basis of furniture buying for a couple on a limited budget who must buy with an eye to the future. All the pieces can be put to good use as living quarters expand.

Peach Recipes In Post Contest Are Interesting

By Rebekah Blake.

MANY new methods of preparing peaches—which are now abundant on the markets—were revealed by the numerous, interesting recipes submitted in The Post Contest last week.

Peaches may be spiced, pickled, preserved, used to make honey, muffins, salads, dumplings, cakes, sherberts—and as Col. Aginel, Apartment No. 2, Iowa Apartments suggests—'Cut up peaches and serve with vanilla ice cream. What can be better?"

"When peaches are in season, I always use in this way and any other bachelor can do this," adds Col. Aginel, the only man to give his viewpoint in the contest.

Second prize, $2, went to Miss Helen Richter, 24 Rhode Island avenue northeast, Washington, for her recipe "Peach Chutney" and the third prize $1 was awarded to Mrs. J. Burton Carr, Postoffice Box 303, Leesburg, Va., for her recipe "Peach Snow Ball Salad."

To Mrs. F. G. Irwin, 8 East Irving street, Chevy Chase, Md., went the fourth prize of $1 for her original recipe "Peach Bars With Hot Lyric Sauce." Fifth prize was presented to Mrs. Helen Kuenzel, 3009 Clinton street northeast, for her recipe on "Skillet Peach Cobbler."

Mrs. Snyder's recipe:

Peach Whip in Cantaloupe Halves.

3 ripe peaches, sieved
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup whipped cream
¼ cup powdered sugar
1 tablespoon gelatine

Press ripe peaches through sieve, add sugar and lemon juice and sugar. Soften gelatine in cream and melt over hot water, add to each pulp of peach and cool. When almost stiff, beat and fold in cream. Pile in chilled cantaloupe halves, chill and serve.

Miss Richter's recipe:

Peach Chutney.

4 pounds fresh peaches
1½ pounds brown sugar
½ pound raisins
2 tablespoons white mustard seed
½ cup chopped onions
3 cups vinegar
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 cup crystallized ginger

Prepare fruit, onions, ginger and raisins. Put all through the food chopper. Add sugar, vinegar and spices. Pour into large pyrex dish or enamel pan and cook in oven, stirring occasionally, or cook on surface unit. This chutney should be thick and rich amber color. Makes four pints.

Mrs. Carr's recipe:

Peach Snowball Salad.

6 fresh open-stone peaches
1 small package of cocoanut.

Peel peaches and remove stone. Fill cavity with cheese and stick halves together. Cover outside of peach with rest of cheese and roll in cocoanut. Serve cold on lettuce leaves with or without your favorite dressing.

Mrs. Irwin's recipe:

Peach Bars With Hot Lyric Sauce.

6 large free-stone peaches
12 macaroons
½ pound butter

Thoroughly wash six large free-stone peaches (do not peel). Cut in halves and remove stones. Scoop out the centers, leaving enough of the peach meat and peeling to form a strong cup. Reduce macaroons to crumbs, crush scooped-out peach meat and mix well. Fill peach cups with the mixture and top with small cubes of butter. Place on well-buttered pan and bake 20 minutes. Serve on dessert plates while hot. In a separate container, pass hot lyric sauce, to be poured over the peach bars in quantities pleasing to individual tastes.

Lyric Sauce.

1 can of apricots
2 cups sugar
½ cup of brandy

Bring 1 can No. 2 apricots and 2 cups of sugar to a slow boil. Continue boiling five to seven minutes. Remove and press through colander or sieve and carefully mix ½ cup of brandy. Serve immediately.

Cooking Green eBans.

Green beans should be uniform in size if they are to cook evenly. Test beans for freshness by seeing if they snap when they are broken in half. The best peas will be velvety to touch, bright green in color (never yellow) and rather plump. Plumpness indicates that pods are filled with peas of even size.

Furnishing Home in Easy Stages
Advice Offered Young Couples

Modest Two-Room Apartment Soon Can Be Developed Into Modern Living Quarters if Care Is Used in Selection of Pieces.

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

A PLEASANT room doesn't spring forth full grown from somebody's forehead like the god in the Greek myth, especially a room in the modern manner. It takes time, a lot of loving thought and very careful buying.

The first thing would be to plan so as to permit changes and additions to be made according to a definite plan as the budget expands. Keeping in mind the fact that a young couple starting out wouldn't have a lot to spend in the beginning but would want a nucleus they could develop into something really nice later without having to discard orignial purchases, we suggest the following general procedure:

Suppose they are starting in a two-room apartment. And suppose they want to be very modern. Their first need would be for a place to sleep, and so they should buy a good double mattress and box springs, to which the young man could add a frame and legs to do for the present.

Thus they could get along for the present without bedstead or sofa, but to make their springs and mattress look attractive the young man in the case could build a row of book shelves across one wall of the room and about a foot and a half deep . . . this should have an opening left in the center to permit the bed to slide in under the shelves and look like a studio couch. The depth of the shelves would take away the effect of the double bed width. If he desired the young man could extend arms out from the book shelves to serve as end tables for the bed.

Start for Beds.

If the young couple preferred to start with twin beds, they could get a square corner table, then buy two springs and mattresses to extend out from the corner table at right angles to each other; frames and legs could be made for them as for wide double bed mentioned above. By day they would make a pleasing sofa arrangement, by night comfortable beds, and, in the future, they would provide the springs and mattresses for their bedroom.

The lighting of the room will have to have early consideration. A pair of lamps at each end of the double bed would be needed and these could be obtained at reasonable cost. If the right angle single beds are used, one lamp on the corner table would be sufficient to begin with.

An eating unit would have to come now . . . a console table and a pair of chairs would serve adequately and over the console a large mirror would be attractive, would make the room seem larger and also could be used for dressing. A chest of drawers is an essential, too, and could be used with the mirror if preferred, though it will seem a little less bedroomy to have a picture over the chest and the morror over the console.

The windows should have draperies in a room like this because color is the least expensive but most important thing in the decorative design of the room. Attractive draperies will go a long way toward making the room "seem" furnished. A bold fine modern pattern in the fabric would be effective and suitable.

Book Jackets Handy.

Books in those book shelves are another bright splash of color. In a modern room, silver, white or gold book jackets are sometimes effective. Or there are metallic greens and reds, as well as hand blocked papers in many subtle colors that will add color detail to the room.

Maybe you are surprised that no rug has yet been mentioned. But actually a rug doesn't come under the heading of an absolute necessity. Therefore it can be waited for if the budget is short. It would be better to wait on the rug, for instance, than to buy a cheaper mattress. However, a rug adds lots to the charm of the room and if there's money enough left, a broadloom of fairly good quality could be purchased, or an interesting small rug can be selected with a view toward using it in a hall later.

As for easy chairs, they, too, can be left till a little later if necessary, since our young couple have their bed to sit on. But, of course, a chair is a great comfort and should be added just as soon as possible. However, it is better to wait until a good one can be afforded, as a cheap chair is a poor investment.

Started on $200.

As the couple expands into larger quarters, most of the things purchased for this first room can be relegated to other rooms so that their living room can get the benefit of their increased means.

The living room can then begin fresh, retaining probably only the bookcase unit that has been built in (or better bookcases can be added), the draperies and the easy chair. A sofa will be the first new purchase here, then an extra easy chair and tables and a desk with a comfortable desk chair. Incidentally flat top desks are very popular now because men prefer them. Some nice reflector lamps and new table lamps to replace the first ones (now in the bedroom) will probably be the next thing in line. And then a really good rug for this main room in the house.

We know a young couple who started with $200 for furniture, but by making a plan and sticking to it they were able to develop a really handsome home. For everything they bought fits in and there were no discards.

Plan Your Indoor Garden

HOW WOULD you like to have gay summer flowers blooming indoors this winter? You can have them easily—petunias, nasturtiums, many more.

There's still time to start the plants from seed, particularly if you soak the seeds overnight in warm water.

Or you can take young plants already growing outdoors. Just pinch back the leaves until only two pairs are left, put each plant in a 2-inch pot.

But take warning! Don't pot blooming plants, for their day is practically over!

If you have a spot of garden set the young plants, pots and all, in the ground until frost threatens. If you haven't, put them in a sunny window. When the roots have gotten a good start, move the plants to 3-inch, then to 5-inch pots.

It's the right season, too, to root English ivy. Gathered two months from now, it may refuse to grow at all. Put a spray in water and it will gracefully frame your window.

Then there are bulbs, ferns, foliage plants, terrariums—just begging to be started!

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Aug. 10.

THE TIDE is flowing the other way. All of a sudden the Atlantic ferries snout their way up the Hudson to our piers, bringing back the heads they took overseas two months ago. Movie actresses pout home to the Hollywood slave pens, style sharks return starry-eyed from the Paris openings, and the tourists — well, the tourists are just back again week six frigates brought in 5,400 people to battle the customs. The haughty Normandie, on her record-cracking jaunt, was capacity, including an extra dose of Dream Girls. I watched them all smirking for the camera boys on the sun deck. There was the pretty Lilly Damita, whose husband, the beautiful Errol Flynn, was waiting for her on the Coast. He's making a film called "The Perfect Specimen," and Lily adroitly dodged the reporters' queries about this.

ALICE HUGHES

Also there were Vic Oliver, British variety actor, and his wife, Sarah Churchill, daughter of the noted Winston, and in whose veins flows the noble blood of the Marlboroughs. And, all a dimple, was Simone Simon (pronounced Smong-Smong), who had been enjoying herself in the south of France, where the enjoying is always good. And there was the conventional "Hollywood find"—a Hungarian blonde called Ilona Hajmassy, whose screen name will probably be Lona Manners. And there were 1,500 other people, all excited.

For the pier-dawdlers, like myself, these homecomings are pure mess, and not the fun that sailings are, late in the spring. For at this time of year the returning pals are tired, broke and sore at the customs inspectors (drat 'em!).

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—When the opera-movie glamour belle, Gladys Swarthout, sailed in 'tother noon she was wearing a new neck trick. Her husband's name, Chapman, spelled out in gold letters, strung on a chain and festooned on her chest. Such a stunt is said to be worn by men, too, on their watch chains. I mean by some men.

When the St. Louis Opera Co. begins its season next November it will have in the troupe some of the finest young singers developed here in ages. Lucy Monroe, who will sing in "Faust," began in musical comedy, scored on the radio, sang at the Met last spring, and has now joined Pons, Moore and Swarthout in the movies. Young Robert Weede, leading barytone, is a "Roxy" discovery (No. 4679) and has sung for three years at the Radio City Music Hall. A fine voice.

Penniless pals retreating from Saratoga's races tell me that the handsomest silver fox cape now being sported at the Spa is not on the shoulders of a Vanderbilt nor yet a Whitney, but is worn by Rita Roy Canzoneri, former night club chorus girl who is now the wife of the former lightweight box-fighting champ. Blood will tell . . .

Bad people here spend the summer thinking up new sins. Ever hear of "seat-tipping" in the movies to commit crime? Our Mr. John Halikias just got three months in the calaboose for it. Mr. John used to go to the pitchers, sit behind a lady who had put her purse on a vacant seat, tip that seat back into his row, scoop up the handbag and retire with it. At last a hawkshaw caught up with him and Mr. John retired to the town lock-up to devise a new stunt. So, ladies, beware of the foul "seat tipper." Better still, don't lay your purse on an empty seat!

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

Dr. Logan Clendening.

Organs of Abdomen.

I did not quite say all that I wanted to say about dropped stomach yesterday, so will continue the subject today.

Dropped stomach alone is not very common, but associated with dropping of other organs in the abdomen it occurs in quite a large proportion of adults. Also it must not be understood that a person goes along all right and then all of a sudden his stomach and intestines "drop"; the condition is dependent upon a certain type of body, and those who have it are destined from birth to be the dropped type.

It is true that an accident or operation or childbearing—anything that weakens the abdominal muscles—will permit the abdominal organs to sag, but this seldom results in any trouble.

The real test of whether a dropped stomach or intestines are giving any trouble is the test of function, not of position. If the stomach has good muscular tone and can empty itself within proper time limits, it is not a source of trouble.

The type of body which goes with these drooping organs is familiar to all, although its significance may not be realized. It is the long thin, asthenic type. Almost always underweight, with long neck, wide but long chest, thin abdominal muscles with a sagging abdomen. They have been called the constitutionally inadequate type. With some exceptions they cannot work as continuously and steadily as others. They tire easily, yet they are ambitious and take on projects of considerable dimensions only to give them up half way or turn them over to others more sturdily built.

Their sagging digestive organs usually give them some trouble, because not only are the abdominal muscles weak, but also the muscles of the stomach and intestine. The appetite is poor, there is always a tendency to constipation, and heavy, logy feeling after meals.

Along with this, other constitutional traits—notably low blood pressure—are common.

The treatment of these people is really a system of care for life. They should understand that they are not built and cannot do the things that their robust, compact, wide-framed fellow workers can. They should plan to do things within their powers. Corsets to brace the sagging abdominal muscles and exercises, such as lying on the back and raising the legs from the floor to a vertical position, are valuable, but most important of all is rest. To lie down three or four times a day, especially after meals, to permit the stomach to do its work in the most favorable position and to allow tired nature to be refreshed, is a way of life which pays big dividends for these people. It is naturally hard to arrange, especially in busy offices, but employers would find that co-operation in this respect, by providing rest rooms with couches, would really increase efficiency.

Washingtonian Gathers Fame, Fortune in Texas

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Back at my desk after a two weeks' vacation jaunt to the Lone Star State, I find myself wondering once again when, and if, air-conditioned Congress will call it a session and close shop until next season, and when, if ever, Washington's social calendar will be filled with something besides informal entertainments and the departure of Capital residents for beach and mountain resorts.

Also, I find myself pondering the puzzle of whether any Washingtonian spending the summer away from the city did any better for himself than did George Preston Marshall, Capital business man and sportsman, who turned into a $1,000-a-day producer almost overnight for the benefit of the Greater Texas and Pan-American Exposition, now going full speed in Dallas. Mr. Marshall and his wife, the former Corinne Griffith, of film fame, have spent most of the summer in Texas, although they are now vacationing at Malibu Beach, Calif.

Marshal Show Sets New High in Texas.

Up until about three weeks ago, when they left Dallas for the West Coast, the Marshalls could be spotted almost any evening at the 2,000-seat blue and chromium auditorium, known as the Casino, where thousands nightly see a smash-hit revue that would do honor to Broadway.

Dallasites are pretty proud they solicited the services of George Marshall. His first-rate Casino entertainment has set a new high in the show world, and his top-flight salary for producing it gives exposition-goers plenty to talk about. His contract, signed for $100,000 shortly after plans for the Pan-American Exposition were nearing completion, indirectly results from a turn of affairs last summer when Texas Centennial Exposition got under way in Dallas.

Residents of Fort Worth, rival city not far from Dallas, had obtained the services of Billy Rose, who took in hand entertainment features of Fort Worth's frontier fiesta and transported a bit of Broadway out to where the West begins in a manner that strongly appealed to natives of the State where men are men and a woman was once Governor.

Dallas Casino Lures Thousands Each Night.

Billy Rose's shows—Casa Manana, Pioneer Palace, Firely Garden and Melody Lane—are still thrilling thousands of Texans at each performance. Casa Manana, the spectacular revue featured at the fiesta, reduces the plots of four best-sellers to 15 minutes of dance, song and pantomime that breathes Broadway with every lilting tune. But crowds that see it aren't any bigger than the ones pouring into the Marshall-managed Casino in Dallas each evening to dine and wine and watch the dancing.

From balcony to stage, the Casino has been terraced for tiers and tiers of tables to accommodate the guests who pack two shows nightly. The list of stars who have appeared and will appear on the stage reads like the blue book of the American show world. Settings and scenes were designed by the 36-year-old Paris-born artist, Joe Mielziner, and lighting effects were worked out by George Gebhardt. With costumes by famed Constance DePinna, stage production by Chester Hale and musical numbers arranged by Ray Kavanaugh, it's no wonder Texans have a real show this summer.

At a ringside seat each time the Casino changed its program through June and most of July were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, who sometimes watched the revue from a table for two, but more often in the company of friends. Mrs. Marshall, as everyone knows, is a native Texan and has no end of acquaintances in Dallas. During the weeks she and her husband spent there, however, she entertained a number of guests from out of town, most publicized of whom was Mrs. James Farley, who only recently returned to New York to join her husband, the Postmaster General.

Mrs. Farley Seemed to Like It.

Reports around the fair grounds were to the effect Mrs. Farley seemed to enjoy the Pan-American Exposition and said as much every time reporters got within shouting distance of her—which, also according to reports, wasn't very often.

More accessible were envoys and other representatives of Latin-American countries, who have visited the exposition in increasing numbers ever since it opened. The favorite show with most of the latter has not been the Casino, but rather the Cavalcade of the Americas, which is considered to be one of America's biggest outdoor dramatic spectacles. On the biggest stage in the world, 300 actors relive the history of the Western Hemisphere; and in one performance are depicted events from the landing of Christopher Columbus to the Inter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires in December, 1936.

The President's "Voice" Is Convincing.

President Roosevelt's "voice" at the peace conference is so convincing that countless persons attending the spectacle have inquired if it is a recording of the President's speech or actually comes from the throat of the actor who portrays the President.

The peace conference scene in the cavalcade is supposed to make a special appeal to delegates from the Latin-American countries. What they think of the other types of entertainment at the exposition is not widely heralded. Most of the latter obviously have been arranged for United States consumption, with the result that audiences at both the Dallas Casino and the Fort Worth Casa Manana draw crowds of which Latin Americans are only a small part.

The success of the Fort Worth entertainments is said to have led to Billy Rose's recent offer from Hollywood, and rumor going the rounds in Dallas has it that the Casino revue also has catapulted George Marshall into the ranks of filmland "producer possibilities." One report percolating through the exposition grounds had it that an offer from a major motion-picture studio precipitated the Marshalls' unexpected departure for California. The sportsman and his wife are to return to Washington, either the end of this month or the first of next.

Attorney and Bride After Wedding Here

Underwood & Underwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Overton Moss as they walked down an "aisle" at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday immediately after their wedding there. Senator Harry F. Byrd put a "busy" sign on his desk at the Capitol and attended the ceremony. Mrs. Moss was formerly Mrs. Doris Brauer Mann, of Richmond, and Mr. Moss is a well-known Virginia attorney with offices also here in Washington.

Miss Overton Has Luncheon For Jane Holt

Senator's Sister Will Be Married Soon to Ralph Chase.

The Jefferson Island Club, stamping ground of Democratic politicos and scene of a recent famous party love-feast, was the setting for a party of a less weighty nature yesterday, when Miss Katherine Overton entertained at a luncheon for Miss Jane Holt. The sister of the youngest Senator will be wed in the very near future to Ralph K. Chase, Washington attorney, at a simple ceremony "for relatives only" at her parents' home in Weston, W. Va.

Croquet and creamed crabmeat were the outstanding features of the festivities. The latter is quite a specialty of the Jefferson Island Club, its recipe having been confided to the chef by Mrs. Key Pittman, wife of the Senator. The outstanding stars of the croquet games were Lucille Sheppard, daughter of the Senator from Texas; Mary Elizabeth Overton, younger sister of the hostess, and Janet Johnson, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, of Colorado.

Miss Katherine Overton is a former president of the Senate Daughters Club, and her guests yesterday were all members of this group. Only the fact that the club launch was too small to accomodate every member prevented that body from being there en masse. The other guests included Agnes Dougherty, adopted daughter of Senator Pat McCarran; Elizabeth Adams, whose father is Senator from Colorado; Norene McCarran, Katherine Bulow, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Bulow; Lyla Townsend Savoy, daughter of Senator Townsend, of Delaware, a recent bride, and another bride from Delaware, Mrs. Caroline Hughes Martin, who motored over from Rehoboth Beach, where she is vacationing. Others in the company included Miss Cuyler Schwartz, daughter of Senator and Mrs. H. H. Schwartz. Barbara Burke, whose parents are Senator and Mrs. Edward Burke, and the Misses Chiyo and Edna Lou Thomas, daughters of the Senator from Utah and Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas.

Besides crabmeat, the guests yesterday enjoyed baked ham, potato salad and tomatoes. Luncheon was served on the porch.

Senator Overton is one of about a dozen Democratic Senators who belong to the Jefferson Island Club. It was founded some time ago by a group of prominent men, including former Senator Harry Hawes and the late Senator Joseph T. Robinson, who built a comfortable club on the foundations of an old farm house.

Capt. James C. White to Bring Newport Bride to Home Here

The Former Miss Natalja Willard and Former Fort Wayne, Ind., Man Now on a Wedding Trip.

Capt. and Mrs. James C. White, who were married on Monday afternoon at the bride's Newport home, will reside in Washington after a wedding trip.

Mrs. White is the former Miss Natalja Willard, daughter of the late Col. and Mrs. Joseph H. Willard. The ceremony, which was witnessed only by relatives and close friends, was performed by the Rev. Stanley Grang Crangham Hughes, rector of Trinity Church.

The bride who dispensed with attendants, wore a chiffon frock of deep rose combined with blue and a blue hat made like a cloche. She carried an old fashioned bouquet. Capt. Edward H. White, U. S. A. Air Corps, served as best man.

A reception for close friends was held after the ceremony. The drawing room was decorated with gladioli, palms and ferns. Capt. and Mrs. White will reside in Washington after their wedding trip.

Mrs. White is a sister of Mrs. Robert Goelet, of New York and Newport. Capt. White, the son of Mrs. Alexander Blair White, of Fort Wayne, Ind., is a graduate of the Culver Military Academy and West Point. He is a brother of Lieut. John A. White, U. S. M. C.

Miss Ella May Jarrett, of Charleston, W. Va., a graduate of the State university, will become the bride of Lieut. Harold G. Walker, of Washington, this month.

Miss Jarrett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer C. Jarrett, Charleston, and was graduated from the university in June, 1936. Lieut. Walker is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Walker, of Morgantown, W. Va., and has been a second lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps since 1934.

Mr. and Mrs. William Chester Christy who are now living permanently in London, expect to visit their friends here in Washington and also in New York this December.

Mrs. Christy, before her marriage, was Miss Diane Mary Gwynne Maitland, daughter of Mrs. Hamilton Condon.

After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Christy first made their home in Beverly Hills, Calif. After that they moved to London, where Mrs. Christy found herself "at home" for she is English. On July 16, twin sons, Michael Wyndham and Anthony Radcliffe, were born to Mrs. Christy. Unfortunately, the twins died shortly after birth, but Mrs. Christy is improving rapidly.

Mary Quigley, Martin Reilly Wed In D. C., Miss Snowden at Cumberland

Miss Mary Quigley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Quigley, of Washington, was married yesterday morning to Martin Reilly, also of this city. The ceremony took place at the Church of the Nativity, the Rev. Father Healy officiating.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Mary O'Neil, and James Reilly served as his brother's best man. The bride wore a white street length frock trimmed in dubonnet and royal blue, and a dubonnet hat and accessories. Her corsage was of white orchids. Miss O'Neil chose a print frock with a cape and a white hat.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. After a wedding trip to Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Reilly will reside at 2040 Thirty-seventh street.

News has been received of the marriage of Miss Meredith Gertrude Snowden, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon H. Snowden, 424 Central avenue, Cumberland, Md., to the Rev. Robert Hutson Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Parker, 306 Fayette street, Cumberland, on Friday afternoon in St. Mark's Reformed Church.

The Rev. Eugene P. Skyles officiated, assisted by the Rev. Harry Evaul, of Hagerstown, and the Rev. J. Martin Gillum, of Washington.

Miss Grace Weber was maid of honor, and Wilbur Parker, best man. The ushers were the Rev. Richard W. Buckingham, of Washington; the Rev. Lawrence Rice, Baltimore, and the Rev. Edward Porter, this city.

The bride is a graduate of Allegany High School, class of 1931, and of the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, 1934. Mr. Parker, who is a graduate of American University, received his degree recently from the Drew University School of Theology. He is now serving as pastor of the Union Grove circuit, Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Clark, Daughter To Return in September

Now vacationing in the Adirondacks, Mrs. Volney Clark, wife of Lieut. Comdr. Clark, U. S. N., and her daughter, Miss Frances Annette Clark, will not return to Washington until September.

Previous to their departure for the Adirondacks, Mrs. Clark visited friends on Long Island for ten days, while Miss Clark was in Annapolis.

Col. and Mrs. Wrisley Brown, of Washington, who arrived in New York yesterday from a holiday in Atlantic City, will spend several days there. They are stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria.

From New York Col. and Mrs. Brown will return directly to Washington, where they will live at 2319 Wyoming avenue.

Republican Unit Guests At Tea Today

Washington League to Entertain National Committee Women.

Mrs. Frank Mondell and Mrs. Maurice Thatcher Will Receive.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Republican National committeewomen, here to attend the meeting called for today by John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, will be entertained at tea this afternoon in the new clubhouse of the League of Republican Women from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mme. Cantacuzene, president of the league, has invited them to meet members of the board as her guests.

As she is now in Bar Harbor, Me., for the remainder of the summer, Mrs. Frank Mondell, first vice president, and Mrs. Maurice Thatcher, vice chairman of the house committee, will receive. This will be the first function at the clubhouse since it was officially opened to members and their guests less than two weeks ago. No formality was attached to the opening of the headquarters because of the fact it took place in the midsummer season when so many Washingtonians were away on vacations.

Committeewomen are already here from 19 States for the session today, at which plans for activities of the women's division in the coming campaign will be discussed.

The meeting will be held in the library of the Republican National Headquarters with Mr. Hamilton presiding. The committeewomen will have luncheon together and return for an afternoon session before the tea and reception being given by the league.

Mrs. Katharine K. Brown, of Dayton, Ohio, was the first to arrive in the Capital. Others who are here include Mrs. Edmonia Lawson, of Baltimore; Mrs. Doris K. Reynolds, of Sheridan, Wyo.; Miss Katherine Byrne, of Putnam, Conn.; Mrs. Clara L. Ebert, of Parkersburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Mary C. Booze, of Mound Bayou, Miss., the only colored member of the group; Mrs. Edward D. Toland, of Concord, N. H.; Mrs. Edna B. Conklin, of Hackensack, N. J.; Mrs. John E. Hillman, of Delta, Colo.; Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, of Cambridge City, Ind.; Mrs. Paul FitzSimons, of Newport, R. I.; Mrs. Virginia W. Speel, of this city, representing the District; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, Pa.; Mrs. Margaret A. Green, of Holyoke, Mass.; Mrs. Harry E. Thomas, of Sheboygan, Wis.; Mrs. Consuelo Northorp, of Burlington, Vt.; Mrs. Robert L. Hoyal, of Douglas, Ariz.; Mrs. Chris Carlson, of Blue Earth, Minn., and Mrs. Pearl Wates, of Birmingham, Ala.

'Y' Book Lovers Hear Address By Alice Drake

Talks on 'Big Loop and Little,' Written by Mrs. Hager.

MISS ALICE HUTCHINS DRAKE last night reviewed Alice Hager's recently published book, "Big Loop and Little," at the tenth of the summer programs on "Books and Their Makers," held at the Y. W. C. A. The group, which meets with Miss Drake both summer and winter on Tuesday evenings at 8 for her book reviews, gathered last night in one of the assembly rooms instead of on the roof, as the final summer "sing" was conducted on the roof.

Miss Drake had with her a copy of Mrs. Hager's book on the red cover of which is the title in letters formed by a twisted rope. On the inside of the cover is a panorama of grazing lands with their herds of cattle. The illustrations by Charles Belden, noted for his photographs of the West, were a feature of the book to which Miss Drake called attention. Among them are several of Mary Brosseit, famous woman lariat performer, who is a friend of Mrs. Hager's and who last summer appeared on the program at the White House garden party given by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt for the disabled veterans. Other photographs show the roping and branding of cattle and similarly picturesque scenes in the life of the cowboy.

The book is the first of its kind, said Miss Drake. It presents a faithful record of the life of the old West and the West today, following him from dawn to eve as he rides the prairie and through the night as he sleeps beneath the stars. It sets forth his stern code of honor, recounts histories and the songs he sings.

Mrs. Hager, who returned to Washington about two years ago, when her husband came from New York to a position here with the Home Owners Loan Corporation, spends her summers in the West, she is now on a ranch in Montana with her daughters, Helen and Carol.

In addition to reviewing the work of the Washington author, Miss Drake last night discussed Constance Rourke's biography of Audubon.

Henry P. Erwins Back From New England Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin returned to Washington yesterday morning after a ten days' motor trip through New England. They expect to remain in Washington for the rest of the summer.

They visited their daughter, Eileen, who is in camp in Vermont, and also were the guests of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Curtis, of Bronxville, N. Y., who are spending their vacation in Kennebunkport, Me.

District Woman Speaks Monday At Chautauqua

Mrs. Cecil J. McReynolds to Discuss Peace Influences.

MRS. CECIL I. McREYNOLDS, of Dupont Court Apartments, will speak Monday morning at the Chautauqua session at Lake Chautauqua, N. Y., on "Sky High Over the Equator." Mrs. McReynolds is a member of the peoples mandate committee and was one of nine women who flew to Buenos Aires in December to present to the Inter-American Peace Conference the anti-war mandate with 1,500,000 American signatures.

She is a graduate of the University of California, lived several years in Brazil and has traveled extensively through the Latin American countries. Monday evening she will speak again on "Childhood Influences That Lead to Peace Work."

Mrs. McReynolds has had a busy summer since her return a month ago from California, where she had been to visit her mother. Last week she spoke at the University political science summer school of Richmond for the department of political science summer school sessions and also before the recent Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

Before leaving for California, she addressed numerous local organizations. She accompanied the people's mandate delegation last winter as interpreter, as she speaks both Spanish and Portuguese fluently. She has made her home in Washington about two years.

Scantiness Marks Autumn Fashions

Paris (AP).—Startled fashion experts here have greeted an exhibition of styles for fall that is literally and frankly a revelation of how scant clothes may be and still be clothes.

"Scant raiment" was officially the theme of the Schiaparelli show and one stylist, glancing pointedly at a daring decollete evening gown, summed up the trend:

"Primarily clothes have become an index to the beauty and vitality of the body."

Evening gowns were cut revealingly low in front or molded to the bust with startling frankness, but there were other surprises even more exotic in a show that had for its keynote:

"Away with all inhibitions."

There were hats named "Foolish Virgin" and "Suppressed Desire," and there were hats of felt shaped like high-heeled shoes, turned upside down.

Clubs Urged to Give Support To Women for Public Office

The "League for a Woman for President and other Public Office" has embarked on an intensive campaign to interest the independent woman voter, notably the club woman, in public office. A challenge has been sent by Lillian Rock, national chairman, and Mrs. Lionel S. Sutro, New York chairman of the organization to the leaders of all political parties in every county.

Every woman's club in the City of New York has been urged "to take an active part in this contest" and the following appeal by the "League for a Woman for President and Other Public Office" has been sent to 587 woman's clubs in the City of New York to co-operate:

"At this particular time, the political leaders of all parties are casting about for eligible candidates under the new proportional representation plan of government. Women should take an active part in this contest and their direct influence in the community should be recognized by the public.

Group Nonpartisan.

"We feel that all women's clubs should co-operate in this. We are writing to invite you to send us the name or names of one of your most representative members eligible for public office so that her name may be presented to her county chairman for consideration.

"Since all of our rights and powers enamate from the legislative halls of our various bodies of government, it is highly important that women be represented there.

"Our organization is absolutely nonpartisan and we are inviting the co-operation of all women's clubs. Much has heretofore been said about placing women in public office, but this is the first opportunity women have actually had of participating if they are alert and vigilant."

List Is Compiled.

After a survey of qualified women equipped for public service was made by a special committee of the league, a tentative list was compiled of "qualified women, representative of various activities and associations, as eligible for public office" informing her that her name had been selected and requesting her to submit "a short sketch of her career, her activities, her organization affiliations and party affiliations (if any), also county residence for the purpose of urging her name for consideration by her county chairman in circulating nominating petitions to public office."

Mrs. Sutro is also the Manhattan chairman of the "International League for Peace and Freedom" and a director of the "World Center for Women's Archives."

The tentative list of women from New York County includes Mrs. Otto Kahn, Florence Rohr, Pinckney Estes Clantzberg, Marion Gold Lewis, Mary Van Kleeck, Mrs. Samuel Sloan Duryee, Mary E. Drier, Harriet Bishop Waters Christie, Mrs. John Henry Hammond, Mrs. John H. Amen, Mary Bertha Fincke, Bertha Rembaugh, Anne Morgan, Mrs. V. G. Simkhowitch, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Mrs. Dana Converse Backus, Mrs. Leopold K. Simon, Virginia Goldersleeve, Miss Bigelow, Inez Haynes Irwin, Mrs. Edwin Hodgman, Mrs. James Bolling, Mrs. Henry Goddard Leech, Helen E. Hall, Edythe Widdi,, Dorothy Thompson, Fannie Hurst, Martha Berry, Mrs. Robbins A. Lau, Mrs. Maurice P. Davidson.

Also Jeanette Kaye, Mary Lewis, Mary Rehan, Pauline E. Mandigo, Lena Madesin Philips, Mrs. William Brown Meloney, Ruth Lewinson, Anna Oberwager, Naomi Ransom, Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, Rose Rothenberg, Lillian R. Sire, Mrs. A. Frank Imhof, Jane Norman Smith, Katherine B. Meigs, Mrs. Arthur Hays Sulzberger, Vera McCres, Mrs. Frank Cobb, Mrs. Jack W. Loeb, Dorothy Dunbar Bromley, Mrs. Ogden Reid, Mrs. Vincent Astor, Anna Houston Sadler, Mrs. Jacob Riis Bonbright, Elizabeth Ross Haynes, Lillian Segall, Ruth Pratt, Rose Lehman Stein, Eva Koenigsberg.

Earlene White Arlington Club Surprise Guest

Business Women's National President at Rixey Mansion Picnic.

MISS EARLENE WHITE, newly elected president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was a surprise guest last night at the picnic supper given by the Alexandria club at Rixey Mansion, in Arlington, Va. She was the guest of Miss Addie Ramby, a past president of the Alexandria B. and P. W. group, and her presence made the occasion an outstanding one for the club. The supper was the first local club meeting she had attended since becoming national president, and her being there was indicative of the special interest she has expressed in the activities of the clubs in small towns.

After a chicken supper, served on the lawn of Rixey Mansion, the club members and their guests discussed everything from the recent national federation convention to fall fashions. With Miss White present, however, the convention was the most popular topic. Miss Corinne Reardon, president of the Alexandria club, who has been ill recently, is now recovered and was present last night. Arrangements for the party were in charge of Miss Rietta Butler.

Among other guests were Miss Elizabeth Apperson, Mrs. Benjamin Barrett, Mrs. D. C. Cook, Miss Irma Coleman, Miss Lucy Graves, Mrs. Elizabeth Keegan, Mrs. Georgia Worley, Miss Alice Strauss, Miss Laura Sullivan and her husband, Jack Sullivan, who went as her guest and was the only man in the company; Miss Lillian Thompson, Miss Eleanor Watkins, Miss Edith Whitten and Miss Alice Whitten, who had as their guest their mother, Mrs. George Whitten; their sister-in-law, Mrs. John B. Whitten, and Miss Ethel Garrett; Mrs. Irene Pancoast, Miss Carol Moore and Miss Florence Long. Among guests from the Arlington club were Miss Kittie Cohen and Mrs. Middleton.

2d Counts Reunion Called for Sunday

Family Meeting to Be Held at Sand Lick, Va.

The Counts family has announced its second annual reunion, to be held Sunday at Sand Lick, in Dickenson County, Va. The announcements have been widely distributed and it is expected many relatives will be on hand for the event.

The first reunion was held last year at Cleveland, Va., with a large crowd attending. All descendants of John Counts, of Glade Hollow, and their friends have been invited to attend the outing Sunday, to "get better acquainted with your kinfolks." Exercises will begin at 10:30 in the morning.

W. L. Counts, of Honaker, Va., and E. J. Sutherland, of Clintwood, are in charge of arrangements. Members of the family are numerous and several live in Washington as well as in nearby Virginia.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

WASHINGTON FRIENDS are delighted to learn of the return to the Capital of Mrs. D. A. McDougal and her daughter, Violet, who have been in the Middle West for nearly three months. Mrs. McDougal combines politics and poetry as chairman of the poetry division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Democratic national committeewoman from Oklahoma (her former home is Sapulpa).

She was en route to Tulsa to attend the council meeting of the General Federation last spring when she was taken ill and obliged to sojourn in a St. Louis hospital for too many weeks. She missed the council meeting, much to her dsiappointment, for she would have been among the past presidents of the Oklahoma State Federation who acted as joint hostesses with Mrs. Robert Campbell Lawson, president of the General Federation (whose home is in Tulsa), in welcoming the clubwomen from other States.

Mrs. McDougal has encouraged the establishment of poetry clinics during her chairmanship of the poetry division of the federation and organized that in Washington which is so successfully conducted by Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, poetry chairman for the D. C. Federation. She considers them valuable in the inspiration and instruction which they afford young poets.

Her daughter, Violet, is poet laureate of Oklahoma and several years ago, with another daughter, Mary, published a book of poems which included one written by their mother—herself a writer of enviable ability. Mary, who is Mrs. Iver Axelson, has abandoned verse for prose and play-writing, and is now in Hollywood. Her "Life Begins," which was first a stage play and then a movie, is having a vogue abroad as well as in this country.

• • • •

RUTH HUXMAN, daughter of the Governor of Kansas and Mrs. Walter Huxman, and Ann Laughlin, director of the National Youth Administration for the State of Kansas, had the thrill of being passengers aboard the Normandie on her fastest crossing from New York a few days ago. They stopped in Washington on their way to New York, accompanied by Gov. and Mrs. Huxman, who came to see them off. They expect to return September 1 and may stop in the Capital again on their way home.

When Ruth returns to Kansas she will enter the State university at Lawrence, where Peggy Ann Landon, daughter of the former Governor and Presidential candidate, also is a student. The girls are in different classes and do not look alike but they resemble each other in their somewhat shy attitude, say their friends.

• • • •

AND, while we're on the subject of Kansas, there are two visitors here from Abilene, Wild Bill Hickok's old town. They are Mary and Ethel Giles, daughters of the late William B. Giles, who was one of the pioneers of that section. They have been sightseeing, visiting markers and monuments erected in memory of persons and events of a century or two ago, and can't help but be impressed with the fact that history in the Middle West is much nearer at hand than that linked with the beginnings of the country.

Miss Ethel Giles, as regent of the Abilene Chapter of the D. A. R., officiated at the dedication of the granite boulder erected several years ago on the grounds of the postoffice there, marking the end of the Texas cattle trail. As chairman of this historic markers committee of the chapter, she is now arranging to place a tablet on the bridge of Mud Creek, marking the ford through which the old overland stage used to pass, in the '60s and '70s.

Regents of the chapters here consult books on history for the facts in connection with events they are commemorating—Miss Giles just recalls what her father told of the early days.

He was assistant station agent for the old Kansas Pacific (later the Union Pacific), when D. R. Gordon was there as agent. She remembers his stories of buffalo herds, Indian raids, and how long-horned Texas steers roamed the streets of Abilene as well as the plains, before the herd laws were passed. During a flood, when Mud Creek overflowed its banks and converted the surrounding country into a vast lake, the young station agent and his assistant looked off over the water and spotted a point of ground high enough to be out of the water. On it was a buffalo skull, and they chose that site for their homes. Later they built neighboring residences there, in which they lived to the time of their deaths.

In Somerville, Mass., the Giles sisters found a marker in memory of their fifth great-grandfather, who was a hero of the Battle of Lexington, the first "minute man" of the village, then known as Charlestown, to fall before the British—but compared to Abilene's history that was a long time ago.

Women's Board To Pick Winner Of Radio Award

FOR THE SECOND consecutive year the Women's National Radio Committee has been asked by the American Legion Auxiliary to select the recipient for its annual radio award. This will be presented at the national convention of the auxiliary in New York City the week of September 30, according to announcement in the latest issue of Radio Review, publication of the committee. It will be given to the sponsor of the program—whether broacasting company or manufacturer—"which is most acceptable and worth while to the general family audience, yet in harmony with the principles of the American Legion Auxiliary."

Last year's award, for the program "which would be typically American, which would appeal to the patriotism of our people, which would be a benefit to the children of the Nation," went to the Columbia Broadcasting system for the American School of the Air.

Its presentation vies in interest with presentation of the annual awards of the Women's National Radio Committee. Winner of the award is to be announced at the convention of the auxiliary by Mrs. William H. Corwith, radio chairman of the auxiliary and member of the executive committee of the Women's National Radio Committee.

The radio committee's midsummer publication indicates that even during the vacation season the committee's diligent "tuners-in" are not idle, since there is a wealth of comment in current programs.

Lively commentary is found in a letter from a New Haven listener, who protests that many day programs "insult the intelligence of women by talking down to the level of a child and by putting an overdose of repetition in advertising blurbs."

Women's Council Plans Tea Tonight

Mrs. Benson and Mrs. Schorr to Be Honor Guests.

An informal bon voyage tea will be given at 8 o'clock tonight at the Democratic Women's National Council clubrooms in the mezzanine suite of the District National Bank Building for Mrs. Berry T. Benson and Mrs. Harry G. Schorr.

Mrs. Benson, who is co-chairman from Texas, is leaving with Mr. Benson for Calcutta, India, for three years of foreign service. Mrs. Schorr is returning to New York City, where she will establish residence with Mr. Schorr, who has accepted a position there.

All council members have been invited to the tea.

Back From Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Brand returned to Washington yesterday after a seven-week trip to Europe. Their tour included Germany, Holland, England and France. They arrived in New York on the Europa.

Federal Study Rushed; Utility Firm Is Silent

By the Associated Press.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Aug. 10.—Four men were killed today and five other persons injured by the crash of an Eastern Air Lines plane into a power line erected overnight near Daytona Beach Airport.

Two crew members and two passengers died in the wreck, the first fatal accident in the history of the company.

Heading from Chicago to Miami, the big Douglas airliner struck a pole of the power circuit in taking off southward at 4:40 a. m. (Eastern standard time), hurtled over a clump of pine trees and dropped in the sand of a scrub palmetto thicket.

Flames flared momentarily as motors were torn loose, but they went out without igniting the cabin.

Investigation Rushed.

The Commerce Department, the State of Florida, the air line and the Florida Power & Light Co. moved swiftly to investigate.

The dead were:

Robert Reed, of Miami, copilot.

J. F. Phillpotts, of Kingston, Jamaica, passenger.

W. G. Marian (or J. Triana), of Mexico City, passenger. (Hospital attendants said his papers bore the name of Triana.)

The injured:

E. W. Phillpotts, 10-year-old son of J. F. Phillpotts, bruised and suffering from shock.

H. M. Hamilton, of Detroit, shock and bruises.

F. M. Thompson, Greenville, S. C., concussion of the brain and possible skull fracture.

C. V. Dunlap, of Chicago, fractured hip.

Ignorant of Hazzard.

Pete Dygert, airport manager, said he was "sure the pilot did not know the (power line) hazard was there."

"I was not notified last night of the new line being strung," Dygert said. "This morning I was informed that the line was placed there to give service to a small area to the west which had been interrupted when an underground cable failed."

Bryan Hanks, president of the Florida Power & Light Co., declined in Miami to comment pending a report from J. H. White, general superintendent, and Russell Groves, claim agent, who rushed to this city to investigate.

In Washington, Ernest G. Draper, Acting Secretary of Commerce, named a three-man board to conduct open hearings on the case.

Members are Denis Mulligan, chief of regulations and enforcement of the Air Commerce Bureau; Robert I. Hazen and George L. Losgow, air line inspectors at Newark.

Wiley Wright, supervising Federal inspector for the Atlanta Division, flew from Atlanta to Daytona Beach. H. C. Whitney, director of aviation for the Florida road department, also headed for this city.

Former Passenger Hero.

Wreckage lay about for their inspection. The cabin, the rear part almost intact, was jammed against a small tree. The wings fell several hundred feet away.

Two passengers who disembarked here, Charles G. Williams, of Orlando, Fla., and Dr. Charles M. Gratz, of New York, were among the witnesses of the crash.

Williams said Dr. Gratz was the hero of the rescue work.

"He was among the first to enter the plane following the crash," Williams said, "and gave what care he could to the injured passengers. He faced possible injury or death himself entering the wreckage, as it appeared the plane would burst into flames at any time."

Te injured Hamilton told hospital physicians he and the Phillpotts boy aparently droped through the floor of the cabin. Sand cushioned their fall.

K.K.K. Asks $113,500, Says Movie Used Label

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 10 (AP).—The Ku Klux Klan filed suit for $113,500 today against two motion-picture producers on a charge that klan insignia was used in filming "The Black Legion."

Warner Brothers, Inc., and Vitagraph, Inc., were named in the Federal court patent action by Morgan Belser and Augustine Sams, attorneys for the klan.

The suit asserted "two principal characters" in the motion picture of a terroristic organization wore the klan's white cross "superimposed upon a background of red with a black square, inclosing a red design in the form of a spheroid, superimposed upon the center of the cross."

factors and their relative importance so that the taxpayer, the operator, the ship worker and the inventor will know the problem and the proper solution."

The survey will be divided into seven general phases, listed as:

Foreign trade—Involving such questions as whether ships subject to our own control necessary to insure continued delivery of our goods, both exports and imports, and whether a merchant marine in itself tends to develop new markets.

National defense—What the Navy requires in the way of auxiliary tonnage, what the Army requires in troop and supply ships, and whether merchant shipping is necessary to preserve the shipyards and the art of shipbuilding and as a source of trained men.

Labor—The number of people making their living out of subsidized shipping, their earnings as compared with those abroad and those on shore, and steps to protect the industry against disastrous strikes.

Capital—Necessary steps to make shipping stable and profitable enough to attract private capital, and the importance of shipping as a customer of other industries.

Requirements—The number, sizes, types and speeds needed by America, whether superliners should be built and the likely effect of recent aeronautical developments on shipping.

Policy—Whether ships should be built in private or Government yards, or both; whether operators can obtain down payments for private building and whether they are likely to default.

Cost—The difference in cost of construction and operation of American and foreign ships, and what amount the Government must be prepared to spend.

Among those appointed to make the survey are L. Seward, professor of mechanical and marine engineering at Yale; Thomas H. Healy, dean of the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University; Grover G. Heubner, professor of commerce and transportation at the Wharton School of Finance; Co. James M. S. Waring, industrial analyst, of New York, and Theodore J. Kreps, associate professor of business economics at Stanford University, California.

28th St. Citizens' Petition May Result in Wide Ban, Start Garage Boom.

contending it would "inconvenience" other residents of the community.

Striking at this answer, yesterday's petition asked:

"Are the lives of our precious little ones to be sacrificed indiscriminately in order to provide a public garage and dumping ground for the cars of those who have absolutely no other interest in this block than to clutter it up with their silent engines of destruction and, perhaps unwittingly enough, to endanger our little ones' lives?"

Nearly every signer of the petition has one or more children. A total of 25 children under ten live in the block.

"And there being no playground in the vicinity, these children are forced to play on the sidewalks," the petition read.

Eldridge refrained from commenting on the possibility of traffic officials reversing their earlier stand on the parking ban question.

"We will study the problem," he said, "and take whatever action seems necessary."

Every house along Twenty-eighth street, the petition pointed out, has a garage at the rear. Persons who use the street for parking purposes apparently live in the community's several apartment houses—Woodley Park Towers, Cathedral Mansions and the Kennedy-Warren, it was asserted.

Had parking been prohibited on one side of the street, citizens feel, the Levy boy would not have been killed. Another child, Richard Powell, of 2925 Twenty-eighth street, recently was knocked down and injured by a truck under similar conditions.

At the same time yesterday, the American Automobile Association, through its general manager, Russell E. Singer, urged a program of pedestrian control and protection in current efforts to reduce accidents and deaths.

3d Mate Exhibited By Merry Fahrney

She said they plan to remain here two or three weeks for a rest before returning to Chicago to settle an estate and then sail from New York for Paris September 15.

The baroness declined to disclose the time or place of their marriage, which she said "wasn't terribly recent."

More Glen Echo Parking.

Glen Echo Park will have enlarged parking space, it was announced yesterday by the management. Through arrangement with the Secretary of War, upon recommendation of Maj. W. D. Luplow, United States District Engineer, the ban on automobile parking on the Conduit road directly in front of the park, has been removed effective next Saturday.

Dancer Is Declared Killed or Kidnaped

Paris, Aug. 10 (AP).—Police reported today they have evidence indicating Jean de Koven, 22-year-old dancer from Brooklyn, N. Y., has been killed or kidnaped.

They quizzed a man and woman, whose identities were guarded, for several hours in the presence of Miss Ida Sackheim, the missing girl's aunt.

Though they refused to reveal the couple's testimony, it was reported the authorities believed they had received valuable information on the movements of the American dancer, who disappeared more than two weeks ago.

Death of Mrs. Riggs In New York Revealed

Washington social circles were saddened yesterday when they learned that Mrs. Alwina Bohlen Riggs, widow of Col. Elisha Francis Riggs, died in New York, July 4.

Mrs. Riggs died in Lenox Hill Hospital following an appendicitis operation.

She and Mme. Rose Nano, former wife of the Councilor of the Rumanian Embassy, were inseparable friends. Mrs. Riggs was known to Washington society as a charming member of the younger set.

Col. Riggs, her husband, former insular chief of police at San Juan, Puerto Rico, was assassinated in February, 1936, by a Puerto Rican nationalist.

Mrs. Riggs, until her departure with her husband for Puerto Rico, made her home at Hyattsville. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mary C. Bohlen, 1736 R street northwest.

First Federal May Purchase Fidelity Assets

Offer Is Reported After Meeting With Home Loan Board.

The First Federal Savings and Loan Association has offered to take over the assets of the closed Fidelity Building and Loan Association, it was reliably reported last night.

Although officials of the First Federal and the Home Loan Board refused to comment on the report, it was learned the offer was made after a lengthy meeting held yesterday.

This is the second time the First Federal has stepped into the picture of Fidelity's tangled affairs. On June 26, Harry P. Somerville, its president, wrote a letter to the Federal Home Loan Bank saying he saw no reason why the association "should be in the picture at all," if it was expected to pay depositors in the defunct association 85 per cent on their claims.

Withdrawal of First Federal at that time caused James H. Nolan, receiver, to issue the warning liquidation must proceed "in a short time" unless depositors develop a plan for reorganization. Shortly thereafter, Mrs. Marc Bullis, chairman of a depositors' group, was successful in efforts to bring together shareholders of the closed institution and officials of the Treasury and of the Home Loan Board.

Though no statement was issued after that meeting, which was held last Friday, the impression was gained by one who attended that "definite reorganization steps" would be taken early this week.

Chief Engineer Held in Laundry Elevator Death

Cited to Jury After He Admits He Knew Lift Had Only One Gate.

Charging the elevator death of a 22-year-old workman was due to negligence, a coroner's jury yesterday ordered James F. Lanham, chief engineer of the Palace Laundry, held for action of the grand jury.

Only a few hours after the hearing, a woman supervisor was seriously hurt when she fell down one floor in an elevator shaft at the City Postoffice.

After listening to conflicting testimony in the death of James Steadman, colored, on August 3, the jury brought in a verdict holding that Lanham knew of the removal of a safety gate on the lift and tolerated its nonreplacement. Lanham lives in the 600 block of K street northeast.

The engineer said the collapsible safety gate was removed three weeks before the accident to provide extra space to accommodate machinery.

Two assistants made the change without consulting him, Lanham said.

"But I would have done the same thing," he added. He emphasized that he did not know that the removal was contrary to District regulations.

Frank J. Herrity, of an elevator repair firm which has a contract to maintain and make weekly inspections of the Palace Laundry freight car, also asserted he did not know that District regulations require two safety gates on elevators of the type involved. He was inclined to think Steadman's death was not due to the absence of the gate, but Joseph W. Brown, chief elevator inspector for the District, intimated that factor was responsible.

Steadman was slowly crushed to death when the elevator suddenly began to rise as he was about to board it, pinning his body between the platform and the first-floor ceiling.

Yesterday's victim was Mrs. Marion Barkley, 42, of 1205 I street northeast. She was rescued by workers who were attracted by her screams.

Postoffice officials refused to comment on the mishap. Whether the shaft door was open and circumstances of the accident were not determined.

Red Cross Life Saving Class to Start Tonight

The organization of a senior life saving class at the East Potomac Pool, beginning this evening at 7:30 o'clock, was announced yesterday by the District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross. It will be continued on Monday, Wednesday and Friday night until the class is completed.

Instruction is free, the only charge being admission to the pool. Persons over 17 with fair swimming ability are eligible. The instructor will be J. E. King.

WPA Servant School to Train Mistresses to Pay $6 a Week

They Also Will Be Taught How to Make Life More Pleasant for Employes, if Director's Plans Succeed.

When Washington hostesses return from summer vacations they will find a trained supply of maids and cooks available, but they need not count on paying any of them less than $6 a week and carfare.

If they insist on going below this average, they will get a "good talking to" from the Domestic Training School for Girls, a WPA project which has placed more than 100 servants in the District and will have almost that many more ready by autumn.

The school admits it had a pretty tough time last winter—not in finding employers, but getting them in the mood to pay enough.

This year as much time will be spent training employers, almost, as will be spent training girls who enroll for the 6-to-9-weeks course.

A series of lectures that will reach every club woman in the District is being planned. If the women are not convinced by this method, Supervisor Margaret Selvig will endeavor to finish the course when the actual hiring is being done.

There will be more than money matters involved. The employers will be instructed in the type of treatment expected from their employes.

"That's harder than it sounds. An emotional reaction is involved. Many women can see exactly where Mrs. Jones is wrong in the treatment of her maid, when they cannot understand that they are at all to blame for some of the things they are doing to make life less pleasant for their workers," Miss Selvig said.

The school realizes that it cannot train a first-class cook in nine weeks' time. Most of its students are raw recruits from relief families. Some of them, however, have had experience and just come in for additional training. These, the school usually insists, should have $10 a week as a beginning.

The WPA also is interested to see that raises come along in due time. First class trained and experienced maids and cooks should make from $15 to $20 a week in Washington, according to its estimates.

A weakness in the school's present set-up, it is agreed, is the lack of classes for colored boys. There is a great demand for trained houseboys and colored male cooks in Washington. It may be that a school for them, or at least a class, will be started in the fall.

Only colored girls are trained in the school, although white girls were enrolled when it opened more than a year ago.

"The joint training did not work out. Most white girls do not want to be domestics and then there is not much demand for them in Washington. The girls prefer to be waitresses or to get clerking positions where they will come under minimum wage provisions," Miss Selvig said.

The school, which is located at 1112 O street northwest, trained approximately 65 girls each session. Its faculty consists of three instructors and the supervisor. In its placement efforts it co-operates closely with the National Employment Service.

Tyro Astronomers United by Comet To Found Society

As the result of interest created by the Finsler comet, Washington's amateur astronomrs will meet at the United States Naval Observatory at 8 p. m. Saturday to discuss organization of an astronomical society.

Stephen Nagy, who makes telescopes as a hobby, will lead in forming the organization and will teach telescope-making to all interested. U. S. Lyons, associate astronomer at the observatory, will assist the amateurs in getting started.

Nagy estimates between 50 and 60 District astronomers will welcome a chance to hold regular meetings, discuss astronomical discoveries, have their own telescopes and listen to occasional lectures.

The Finsler is still visible and can be seen near the handle of the Big Dipper. Visibility is bad in the city, however, and most of the Washington astronomers are going "into the country" to watch the spectacle.

D. C. Vote Seekers Name Group Heads

Under the direction of Karl Gerber, the Citizens Committee for Progressive Action in Obtaining Suffrage for the District met last night in Wesley Hall. About 100 representatives of various civic and educational groups attended.

It was decided a joint conference of all groups interested in suffrage for the District would be held about the first of October.

Bandit Recoups Gaming Losses At Pistol Point

A court argument among robbery victims as to the ownership of confiscated cash appeared possible last night after a confessed bandit with a weakness for gambling was turned over to police by his second subject, the loser of $1,000.

The confessed robber, who said he was Edwin Winter, 23, of the 1100 block New Hampshire avenue northwest, said he took $129 from a young couple in a park at Twenty-first and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Then he went to a gambling casino in Maryland and lost it.

Lewis Bralove, 1417 Newton street northwest, had been just $1,000 luckier at the casino. As he was leaving he agreed to give Winter a ride into town and, police said, the rider drew a gun at Twenty-first and M streets northwest, tok the $1,000 and fled.

Bralove decided the best place to find his man at that hour was in a restaurant. Immediately he began a tour of all-night eating places and finally located the bandit.

But Winter had only $464 with him and said he had lost the balance in a crap game. Police said he admitted his guilt after being identified in a police lineup by Bralove and the first victims, Willard Hinze, 824 Eighth street northwest, and Naomi Hurst, 2021 O street northwest. Hinze said the man took $125—six months' savings—from his wallet and $4.60 from Miss Hurst.

Legal dabblers were puzzling last night over who would get the $464.

A gun was found in Winter's room, police said. He will appear in a headquartes line-up this week and will be questioned in connection with several other holdups.

Late last night police arrested a colored man who, they said, admitted he had committed several robberies in the Sixth and Tenth Precincts.

50-Foot Fall Fatal To Gallinger Inmate

Josephine Ashton, colored, 26, mental patient in Gallinger Hospital, leaped to her death over a bannister in the hospital yesterday afternoon.

Civil Service Opens Engineering Tests to Men Without Degrees

Commission Welcomes Self-Trained Candidates, Prefers Ability to Either Charm or College Training.

Colleges and charm schools can continue to stress personality and degrees if they want to, but the Civil Service Commission—one of the Nation's biggest job getters—is going to hold out for efficiency only, let the diplomas fall where they may.

The commission has announced that some of its next examinations for engineering positions will be open to persons without college degrees, which is something new in the commission's requirements.

And then yesterday it admitted that it is making no effort to test for personality.

"If a Government executive asks us for a stenographer, we send him three certified ones to select from. If it just happens that none of the three is pleasing to him personally, then he can do his own typing," a commission spokesman declared.

It was agreed that personality might be the differentiating factor in determining who of the three would get the job, however.

"It is also true that the beautiful blonde may continue to get the breaks, but we would hardly consider an objection to personality as a valid reason for sending an office some more applicants to pick from."

The commission said that while it was ready to consider any "valid objections" that might be raised against persons they had certified on the basis of efficiency only "not once in three years do we get any comeback."

Although refusing to commit itself about letting down all the college-degree fences to make way for self-trained individuals, the commission pointed out that job trends do not always go in the same direction.

Could it be that the era of playing up to the boss and bragging about your football record is giving way to the age in which the advice will be: "Go Train Yourself"?

The commission wouldn't know about that. As it sees the situation, it has always stressed efficiency and will continue to do so.

Palmisano Seeks Bank Law Changes

A bill to revise banking laws and practices here, bringing them more into line with those in the more progressive States, was introduced yesterday by Chairman Palmisano, of the House District Committee, at the request of the District Bankers Association. Action will be sought at the next session.

The bill would make "stop payments" on checks good only for six months unless renewed, although renewals could continue indefinitely; make checks good for one year only, thus aligning this city with 18 States that have "stale check" laws; require protests of checks to be legally made; require customers to inform banks within six months of cases when checks have been forged, altered or raised, if the bank is to be held legally liable for payment.

Navy Soon to Pick Site for Hospital

Selection of a site for the new naval medical center here is expected within ten days or two weeks, according to Rear Admiral Perceval S. Rossiter, surgeon general of the Navy.

Meantime plans for the building are being prepared in the Bureau of Yards and Docks in an effort to fit construction to topography shown on maps of locations under consideration.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission is studying relative real estate values and transportation, sewage, light, gas, temperature and water facilities of the various sites.

Present plans call for a Georgian colonial type of structure of red brick with white stone trimming similar to the architecture found in Williamsburg. A building of three stories is favored, Admiral Rossiter said.

Firing of Taylor Asked by Post Of Legion Here

Victory Unit No. 4 Also Wants His Pay Cut Immediately.

Victory Post, No. 4, of the American Legion last night asked for an immediate salary cut and eventual discharge for John Thomas Taylor, national legislative director of the legion.

The post's resolution will come before the District department convention of the legion which opens tomorrow at the Hotel Mayflower.

In asking that Taylor's salary be cut, the post declared that he had entered private practice and was not giving his full time to legion affairs. They demanded that his salary be slashed from $6,000 a year to $1,000, and that the national commander find a full-time legislative director to supplant Taylor.

The convention tomorrow will be opened with a parade from Fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest to the Mayflower. Representatives of the 6,800 members of the District's 36 posts will attend.

Principal business of the convention will be the election of officers to be held Saturday, the concluding day of the meeting. Present head of the local department is Horace W. Lineburg.

Nomination of officers will take place Friday night. Candidates expected to enter the race are Thomas Mason, jr., of the Second Division Post, and Porter L. Brush, of the Lincoln Post. Mason is a police lieutenant in charge of the hack inspector's office. Porter is personnel head at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Judge Curran to Talk Before Cosmopolitans

Police Court Judge Edward Curran will spek at a meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club at 12:30 tomorrow at the Carlton Hotel. He will talk on "Suggested Changes in Police Court Procedure for the More Efficient Administration of Justice."

Past President Fred J. Rice will introduce Judge Curran. Arthur Defenderfer will preside at the meeting.

Shakespeare's Fairy Fantasy Is Ably Acted

'Midsummer Night Dream' Attracts Huge Throng to Sylvan Theater.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Admirably adapted to the picturesque setting in which it was enacted, Shakespeare's woodland fantasy of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" last night was presented in the National Sylvan Theater, on the Monument grounds, by the Washington Players, assisted by the Alice Louise Hunter Dancers and the Washington Civic Orchestra, under the conductorship of Samuel Page Ford. It was the fourth annual presentation of the play by the same group and by its rounded artistic excellence justified the presence of the audience of thousands that packed the reserved and general admission chair sections as well as the grassy slope extending on a gentle rise from the stage to the towering monument to the father of his country.

The play of the hapless human lovers enmeshed in the impish pranks of the Fairies, of whom Oberon is king and Titania queen, was presented without intermission and with a continuous musical score that was helpfully played in subdued tone by the orchestra under the skillful baton of Mr. Ford.

While the outdoor setting of the Slyvan Theater precludes scene changes in the usual sense, the acting version of the "Dream" arranged by Bess Davis Schreiner, with Arthur Rhodes as guest director, afforded a well-planned and comprehensive condensation of the most delightful interludes in the Bard's whimsical play. It was well lighted, well costumed and productive of many exquisite "stage pictures" that harmonized in fine fashion with the waving background of swaying trees and the "proscenium" dressing of tall and graceful populars.

Cast Gives Fine Reading.

The cast assembled under the sponsorship of the Community Center Department and the Office of National Capital Parks for this ninth consecutive festival program in the summer season was composed both of players who have appeared in the same roles in earlier productions and newcomers to the ensemble. With only a few lapses in lines, they gave the fanciful play a clear and effective reading.

The two lovers about whom the action of the fantasy revolves, Theseus and Hippolyta, were played efficiently by Milton Hirshfield and Christine Irish, with Yerby Pannill as Hermia, Thomas M. Cahill, one of the ablest members of the company, appearing in the role for the fourth season, as Egeus, her father; Adele Whiteside, as Helena; Joseph Dosh, as Lysander; William Milton, as Demetrius, and Thomas Hickey, as Philostrate. A rich vein of comedy was contributed by the six village louts who present "The Most Lamentable Comedy and Most Cruel Death of Pyramus and Thisbe," the play within a play. These low-comedy clowns were impersonated with fitting ribaldry by J. Edmond Veitch, as Bottom, the weaver, who comes into sudden and inexplicable possession of an ass' head; Kent Dyer, as Quince, the carpenter; Harry Crow, as Snug, the joiner; Edgar Kloten, as Flute, the bellows mender; Joseph Custer, as Snout, the tinker, and Paul W. Murphy, as the deaf and misunderstanding Starveling, the tailor. They performed their considerable chore extremely well.

The fairy characters in the play were portrayed with no less deftness by John Van Sikken, as Oberon; Frances Dewey, as Titania; Titania's fairies by Alice Louise Hunter, Marjorie McCann, Carol Shea and Catherine Shea; Oberon's elves by Muriel Ann Matthews, Jeanne Graves, Jean Zelle[illegible] Claire Zellers. Hugh Smith made his first appearance in the mischievous role of Puck, and played that agile part with a bounding ebullience that held his scenes to a high pitch of spirited action.

Dancers and Color.

While the fairies may not all be said to have been "dancing on moonbeams," the Alice Louise Hunter Dancers nevertheless provided graceful intervals that added greatly to the color and the movement of the play.

Everything considered, last night's interpretation of this perennially popular romance of fairyland in the summertime was such as to place this group of players and the shimmering beauty of the Sylvan Theater's natural settings on a parity with the foremost of the "summer theater" activities to be found anywhere in the United States, at a season when this type of entertainment is preponderantly the vogue, especially in the East.

Although not at all true last evening, it is too often the case that Washington pays scant heed to local enterprises that would be looked upon as a high expression of the art of the theater if encountered in any other community. It is a fine tribute to the Capital's discriminating sense that last night's production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was accorded so enthusiastic a reception by so tremendous a crowd of attentive and appreciative listeners.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Darryl F. Zanuck Sticks to a Proved Film Formula In 'You Can't Have Everything', His New Musical

Playwriting Forms Basis of Substantial Plot in Celluloid Musical Comedy Coming to the Capitol; Louise Hovick Makes Debut as "Actress;" Film Officials Move Into the Open; The Fords Begin to Pack.

THE perspicacious Mr. Darryl F. Zanuck, who resides over the productional activities of the Twentieth Century-Fox, having hit upon a successful formula for light, screen musical entertainment in "Wake Up and Live," now seeks to duplicate that hit in "You Can't Have Everything."

BELL.

It will be recalled that "Wake Up and Live" utilized a substantial comedy-romance as its groundwork of plot, with incidental tunes by Gordon and Revel introduced to lend point to the play's radio background. The same procedure is followed in "You Can't Have Everything," previewed by the drama desks yesterday afternoon, with the treacherous business of playwriting as the foundation of its structure and more tunes by the same prolific composers interspersed throughout the action to provide life, gayety and laughter. While the new release lacks something of its predecessor's spectacular grandeur, it probably will exert the same sort of audience appeal as characterized Jack Haley's battle with the "live mike." This time it is Alice Faye who bears the brunt of the plot's pseudo-dramatic effectiveness.

With Miss Faye in the heroine's role, Don Ameche in that of the hero and Louise Hovick, the former Gypsy Rose Lee, as "menace," the musical's coherent and reasonably continuous narrative is well sustained through a considerable succession of variegated scenes, ranging from a theater's rehearsal stage to Greenwich Village's gayer night spots.

The pattern of the piece is such that specialties are introduced with gatling-gun rapidity by Miss Faye, Rubinoff and his violin, the Three Ritz Brothers, Tony Martin, a fine journeyman tenor; Tip, Tap and Toe and several others, not omitting one of Mr. Zanuck's shapelier choruses.

These Ritz Brothers are rapidly coming to the fore, as the saying goes, as the cinema's supreme exponents of butterfly lunatic comedy, being rivaled only by the Marx Brothers, the Yacht Club Boys and one or two other teams who dedicate their comic talents to an inspired type of insanity. The Ritzes, in the current subject, have more opportunities to go crazy than in any screen fol-de-rol in which they hitherto have appeared.

Now about this Louise Hovick-Gypsy Lee young woman. It seems to me that she has been pretty well fitted with a "straight" role in which she purports to become a "dramatic actress." As a matter of fact, Miss Hovick, as yet, is no such thing, but if she were a completely polished actress she would be totally out of character in her present assignment. Lulu Riley, the adventurous night-lifer impersonated by Miss Hovick, was not the most finished social product in the world. She was, on the contrary, a rough, tough sort of a gal, not averse to faking a marriage license and otherwise gumming things up generally for the handsome young couple so genuinely in love. Furthermore, Miss Hovick is a stunning looking creature, who sets off extravagant costumes to best effect. There are times when she bears a striking resemblance to Estelle Taylor, with her brunette coloring and large, dark eyes. Whether Miss Hovick will realize it or not, I mean that to be a compliment. Miss Taylor in her heyday was one of the screen's more eye-filling decorations.

Which will have to do on "You Can't Have Everything" until the complete and, I hope, particularized review appears on this page Saturday morning, following its Friday opening on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater.

• • • •

While we are on the topic—or were—of the latest Zanuck opus, it might be well to bend a brief eye upon that team of Tip, Tap and Toe, the three sepia dancing demons, who first were introduced to Capital audiences, if I remember correctly, in the last edition of George White's "Scandals" at the National. They since have appeared locally as a dancing act and proved dyed-in-the-wool (both literally and figuratively) show toppers. They do their original Haile Selassie number, on the drum-head, in "You Can't Have Everything" and are a riot, as usual. For the first time in my recollection, the cast of characters reveals their true identities. These three nimble colored boys are Samuel Green, Ted Fraser and Ray Winfield. So now we both know.

• • • •

This outing business is getting to be epidemic. Today the Warner Brothers theater managers are cavorting at the Annapolis Roads Club as guest of Zone Manager John J. Payette, as an al fresco antidote for yesterday's all-day indoor managerial conference in the Warner offices in the Earle Theater Building.

Tomorrow, true to habitual custom, the Loew executives, having the welfare of Gene Ford's fifth annual "Going Native" production at heart, are taking the chorus of the all-Washington revue, and as many of the principals as can make it, on a sail down the river to Marshall Hall and back on one of the Wilson Line steamers.

The ship will nose out into the Potomac from the Seventh street wharf at 2 p. m., and return at 5:45. On both trips the chorus will be put through its paces by Dance Director Harry Crosley and "bits" will be run through by some of the principals. The dancing probably will be better on the way down to the Hall than on the way back, what with all the hot dogs and pop at the resort and all!

• • • •

Definite announcement is made by the Loew executives that "Going Native" will occupy the stage at Loew's Capitol the week beginning Friday, August 20. That is by way of being only a week from this Friday—which ought to convey some notion of the progress that has been made in whipping the piece into shape. The boys and girls are working their heads off, despite the heat and humidity—or whatever it is that ails our collars these sticky days.

• • • •

And this naturally brings up the matter of Gene Ford's departure for bigger and better things in New York, immediately "Going Native" is out of the way.

While it is pleasant to contemplate the elevation of so versatile and efficient an executive-producer to a higher post in his organization—he will be in charge of all radio programs on Loew's radio station WHN, under the personal supervision of Louis K. Sidney—Gene will be sorely missed from his accustomed Washington haunts by a host of friends made during his incumbency of the managership of the Capitol.

This column has been intimately associated with Gene Ford ever since that remote evening on which we first met as members of the board of judges called upon to select the Washington girl to represent the National Capital in Paramount's production of "Eight Girls in a Boat." During the intervening years, I do not recall that we ever have had a battle worthy of the name. We have, however, in and out of the line of duty, had many swell times together, along with his charming wife, Kay, for whom this department's favorite nickname will not be divulged at this time—or probably at any other.

The Fords are about as nice people as you will meet in a lifetime of "show business" and to them we extend heartiest congratulations—and regrets.

• • • •

They are holding them over again. I mean to say that two of this week's most engaging screen exhibits will be continued through a second week each. These would be "The Good Earth," with Paul Muni and Luise Rainer, at the Palace, and "The Toast of New York," with Edward Arnold, Frances Farmer, Cary Grant and Jack Oakie, at RKO-Keith's. The first will be followed, eventually, by Robert Taylor and Eleanor Powell in "The Broadway Melody of 1938;" the second, by Bobby Breen in "Make a Wish."

There is a distinct note of novelty, by the way, in the screen trailer on "Broadway Melody," also previewed yesterday afternoon—the trailer, not the production. This advance announcement takes the form of a visit to a newspaper office by Robert Taylor in the guise of a press agent. As he displays his "stills" of the picture to the editor, they come to life on the desk and present brief excerpts from the action. What a relief from the eye-strain of the usual trailer's razzle-dazzle of moving lights and double-exposures! A "trailer" is called that, incidentally, because it precedes the picture it advertises—if you can figure that out!

• • • •

Eternal-Unities Note.

A great many "trailers" also, no doubt, have been called that because they take you for a ride!

Cooper to Fish.

Beard for Burns.

Follow "Good Earth" at Palace

Another addition to the season's growing list of spectacular musical productions will come to the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, following the extended run of Paul Muni and Luise Rainer in "The Good Earth." It will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Broadway Melody of 1938." Foremost among a galaxy of stars pictured in this latest release in the "Melody" series are Robert Taylor and Eleanor Powell, pictured above. From advance glimpses, this will prove the biggest of the lot.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 10.—Out of the past: In one of the main Hollywood-to-the-beach boulevards is an unpretentious little drive-in barbecue stand that serves memories with its sandwiches. It belongs to Francis X. Bushman, and its menus are adorned with the once-famous Bushman profile. Remember him as Marc Anthony in "Julius Caesar," as Messala in "Ben Hur," as the ardent lover in a hundred impassioned screen romances? You do if you are over 30, for two decades ago Bushman was the Robert Taylor of the day.

MAE WEST.

And of all that glory, only a pictured profile on a menu card remains. Ruined overnight when a divorce suit revealed that he not only was secretly married but had five children, he never was able to recapture the public fancy. Before, he had received thousands of fan letters (mostly from love-sick girls) each week; within ten days after the secret was out, his fan mail dwindled to nothing. He lost his stardom, lost his money and finally lost his sanity to such an extent that he permitted a press agent to ballyhoo his willingness to marry any woman who would pay his debts. That folly killed his last chance for a comeback.

I chatted with him and discovered to my surprise that he is no longer bitter about his tumble from the heights. "At first," he said, "I hated everyone. My dogs were my sole comfort. But now I don't mind it so much. I won't be trite and say I prefer things as they are—but I have the friendship of my children and I manage to keep going with this little business. I'm content."

There are stranger real-life dramas in Hollywood than ever reach the screen.

Had luncheon in the Paramount cafe and was so fascinated by the daily noon-time show staged there by Cecil B. De Mille that I almost forgot to eat. The ritual never changes. C. B. enters in the van of a procession of obsequious writers, assistants, and assorted yes-men, and regally leads the way to the table reserved for him. Not until he is seated do the De Mille retainers take their places. When C. B. speaks, there is a cathedral-like silence; when he pauses there is a race to agree. And all the while, his private secretary makes shorthand notes, lest some precious gem of wisdom be lost.

Why anyone should journey 7,000 miles to see a mere coronation is beyond me. It is so much more convenient to watch C. B. De Mille eat lunch.

I've had many a laugh at studio executives trying to sign up some promising newcomer, only to discover that he is already on their own payroll, but the latest case, I think, tops them all. It happened at a recent studio banquet, when a tall, good-looking chap got up and sang. The "big boss" leaned over and whispered to one of his assistants: "We want that boy, find out about him." "But," the assistant replied, "we've already got him. He's third on our fan mail list now." Not taken aback, the mighty one asked if they were capitalizing on his singing ability. They were not—but they would immediately.

And so Nick Foran, Warner Brothers famous cowboy, had his first name changed to Dick and became a singing star.

Many a screen star has real or fancied cause to complain of censorship, but Mae West is the only player in history who works with a professional "purifier" actually on the set, passing judgments upon each scene before it is filmed. He is supplied by Hays Office at Mae's own request. She is worried. The censors have been slashing her pictures unmercifully and she knows that unless she can forestall their cuts, her screen future is all in the past.

I want to tell you about a man named John Schliesger, who, in a town noted for its screwy jobs, undoubtedly has the most macabre of them all. Using a patented material that looks enough like human flesh to fool a surgeon, he makes automaton dummies that walk and run and gesture and talk. The intricate machinery that he tucks away in their insides gives them 32 separate movements. And he builds them, on order, in the exact likeness of any star. You have seen them on the screen closeups of car crashes and plane wrecks, and never noticed the deception—I stood beside an imitation of Ginger Rogers in his shop today and couldn't resist the impulse to touch "her" cheeks to make sure that I was not being hoaxed.

There's a new idea for you fan photo collectors. Schliesger would be glad to make you a Joan Crawford—for, say, $5,000.

Buy Drug Store For New Picture

That Hollywood's property men will never admit defeat in digging up out-of-the-ordinary items for movie realism has become axiomatic, but seldom has the rule been stressed better than the recent purchase of an entire drug store for one setting.

Opening sequence of the new comedy, "Love on Toast," are laid in a drug store. Instead of renting or "faking" the store and its decoratoins, Walter Tilford, Major Pictures' property head, went to an auction and bought an entire store that was going out of business.

Play in London.

Oscar Homolka, the European star who is making his American film debut in the Technicolor sea saga, "Ebb Tide," will appear on the London stage shortly in a play which he himself wrote in collaboration.

Foil.

Before he embarked on a screen career, Benny Baker, currently appearing in "Blonde Trouble," was a stooge for Jack Benny, America's ace radio entertainer and comedian.

Microphone Play Brock's Latest

Lou Brock, producer of Universal's super-musical, "Top of the Town," has been assigned to the production of "Behind the Mike."

He will make it as his next picture at Universal, putting it into production within the next few weeks.

At the same time, A. Dorian Otvos, one of the studio's top writers, has been assigned to prepare the script.

Unshaken.

Even earthquakes failed to interfere with the production schedule of "Spawn of the North," which worked throughout Alaska under Second Unit Director Richard Talmadge in the face of severe earth temblors.

Comedian Goes Riding on Rug For Next Film

Eddie Cantor Has Himself a Time on Magic Carpet in Secret Flight.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 10.—Eddie Cantor spent today riding through the air with the greatest of ease on Ali Baba's magic carpet. It didn't even make him dizzy.

The secret—and what a secret!—was that he didn't leave the ground. The carpet was on display and so was Eddie, but every time he took off for an aerial spin the siren shrieked, the red lights flickered, the majordomos shouted "Process shot," and all the visiting firemen were shooed off the Twentieth Century-Fox stage, where "Ali Baba Goes to Town" is being filmed.

They never did see Cantor's Axminster maneuvers aloft-aground. Film fans watching him in the theater a couple of months hence, soaring above an Arabian city on his carpet, never will discover how he did it.

Cantor, dressed in his red Ali Baba suit and curl-toed shoes, explained why.

"It isn't fair to the audiences to let them know how they're being fooled," he said. "It ruins the show for them. It's like a card trick. It's fun while you're wondering how it's done, but when you know, the trick is gone."

Furthermore, he said, one of the competitors might learn how to make carpets fly at 50 miles an hour and then where would he be? And where would the airplane manufacturers be? And wouldn't there be a mess of carpets in the clouds, sifting dust down on the pedestrians?

There are a few other now-you-see-it-now-you-don't disguises on the Fox lot, though, that aren't secret—probably because they're too big.

One of 'em is the lake in New York's Central Park. Its fine for use in all Gotham pictures, but momentariy it's being used as background for a jungle film. Some palm trees, some water lilies and some alligators turned the metropolitan pond into a mumbo-jumbo swamp.

Another oversized gadget is the combination Mississippi-River-Atlantic-Ocean-Lake-Michigan-Mediterranean Sea, with steamboat built in. This consists of a gigantic concrete tank, with turbines at one end to make a current, and some tremendous tubs at the other, which, when tipped, caused floods. The boat is built on the side for exterior shots of yachts and whatnots.

The ast item today from the Fox precincts concerns Gypsy Rose Lee, who used to undress four times a day in burlesque, and the dilemna of the press agents.

Gypsy, who got a job in the movies and had to keep her clothes on, as well as change her name to Louise Hovick, was swimming off Santa Monica yesterday when the undertow got her by both shapely legs and nearly swept her out to sea.

A life guard rescued her, half drowned, and today she's recovering. The studio publicists pondered the watery tribulations of La Gypsy and then decided—honest they did—not to tell anybody.

They figured it would sound too much like press agentry!

Newcomer Gets A Belated Break

A last-minute screen test turned disappointment into jubilation for Dick Baldwin, handsome dark-haired six-footer, when Darryl Zanuck telephoned him an outstanding screen assignment just as he was preparing to leave for New York to return to the stage.

Baldwin's screen test was considered so extraordinary that he was awarded the romantic lead in the three comic Ritz Brothers' first starring musical, "Life Begins in College."

Discovered by a screen talent scout several months ago while playing the lead in "Sailor Beware" in Newark, Baldwin was brought to Hollywood, but he obtained only three minor roles in "quickie" motion pictures.

This Morning

Fighters and Romance Just Don't Mix.

By Shirley Povich.

Mr. Louis Soresi, the reformed Italian banker who was so severely bitten by the boxing bug that he chucked his New York bank business and surrounded himself with a stable of fighters, often is given to wondering why.

He was saying the other night as he picked up the tab for a party in celebration of Vittorio Venturi's victory over Phil Furr that a fight manager's headaches are not only terrific but continual. And he wasn't thinking of the terrific figures on the tab he was fingering. Because Mr. Soresi finds a strange satisfaction in going to town as Mr. Host.

POVICH.

Not the least of Mr. Soresi's managerial worries, it seems, is the love-life of his boxers. With the equivalent of "Ach, such troubles!" Mr. Soresi began to recite the difficulties of keeping his fighters' minds on the box-fighting business.

* * * *

For six months I am a crazy man trying to get my Jorge Bresci a to make one of his good fights," Mr. Soresi was saying. "He was listless in the gymnasium—no pep, no punch, not nothing. Just like in a trance. Jorge tells me he is feeling well, but I don't believe it. After I get him some fights, he fights like a third rater and I cannot understand it.

* * * *

"And then I begin to get an idea. Jorge is in love, it occurs to me, and I am scared by the thought. That is bad. A fighter cannot be in love. He gets dreamy-eyed and is not himself. Romance and prize fighting do not mix, and I think, don't forget, that I have a great heavyweight in Brescia.

* * * *

"He tells me he is not in love, but I cannot believe him. I know the symptoms. It makes a fighter dull and I am sure Brescia is in love. I do not want to be his manager any more. I do not want fighters who are in love."

* * * *

Whereupon, this reporter, a stickler for facts if I do say so myself, observed that, at last reports, Mr. Soresi was still the manager of Brescia, and was that not so.

"Yes, I am still the manager of Brascei," Mr. Soresi confessed.

So, thinking I had him there, I inquired politely how come he was still the manager of Brescia if he would not be the manager of a fighter in love.

* * * *

"Well, it's like this. After six months, I found out it wasn't really love. It was tonsils. We had 'em taken out and Jorge is a good fighter again."

* * * *

Mr. Soresi, as you may have heard, rode to managerial fame on the coattails of Primo Carnera. Mr. Soresi has a weakness for Italian fighters and his stable is full of 'em. He will take on a South American boxer or perhaps a Basque, but in the main he likes Italian fighters.

* * * *

He liked Carnera, too, until the love-bug bit big Primo. It was the beginning of the end for Carnera, according to Soresi. When romance came into Primo's life, his earning power and his heavyweight title went out, Soresi says.

* * * *

"That night he is fighting Max Baer for the championship, Primo's mind is not on the fight," Soresi was saying. "I am his manager and I am in his corner before the fight and what is he thinking about? Not about Baer. He pushes me aside so he can look and see if his girl is sitting at the ringside."

* * * *

"I am sick when I see that. It is monkey business and I do not like it. I see the girl out there. She is wearing a big what you call corsage with flowers. Primo is paying no attention to me. He is watching her and he makes me get out of the way so he can seen her better.

* * * *

"And in that second round, even while he is fighting, Primo is looking for that girl. I can see him and I look too, and his girl has gone to sit somewhere else. With another boy friend, perhaps. Primo is not doing much fighting and when he cannot find his girl, he is in a trance.

* * * *

"There are sixty thousand people at the fight and 55,999 see Max Bear wind up and throw a long right. The only one who does not see him throw it is Primo and Primo goes down. He gets up, but he is through.

"Phoole on prize fighters' love."

Back in Rome, Primo Carnera need never to lift a hand to live in comfort for the rest of his life. According to Soresi. "He can live not perhaps luxuriously, but comfortably, from his ring earnings." Soresi was saying, "but he is sitting on a barrel of dynamite."

A barrel of dynamite?

* * * *

"Yes, that is why he cannot take those offers to go in for wrestling and collect the big money they will give him. He cannot fight any more and he cannot wrestle. He must be careful. Primo took a bad beating his last fight—with Leroy Haynes. There's a blood clot on his brain. Big Primo must be careful!"

Yale Golfers Win.

Aberdeen, Scotland, Aug. 10.—Yale's touring golf team scored an 8-to-3 victory over Aberdeen University today, winning the singles, 61 and tying at 2-all in the foursomes. One singles match was halved.

Two Fillies Also Figure In Big Race

40,000 Expected to See 'Kentucky Derby' of Harness Racing.

By the Associated Press.

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Twelve finely-tuned 3-year-old trotters went through their final paces today in preparation for tomorrow's renewal of the Hambletonian and then faded into the background while Greyhound, the wonder horse of the decade, failed by a narrow margin to smash a 15-year-old world record.

The stage was set early this morning for the Kentucky Derby of light-harness racing when the owners of the dozen trotters filed their intention of going after the purse of nearly $40,000. All that remained to assure the packing of Good Time Park with more than 40,000 fans was the co-operation of the weather man.

While preparations for trotting's richest race were going on behind the scenes, Greyhound thrilled today's crowd of some 15,000. The gray streak from E. J. Baker's stable of St. Charles, Ill., was timed in 1:58¼ against the clock, but failed by one and a half seconds in an attempt to break the international mark of 1:56¾ set by Peter Manning in 1922.

Driven by Sep Palin, Indianapolis veteran, Greyhound, himself winner of the 1935 Hambletonian, trotted the last half mile in 57 seconds, but needed 1:04¼ to go the first half, after going the first quarter mile in 30½ seconds.

Failure to lower Peter Manning's record marked the first time in nearly a year in which the 5-year-old gelding had failed to come through with his assignment. Earlier in the season over Goshen's half-mile track, he hung up a new mark of 1:59¾ for twice around the oval after trotting a mile in competition in 1:57¼ last year.

Italian Sees Race.

"Greyhound's showed me enough to believe that the pair will furnish a real duel," said Maiani. "I wouldn't be surprised to see your horse win here, but Muscletone should square matters at home, where the tracks are not so hard."

Meanwhile, DeSota, owned by Paul Bowser, Boston wrestling promoter, remained the firm choice to take down the major share of the Hambletonian purse. Fortunate enough to draw the favored pole position for the first of the two-best-in-three mile heats, the son of Peter Volo was quoted at 3 to 2.

A Surprise Horse.

Although the top-priced horse of the 1935 yearling sales, when he was sold for $7,500, DeSota showed little until this year. He trotted a mile in 2:02¼ in winning one heat of the National Stallion Stakes at Old Orchard Beach, Me., won an overnight race at the same track and then came through in the American at Agawam last week, stepping one heat in 2:02½.

Behind him in the three races were many of the same horses he will be asked to meet tomorrow under Tom Berry's guidance. W. N. Reinold's Schnapps, of Winston Salem, N. C., and Bill Strang's New York owned Twilight Song, the best of the 1936 juvenils, trailed in two of them, to lose much of the support they gained by early season performances. Both are trained by the veteran Lexington reinsman, Ben White, who won last year with Rosalind and in 1933 with Marv Raynolds.

Schnapps, which went 1 mile in 2:02½ in winning the Matron Stakes at Toledo, held second place in the prerace wagering at 3 to 1. Twilight Song, winer of the Lexington Futurity last year in 2:03½, was not far behind at 9 to 2.

There Is a Dark Horse.

The dark horse of the race is Athlone Isosola Guy, a son of Athlone Guy, owned by Dr. B. I. Pippin, of Richland Center, Wis. The bay colt came to Goshen with an enviable record over Midwest half-mile tracks, and record of 2:06. He was unbeaten over the smaller ovals last year and has bowed only once this season.

Bees Wallop Giants; MacFayden in Form

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 10.—Behind the six-hit pitching of veteran Danny Macfayden, who hung up his eighth victory, and paced on the attack by Tony Cuccinello, the Boston Bees opened a three-game series today by routing the second-place Giants, 6 to 1.

Despite their defeat, the Giants lost no ground to the Cubs who were beaten by Pittsburgh and thus remained six games in front.

Macfayden, who gave up not a single base on balls and only one extra-base hit, a double by Burgess Whitehead, would have had a shut-out except for a two-base error by Rabbit Warstler in the fourth that enabled Mel Ott to score.

Cuccinello provided the Bees with their winning margin when he belted a home run, his sixth of the year, off Hal Schumacher in the fifth with two men on, got two singles besides and drove in another run with a long fly. Schumacher, lifted in the fifth for a pinch-hitter, was charged with his eleventh defeat. He forced in the Bees' first run in the second.

Dick Coffman finished the game and was nicked for the last two tallies in the ninth, when Sam Leslie let Johnson's grounder go through him for an error.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Pittsburgh defeated the league-leading Cubs, 6 to 5, today on Al Todd's homer with the bases filled off Larry French in the third inning and a two-run rally in the eighth. Rip Collins, Cub first baseman, suffered a fractured ankle that will sideline him a month, and Woody Jensen, Pirate left fielder, incurred a possible fractured rib.

Despite their defeat, the Cubs maintained their six-game lead over the New York Giants, who were beaten by the Boston Bees.

White Sox Rally, Beat Tigers, 6-4

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 10.—The Chicago White Sox combined four walks with a single to score three runs in the eighth inning and defeat the Detroit Tigers, 6 to 4, today. The victory moved the Sox into third place.

They are now 1 point ahead of the Tigers and a game and a half behind the Boston Red Sox, who were rained out of their game with the league-leading Yankees.

Jimmy Collins Injures Ankle; Out for Month

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Jim (Ripper) Collins, the National League leading Chicago Cubs first baseman, suffered a fracture of his left ankle in the first inning of today's game with the Pittsburgh Pirates and probably will be out of action for a month or more.

Collins' mishap occurred when he attempted to score in the opening session. He slid attempting to beat a throw from Infielder Bill Brubaker to Catch Al Todd and caught his spikes in the plate. He rolled over several times, twisting his left leg.

He was carried from the field and Dr. John F. Davis, club physician, said an X-ray examination had shown "an incomplete fracture of the outer bone of the left ankle." Dr. Davis said the star first baseman would be out at least a month.

Collins was replaced by Phil Cavarretta, first sacker in 1935 and 1936, who yielded the job when Collins was obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals with Pitcher Bud Parmelee in exchange for Lonnie Warneke.

The Pirates lost a man in the sixth when Leftfielder Woody Jensen crashed into an iron gate in trying for a long foul drive. A preliminary examination showed a badly bruised right side. He was replaced by Johnny Dickshot. Earlier in the game Catcher Todd was shaken up in a collision with First Baseman Gus Suhr, of the Pirates, also on a foul ball chase, but remained in action.

Travis Gets 2 Hits And Drops 4 Points

Cecil Travis' batting average suffered a four-point slump yesterday as the Nats' shortstop was able to collect no more than two of the 28 hits served up by Philadelphia pitchers during the double-header.

Travis made only one hit in four times at bat in each game and his batting mark shrank from .389 to .385. He still retains a comfortable lead over Lou Gehrig, however. Gehrig, Travis' most persistent challenger for American League batting honors, maintained his average at .374 as the Yankees idled.

Wild Hurling, Errors Aid Griffs' Victories

Locals Take First Contest, 15-7; Score 9 Runs in 4th Inning; Capture Nightcap, 8-6, With Help of Miscues.

By Shirley Povich.

The Philadelphia Athletics came to Griffith Stadium yesterday bearing gifts in the form of two loosely played ball games which the Nats accepted by scores of 15 to 7 and 8 to 6.

The eighth-place A's presented the Washington club with the first game early in the proceedings when they served nine runs up to the Nats in a serio-comic fourth inning when six bases on balls helped to force three runs across the plate and three Philadelphia errors didn't hurt the Nats any, either.

The only thing the Nats contributed to those nine runs in that fourth were three measly hits—a pair of singles by Millies and Kuhel and a double by Simmons.

Errors Help Nats.

That A's held onto that second game as late as the seventh inning, when they had a 5-4 lead, but Outfielder Wally Moses, with a timely error, gave the Nats the tying run and in the eighth a crude piece of fielding by Shortstop Lamar Newsome inspired the Nats to go out and win the ball game.

They won it when Connie Mack's strategy went awry. He ordered Pitcher Harry Kelley to fill the bases by walking Cecil Travis and gambled on pitching to Al Simmons. It was a bad gamble, because Simmons bashed a double into left field and brought two of his pals home with the winning runs.

Pete Appleton couldn't hold a 3-0 lead the Nats gave him with a five-hit assault on Left-hander Edgar Smith in the first inning and in the second the A's went to the front, 4-3.

Hill Hits Home Run.

Jesse Hill, who could do nothing of the kind when he wore a Washington uniform, got their first run from the A's by banging a homer into the left field seats. Brucker tagged Appleton for a two-bagger and Pitcher Smith scored him with another two-bagger. Moses tripled to deep left and Finney drove in the fourth run of the inning with a single to center.

Appleton was rushed out of there by Manager Harris at the end of the third, but the A's greeted Linke with a run in the fourth, when the three men at the top of the batting order singled, but then Linke settled down and the Nats, with the help of the A's, gradually pulled into a tie.

Almada helped 'em to a run in the sixth when he doubled against the right field wall after Linke drew a walk, but the game-tying run in the seventh was a pure gift of Outfielder Wally Moses. Stone singled and so did Myer, but Moses let Myer's blow roll all the way to the fence and Stone dashed home from first with the tying run.

Linke Starts Rally.

The Nats' triumphant eighth was a sad affair for the A's. Linke started the winning rally with a single to center, but Newsome with a chance for a double play on Almada's grounder, muffed the ball and both runners were safe. There was some ragged work, too, on Lewis' bounder to Newsome. Parker failed to cover the bag for a double play and Newsome had to be content with an unassisted force play at second as Linke dashed to third.

Then it was that Travis was purposely passed and Simmons broke up the ball game with his double to left. Lewis scored the third run of the inning on Stone's infield out. The A's only answer to that uprising was Brucker's second home run of the day which opened the ninth. A double play on Pinch Hitter Dean's grounder closed it happily for the Nats.

No Pitchers' Duel.

The first game was no pitchers' duel. Earl Brucker banged a home run into the left field seats with Bob Johnson on base in the second inning and the Athletics had a 2-to-0 lead. Johnny Stone and Buddy Myer clouted a pair of triples to right and center in the same inning and the Nats had a 2-to-2 tie. By the end of the third it was 3 to 2 in favor of the Athletics.

Then, in the fourth, things began to go comic. George Caster couldn't get anybody out to speak of, but he owes his infield no apologies. They threw three large juicy errors into the proceedings, and what with Castor and his sucressor, George Turbeville, issuing six bases on balls, the Nats scored runs in bunches in that fourth inning, nine altogether.

Al Simmons, first up, bashed a double to leftfield. Russ Peters, at second base, muffed Stone's grounder and Simmons dashed to third. Caster walked Kuhel and the bases were full. Myer flied to Hill and nobody moved. But Millies singled to center and Stone moved across the plate. Kuhel moved home, too, when Catcher Brucker permitted Hill's throw to the plate to skip through his legs for an error.

Weaver Is Walked!

Then Caster walked Monte Weaver, of all people, and then walked Almada to fill the bases again. Buddy Lewis grounded to Peters and Ace Parker dropped the throw at second base and the bases were still full, Millies having scored. Caster walked Travis and forced Weaver home.

Whereupon Connie Mack, deducing that Caster was not effective, replaced him with Turbeville and the merry-go-round continued. Turbeville walking Simmons and Stone to force the sixth and seventh runs across the plate. The eighth and ninth runs followed a bit later when Kuhel singled to center.

Thus the Nats bounced into an 11-3 lead and thereafter it was a breeze for Monte Weaver. The Nats finished up out-hitting the A's, 12 to 10.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME INTERVAL, $11.20, $4.60, $3.20; RHODIUM, $4.00, $3.00; SKETCHBOOK, $4.00.

TIME INTERVAL went to the front at once, drew clear in the opening three-sixteenths and rated along under a light restraint, drew out when reaching the stretch, winning with speed to spare. RHODIUM worked his way up gradually after being unable to keep pace during the early running and was along in the last few strides to wear down SKETCHBOOK for the place. SKETCHBOOK, in nearest pursuit of the pace for most of the trip, moved up gamely when called upon, but weakened in the last sixteenth.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 2:57. Off 3:07½. Winner, E. T. Burke's and H. Lindauer's ch. f. (4), by Sun Briar—Loved One. Trained by F. P. Coltiletti. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:15 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MILLIMETER, $5.20, $3.60, $3.00; LINLACE, $9.00, $6.60; BERRY PATCH, $8.80.

MILLIMETER, well placed from the start, moved up on the inside leaving the backstretch, went to the front before reaching the stretch, drew clear and was never seriously threatened. LINLACE went to the front after going the opening three-sixteenths, continued with good energy, although unable to keep pace with the winner when challenged. BERRY PATCH, outpaced early, worked her way up steadily and came through on the inside at the stretch turn.

DAILY DOUBLE, TIME INTERVAL AND MILLIMETER, PAID $28.00.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:40. Off 3:42½. Winner, Coward and Coffey's blk. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NIGRETTE, $6.60, $5.00, $3.80; PETLINE, $12.40, $8.00; TELLING YOU, $6.60.

NIGRETTE took command at once, withstood determined early opposition from BROADKILL, shook off the latter, and drawing into a commanding lead, had to be hard ridden at the end to hold safe the closing challenge of PETLINE. The latter, well placed and reserved early, came with good courage in the stretch. TELLING YOU, far back early, came with a belated bid in the last three-sixteenths.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:10. Off 4:11. Winner Coward and Coffey's br. f. (3), by Chance Shot—Beginners Luck. Trained by R. A. Coward. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:49 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NANCY MAE, $23.20, $10.40, $4.80; JERRY S., $13.00, $5.00; ALMARINE, $3.00.

NANCY MAE moved up steadily after straightening out on the backstretch to take command nearing the half-mile ground, met determined opposition from JERRY S., shook him off after reaching the stretch to draw out. JERRY S., well placed all the way, made a determined effort to go along with the winner, but was not good enough, although continuing with good energy to close. ALMARINE, taken to the outside in the run down the backstretch, moved up willingly, although unable to improve her position in the closing test.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:39. Off 4:40. Winner, A. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ODDESA BOY, $17.60, $5.80, $3.60; BUILDING TRADES, $3.00, $2.60; IDLE ALONG, $3.20.

ODDESA BOY was pinched back by BUILDING TRADES rounding the first turn, dropped back rounding into the stretch, began bettering his position on the outside in the last three furlongs, and finishing with good energy, was up in the closing strides. BUILDING TRADES, much used in racing SATRAPAL into submission, went into a good lead, but down in the deeper going through the stretch weakened and just failed to last. IDLE ALONG, well placed and slightly restrained, moved up in the stretch, but was unable to alone any ground when placed under pressure.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:13. Off 5:20. Winner, I. E. Kelly's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIRING SQUAD, $38.60, $15.80, $12.60; ZOR, $4.80, $3.60; JUST DUN, $8.40.

FIRING SQUAD moved up gradually in the run down the backstretch, was greatly benefited when the leaders went wide at the stretch turn, drove through on the inside saving many lengths and getting to the front drew out. ZOR, as usual, was alert to begin, improved his position gradually and finished with good courage. JUST DUN drew clear straightening out on the backstretch, met determined opposition from GRANDEEM for the first six furlongs, weakening in the closing drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:49. Off 5:50. Winner, W. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHIPPERCRACKER, $7.40, $3.80, $2.80; BRIGHT MELODY, $3.40, $2.60; MAKEIT, $2.80.

WHIPPERCRACKER, as usual, was slow to begin and trailed his field until after reaching the backstretch, moved up gradually on the outside in the last three furlongs, and wearing down BRIGHT MELODY inside the last sixteenth, was going away at the end. BRIGHT MELODY was prominent from the start, insisted THE WINK with the lead, went to the front when called upon, met determined opposition from MAKEIT, and although holding on, was unable to withstand the bid of the winner. MAKEIT, forwardly placed all the way, made a bold bid to go along with the pacemaker, but was not good enough, faltering slightly in the last three-sixteenths.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 6:19. Off 6:21½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EL PUMA, $7.40, $5.20, $3.20; FOREION LEGION, $7.60, $4.00; PAYRACK, $3.80.

EL PUMA was well placed and slightly restrained until leaving the backstretch, moved up gamely on the outside when called upon and taking command in the stretch, was clear at the line. FOREION LEGION, unable to keep pace early, came through on the inside at the stretch turn and closed with a rush through the last furlong. PAYRACK took command at once, made a bold attempt to go along when challenged, but was not good enough, faltering in the closing drive.

Erickson Adds 72, Wins Public Links Medal With 139

Californian Equals Mark For Tourney

Rippy Leads District's Group With 148 as Oliveri Has 152.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Aug. 10.—Matching Harding Park's par 72 today to add to his sensational 67 in the first round, Don Erickson, husky Swedish sharpshooter from Alhambra, Calif., won medal honors in the National Public Links golf championship.

Erickson, whose par-cracking round yesterday also set a local course record, went out in par 36 and came home in the same figures to set the pace for an outstanding field of performers, gathered here from 61 cities throughout the country and as far westward as Hawaii.

Abbott Two Strokes Away.

Two strokes behind followed Pat Abbott, who mixes up Hollywood movie "bit" acting with an excellent brand of golf and in addition is the defending champion.

Abbott added a sub-par 71 to his first round 70 to retain his position as "the man to beat" for the title he captured last year at Farmingdale, N. Y.

The Washington, D. C., team, paced by last year's finalist, Claude Rippy, finished 33 strokes behind the Harding Cup winner, Sacramento. Rippy scored 72-76—147, Andy Oliveri was 75-77—152; Jimmy Gipe, 79-80—159, and Bobby Burton rallied with a 74 to finish 87-74—161.

The curly-haired youngster from Pasadena finished a shot ahead of Ralph Presby, whose fine 70 today and total 142 was largely responsible for Sacramento, Calif., winning the team championship.

Set Tourney Record.

The California quartet posted a team total for the 36 holes medal play at 587, also a new tournament record. His teammates and their two-round totals were Hall Dufour, 147, and Frank Toronto and Roscoe Guidero, each with 149.

Santa Monica, Calif., was second in team standings with 593 and San Francisco, runner-up last year, finished third with 597.

Qualifying easily were two other pretournament favorites, Carl Kauffmann, Pittsburgh, and Claude Rippy, Washington, D. C. Each finished in the 148 bracket with second-round scores of 76. Kauffmann won the title in 1927, '28 and 29. Rippy was runner-up last year.

Surface Wins Upset In Eastern Net Play

By the Associated Press.

Rye, Aug. 10.—Harold Surface, of Kansas City, turned in the first upset in the men's division of the Eastern grass court tennis singles championships when he walloped eighth-seeded John McDiarmid, Princeton University professor from Fort Worth, Tex., 6—1, 6—1, at the Westchester Country Club today.

Surface was the fifth player to gain the quarter-final round. Three third round matches were still left to be played.

Led by top-ranking Alice Marble, of San Francisco, the National Women's Champion, and Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland's star, who is seeded first on the foreign list, the women completed the quarter-final bracket. All matches moved according to form with only two unseeded players reaching the round of eight.

Although Surface's victory over McDiarmid was decisive, the Kansas City player, twelfth in the national ranking, did not play exceptional tennis.

The big-wigs of the tournament, with the exception of Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, seeded second, and Francis X. Shields, the movie actor and former Davic Cup winner, ranked No. 4, who is making a tennis comeback, saw action today. Frank Parker, of Milwaukee and New York, a member of the Davis Cup squad, seeded No. 1, was the first to move into the round of eight when he disposed of William Robertson, of Pasadena, Calif., 6—2, 6—3.

Bobby Riggs, of Los Angeles, ranked No. 3, settled down to defeat Peter Lauck, of Wynnewood, Pa., 8—4, 7—5, in their third-round meeting. Joseph Hunt, of Los Angeles, recent winner of the national junior title, was forced to three sets before topping Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, the United States indoor junior champion, 3—6, 6—3, 6—2.

Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., seeded No. 7, caught up with the field when he topped Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla., 6—2, 6—4, in their second-round match.

John Van Ryn, of Austin, Tex., another former member of the Davis Cup squad, seeded No. 6, sent veteran J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., out of the tournament on 6—2, 6—4 scores.

Miss Marble had little trouble disposing of Mrs. Maud Blumenthal, of New York, 6—3, 6—2. Miss Jedrzejowska dropped another seeded player out of the tournament when she humbled Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, another New Yorker, 6—1, 6—1.

Jane Stanton, of Los Angeles, and Barbara Winslow, of Hollywood, Calif., were the two unseeded women to reach the round of eight. Miss Stanton advanced on a 7—5, 6—2 victory over Elizabeth Blackman, of Detroit. Miss Winslow reached the round of eight when she defeated Eleanor Dawson, of Detroit, 6—3, 6—2.

Wightman Cup Defenders for 1937 Selected

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 10.—The United States Lawn Tennis Association today named Alice Marble, Helen Hull Jacobs, Mrs. Sarah P. Fabyan, Carolin Babcock, Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn and Dorothy Bundy on the personnel of its 1937 Wightman Cup team, which defends its title against the British women players at Forest Hills, N. Y., August 20-21.

Miss Bundy, only newcomer on the team, is the daughter of May Sutton Bundy, who was making international history in women's tennis long before the Wightman Cup series began. Miss Bundy is only 20 years old.

Under instructions issued by the U. S. L. T. A. today, the cup players are to report for training at the West Side Tennis Club, New York, not later than August 16.

Considered as a whole, the team is a veteran combination with Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Fabyan carrying honors from the standpoint of cup competition, with Mrs. Van Ryn a close second. Except for Mrs. Fabyan, all the cup players developed their games in California.

Sarron-Armstrong Battle Approved

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—Approval was granted by the New York State Athletic Commission today for a world's featherweight boxing championship match between Petey Sarron, of Birmingham, Ala., defender, and Henry Armstrong, of Los Angeles. The match will be held sometime in October at Madison Square Garden.

Peters Ties Balestri in Printer Golf

Totals of 159 Tie at Half-Way Mark; Merkle Has 163.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 10.—Joe Balestri, bookbinder from the Government Printing Office in Washington, and Bobby Peters, Grand Rapids (Mich.) linotype apprentice, took the lead at the 36-hole mark of the Union Printers' international golf tournament here today with 159s.

Their scores for the first half of the tournament were two strokes better than that of John Klein, Lancaster, Pa., yesterday's pace maker. Klein turned in an 84 today, to run his 36-hole figure to 161.

Other early leaders fell down today, but still remained within hailing distance of the top group. Halfway scores of the other leaders included:

Ed Merkle, Washington, defending champion, 163; Jim Matthews, Miami, Fla., 165; Ed Gableman, Cincinnati, 163; Claude Schell, Reading, Pa., 164; Ed Sickinger, Chicago, 166, and Bob Perry, Washington, 168.

Balestri and Peters played an extra 18-hole match during the afternoon for the Merkle-Brenner Medalist Trophy for the first 36 holes. Balestri came off the winner, 3 and 2. The play-off brought the best golf shown so far in the tourney. They halved the first three holes with par golf.

Peters went 1 up with a birdie 4 on the long fourth and they halved the fifth. Balestri squared the match with a birdie 3 on the sixth and went ahead at the eighth and also took the eleventh.

Peters got one hole back with a birdie on the twelfth. Balestri took the thirteenth and fourteenth when Peters' putter went back on him. Peters won the fifteenth with a long putt, which gave him a birdie, but Balestri clinched the match on the sixteenth with a par 4.

The second half of the tourney begins tomorrow. The golfers will tour Washington during the afternoon.

Twin Tourney Carded Today At Five Farms

Washington and Baltimore golfers will compete in a double-header tournament over the Five Farms course in Baltimore today, the pros playing with three amateur partners in a pro-am event while the simon pures will also compete in a State handicap tourney, all for the $2 entrance fee.

A lack of entries in the State handicap events prompted the tournament committee of the State body to card the two-barreled program today and at least 100 linksmen are expected to compete. George Diffenbaugh and Al Treder will be among the District professionals to play, the latter with Harry Pitt, three-time winner of the invitation over the Five Farms course.

Amateurs not competing with professional partners will play in the handicap tourney, with Classes A, B and C. All participants must have a M. S. G. A. card, or procure one on the first tee.

A dinner will follow at 7 p. m. at the Roland Park branch of the Baltimore Country Club for the pros, State association officers and newspapermen. Plans for fall tournaments, including the Maryland Open, will be up for discussion.

Second Ace Recorded In Hole-in-One Event

Crestwood, N. Y., Aug. 10 (AP).—After five years of hole-in-one tournaments in which only one ace was scored, the annual World-Telegram event saw its second in two days recorded today.

T. Arthur Menzel, husky 39-year-old engineer from Stamford, Conn., sank an ace on the fourth of his allotted five tries to duplicate the feat performed yesterday by Franklin A. Schriver, of Chester, N. Y. It was a 142-yard iron shot.

Heat Forces Delay in Girls Net Tourney

Finals in the girls' junior tennis tournament conducted by the Department of Playgrounds were postponed yesterday until this morning, when Betty Jacob, blonde Montrose girl, was unable to continue the third set of her match with Molly Thompson, sturdy Chevy Chase player.

After each had won a set, Miss Jacob, visibly wearied and suffering from the heat, asked for a short rest. Maude N. Parker, director of girls' activities, seeing Miss Jacob's condition, decided not to let her continue play.

Ordinary tournament procedure would have given Miss Thompson the match by default. Miss Parker following playground custom in competition involving juniors, however, declared the entire match would be re-played today. Miss Jacob won the first set, 6—4, and Miss Thompson, the second, 9—7.

After reeling off four games in a row in the first set with an excellent display of sharp forehand stroking, Miss Jacob grew careless and erratic and her stronger opponent quickly pulled up to 3—5. Molly then took the ninth game in her own service, but Betty's serve tightened in the tenth game and she held to take the set.

Miss Thompson's stamina and careful stroking began to tell in the second set when she took the first game. Despite frequent errors, Miss Jacob then ran the score to 5—3, but was unable to break Molly's service in the ninth game for the match. The Chevy Chase girl, taking advantage of Betty's weariness, took the lead at 6—5 and finally won the set after a series of long, deuced games.

Henshaw Halts Dodger's Fall, Beats Phils, 7-3

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—Roy Henshaw, pint-sized southpaw, who scored his last victory on June 7, kept the Brooklyn Dodgers from falling virtually into the National League cellar today by turning back the last-place Phillies, 7 to 3.

The victory moved the Dodgers two and a half games ahead of the Phils, and was Henshaw's third of the year. He scattered the losers' nine hits, weakened briefly in the eighth when the Phils scored twice, then set three men down in order in the ninth after Martin had led off with a single.

Stuart Smith to Join East All-Star Eleven

Hamilton, N. Y., Aug. 10 (AP).—Stuart Smith, Bucknell's driving 195-pound back, was added today to the squad of the Eastern college all-stars which will meet the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds, Wednesday, September 8, Andy Kerr, coach, announced.

Smith played fullback during his undergraduate career, but probably will be shifted to the left halfback position to reinforce the post now held by Monk Meyer, Army's lightweight, and Mickey Kobrosky, of Trinity.

Misses Berg, Miley Break Course Mark

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Marion Miley, of Cincinnati, fashioned another subpar round today over the Onwentsia Club course to continue toward a third consecutive Women's Western 72-hole medal play golf derby with a total of 154 strokes at the halfway mark, while red-haired Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, fired her way back into the battle with a new course record.

Miss Miley, who turned out a brilliant 34-42, 76, a new women's competitive course mark, to lead the field, came back today with a fine 39-39, 78, leaving her six strokes under par for the two days. She collected eight birdies, four on each nine, but traps and unsteadiness with short iron shots cost her strokes on five other holes.

Her course record lasted only as long as it took Miss Berk to hammer out a spectacular 36-38, 74 today. Playing almost every shot perfectly, and arising to the occasion by sinking a 40-foot putt for a birdie on the fourth hole, and a 20-footer on the fifteenth for another birdie, the Mineapolis star shot from a tie for ninth place to second with a 157 total. Her card showed six birdies and the rest pars.

The other Minneapolis star in the tournament, Beatrice Barrett, who defeated Miss Berg for the Minnesota women's title last week, achieved a hole in one on the 190-yard eighteenth hole, but unsteadiness on the greens and trap trouble blew her score up to an 82 for a 161 total. She was in fifth place behind Mrs. Dan Chandler, of Dallas, Tex., who added a neat 79 to her opening 80 for 159 and third place, and Edith Eastabrooks, of Dubuque, Iowa, who needed an 83 after ranking second with 77 yesterday.

Medwick, Mize Star as Cards Take Reds, 3-2

By the Associated Press.

St Louis, Aug. 10.—The National League's great "one-two punch"—Johnny Mize and Joe Medwick—drove in three runs in the third inning today to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-to-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

With two out and two on base, Mize singled off Lefty Lee Grissom to score one run and Medwick tripled to drive in two additional tallies.

Lon Warneke, who went the route for the Red Birds, wild-pitched over a run in the second inning and fed a home run ball to Pinch Hitter Ival Goodman in the eighth inning. Otherwise, he was in little danger. He fanned six and allowed six hits.

Wheat Jumps With Disaster To Canada Crop

Advances Reach 5 Cents in Winnipeg and Nearly as Much in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Excitetd wheat market jumps, 5 cents a bushel at Winnipeg and nearly as much here, resulted today from sensationally increased estimates of Canadian crop losses.

From official figures current Chicago trade leaders deduced that the condition of Canada's 1937 wheat crop is the worst on record, and that losses have been augmented 16,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels in the past 30 days. It was also figured that as a consequence Canada this season will have considerably under 100,000,000 bushels of wheat available for export and for home needs.

At the close Chicago wheat futures were 3¼@3⅞ cents above yesterday's finish; September $1.13⅜@1.13¾, December $1.14½@1.14⅝, May $1.16¾; corn, $1.01⅜, December September $1.01@1.01⅜, December 66½@66⅝, May 67⅝@67¾; oats ⅛@¼ off, December 29¾@29⅞, and rye ⅜@1¾ up, December 81. Provisions results were unchanged to 7 cents higher.

RailroadsEstablish Research Division

Established by the Association of American Railroads of a division of engineering research to expand and co-ordinate research work now being carried on by the railroads of this country in so far as it affects the physical properties, was announced yesterday by J. J. Pelley, president of this association.

The division of engineering research will have jurisdiction over all research relating to cars, locomotives, track structures, buildings, electrical, shop and maintenance of way equipment and the materials and supplies used in connection therewith. Not only will it deal with all mechanical facilities, but also with metallurgical and physical problems, as well as fuel, water, paints and other materials and supplies.

A.T.&T. Operating Net Dips for Half Year

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—Net operating income of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., in June was $1,534,613, compared with $1,413,969 for the same month last year. For six months the figures were $10,636,387, against $10,725,188 in like period of 1936.

The report covers operating activities only, excluding nonoperating income and charges.

Northern Securities Nears Dissolution

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—Northern Securities Co., formed 36 years ago by Hill and Harriman, railroad giants of the past, as a repository for control of Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railways, is slated for dissolution at the meeting of stockholders Wednesday.

Sources close to the company reported today proxies representing around 80 per cent of the stock favor dissolution. Approval of only 66 2-3 per cent would be needed.

General Fireproofing Sales Increase 50%

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—General Fireproofing Co., makers of steel furniture and office equipment, reported new record sales of $6,600,000 for the first seven 1937 months.

Hoarded Gold In Europe Cut To Half Billion

Hidden Stores Decline Two-Thirds During Past Year.

By the Associated Press.

Gold hoards secreted in Europe's private lockboxes, now aggregate about $500,000,000, the Federal Reserve Board estimated yesterday.

This official calculation, the first of recent years, showed that unreported private holdings in Europe have declined about two-thirds since last September.

In Spetember, secret stores of gold coins and bullion totaled $1,752,000,000, exclusive of about $1,700,000,000 locked up in European currency stabilization funds.

The analysis, contained in the board's monthly bulletin, said that the tri-power monetary agreement by Great Britain, France and the United States last September caused a "substantial dishoarding of gold" by increasing investors' confidence.

Funds Seek Refuge Here.

Private strong boxes opened again this spring, the board said, when there were rumors of a reduction in this country's $35-an-ounce price for gold. Uncertainty in leading securities markets brought big shipments to the United States, and gold owners deposited proceeds from sale of the metal with American banks for safe keeping.

The report covered the period from 1931 to last June. It was in 1931 that world business disturbances led to large-scale gold hoarding. Since 1931, $1,224,000,000 of gold has emerged from private holdings in India, $522,000,000 has come from Russia and $5,460,000,000 from mines outside of Russia. Return of gold coin and scrap released about $1,049,000,000 of the metal, the board said.

R. Hoe & Co. to Clear Arrears on Preferred

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—Directors of R. Hoe & Co., manufacturers of printing presses, announced today that funds had been set aside for the payment of current and back interest on the first mortgage bonds and 7 per cent notes, and that arrears on both classes of preferred stock had been cleared.

A dividend of $12.67 a share was declared on the 6½ per cent cumulative prior preferred payable September 1 to stock of record August 25. A dividend of $4.41 a share was declared on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred payable September 4 to stock of record August 28.

Steel Corp. Shipments Set 8-Year July Top

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—Shipments of finished products by the United States Steel Corporation in July were the largest for any similar month since 1929, the company revealed today. Shipments totaled 1,186,752 tons, compared with 950,851 in July, 1936.

This was a decrease, however, of 81,798 tons from the June total of 1,268,550 tons. The July tonnage brought shipments for the first seven months this year to 8,801,026 tons, an increase of 2,818,825, or 47 per cent over the like 1936 period.

Stocks Work Lower in Less Active Trading as Steels and Coppers Meet Profit-Taking.

New York, Aug. 10.—Government bonds dropped and stock prices were barely steady. Price changes in stocks in the last hour left more declines than advances. Sales volume declined to around 700,000 shares. Cotton again was lower, but grains rallied. September wheat rose 3¼ cents to $1.13⅜ a bushel, spurred by reports of crop damage in Canada.

Increasingly irregular price movements in stocks scarcely were caused by any fresh turn of an unfavorable nature in the news, unless the outbreak of labor troubles in the textile industry, long expected, caused an increase in pessimism. It is likely that the markets are less concerned now over the textile strikes than they would have been two months ago when it appeared that Lewis would sweep all before him into the C. I. O. sink.

The rush of Congress to adjourn, a bull point in itself, may have a depressing effect if the wage-hour bill is shoved through when otherwise it might be delayed if not beaten. Abroad the trouble in China caused anxiety, but on the other hand the tension seemed a bit easier in the western war theater.

Crops Will Help.

Further corporation profits statements were published and they continued to support the share market, although the railroad division weakened, borne down by the expected weight of higher wages and the possibility that revenues for some time to come will not increase much. In their favor the large harvests in sight will tend to prolong solvency. The wheat and corn crops are bound to be larger than any produced in several years, as is the cotton crop.

Some decline in prices is taking place, but the total of revenue to the farmers will be large, and they may get still higher prices as a Government dole on the increased production. In any event large crops mean a greater tonnage for the railroads, increased employment and an all-round economic improvement in the country.

Dealings in the railroad shares were almost at a standstill and price changes were fractionally lower. Railroad bonds were mostly lower. Missouri Pacific bonds were especially depressed. High-grade bonds of all sorts were little changed.

Trading was the most active as well as the most profitable in the oil division. Low-priced oils were popular. Socony-Vacuum reached a new high price. Houston Oil was a favorite. Pure Oil, on new financing plans, was buoyant in the preferred sector. Other stocks to make up a large proportion of total trading were Spiegel, May Stern and Electric Power.

Ward Baking A shares fell more than 5 points on one sale. The preferred dropped a point to a new low price. Union Bag, Eastman, Goodyear, Consolidated Edison and Reynolds Metal drew special attention. Goodyear's profits as reported today were liked.

Metals Subside.

Confirmation of the advance reports of yesterday that copper had been established at 15 cents a pound abroad took no one by surprise. Kennecott and Anaconda lost a point each, possibly because the market on this side has not regained that confidence in speculative success (and excess) that is true of London. Light profit-taking among the copper issues and the steels helped to check progress in general. Steel and Bethlehem gave up a point or so.

Motor shares were mostly firm. General Motors held its ground, but Chrysler gave up an early gain. Rubbers, chemicals and mail orders were somewhat paralytic. Store shares had nibbles in anticipation of autumn trade.

Foreign exchanges were a shade weaker. That probably is because at the moment Japanese gold shipments to this side are slack, thereby involving no sales of dollars, and also because the movement of French funds from New York to London has died down. Both those causes are given in explanation of the recent rise in sterling.

Banking Position.

Expansion in member bank credit occurred all around the country in the week of August 4. Total loans of reporting member banks in 101 cities rose $124,000,000. Of the increase, $53,000,000 was in New York City. The expansion elsewhere seems clearly linked to the sale during the week of some $60,000,000 notes of the Commodity Credit Corporation secured by cotton which were taken by the banks into their loan portfolios. Of the loan expansion in New York about $34,000,000 was accounted for by brokers' borrowings. Holdings of Government securities again declined, the decrease being $88,000,000, of which $26,000,000 was in the New York City banks. Reserves were down $142,000,000 and demand deposits were off $156,000,000. Government deposits increased $33,000,000 through member banks, making payment for the new Treasury bill issue by book credit rather than by cash.

Money Market.

The money market locally continues to drag its keel. Excess reserves still are around their recent low record point of $45,000,000 and, while the district continues to lose some money to the interior, apparently it is losing more to the Federal Treasury. As yet no changes have occurred in the money market to reflect the low state of excess reserves which, the market still believes, are only temporarily scanty. For the greater part of a week banks which yearn for one-half of 1 per cent for their Federal funds have been able to make occasional sales, though the market rate continues one-quarter of 1 per cent to one-half of 1 per cent.

Steel Shipments.

Shipments of the United States Steel Corporation in July fell moderately from the high total of June, but the decline was remarkably small in a month which usually sees steel mills curtail considerably. New orders also have been falling, presumably, judging from general reports to the industry, but the trade reviews are optimistic over an early revival in ordering from the railroads, implement makers, automotive industry and public utilities. The boom in steel easily is the year's outstanding industrial development.

Export Copper Rises To 15 Cents a Pound

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—The price of export copper was quoted today at the equivalent of 15 cents a pound, the highest since early April. Today's level compared with 14.825 cents yesterday. Export copper touched a high for the year during the early spring speculative surge when it was quoted at slightly more than 17 cents on March 15. Opinion is divided whether the new price is representative of actual conditions in the foreign market although it was reported volume was large at the 15-cent level. Some observers hold increased armament demands has driven the export price upward while others attribute the rise to renewed speculative activity.

Federal Debt Jump Nearing Total for War

New York, Aug. 10.—At the end of the fiscal year 1916, the United States Government's debt amounted to only $1,225,000,000. During the next three years, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute, the debt increased sharply to a total of $25,484,000,000 as the result of heavy expenditures, in connection with the entrance of the United States into the World War. Expenditures reached the record high figures of $12,689,000,000 in 1918 and $18,522,000,000 in 1919.

The fiscal year 1919 was followed by 11 years of surpluses. As a result, the Federal debt was reduced from $25,484,000,000 to $16,185,000,000 at the end of 1930. Every year since that time the Government has had large deficits. During this seven-year period, the debt was increased by $20,240,000,000 to an all-time record high total of $36,425,000,000 at the end of June 1937. The increase of $20,240,000,000 in the debt since 1930 compares with the increase of $24,256,000,000 during the World War.

If the Government should start immediately to reduce its debt, it would take about 43 years to pay it off at the rate the debt was reduced during the 1919-1930 period. This indicates that the debt will never be paid since such a long period of continuous surpluses is out of the question. During the next 43

Physician Denies Crime in Forging Horst Birth Writ

By the United Press.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Dr. John A. Rose tonight admitted he falsified the birth record of 31-month-old Donald Horst to make it appear he was the actual son of Otto and Martha Horst.

"I don't think it was a crime," he said. "One woman wanted the baby, the other did not."

Assistant Prosecutor Michael Rosina released the physician on his promise to appear for hearing August 25. He had been hunted for nearly a week.

Mrs. Regan and her husband "kidnaped" the baby from the Horst home late last Tuesday and surrendered him to Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley next day.

Charles Levine Indicted As Tungsten Smuggler

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—Charles A. Levine, who ten years ago flew the Atlantic as Clarence Chamberlain's passenger, was indicted today by a Federal grand jury on a charge of receiving, concealing and transporting 2,000 pounds of tungsten powder into the United States from Canada.

The indictment also charged he conspired to smuggle 5,000 pounds of the powder into this country by way of Toronto, Canada, and Buffalo.

Market Control Bill For Tobacco in House

By the Associated Press.

A tobacco marketing control bill, drafted by an unofficial group of tobacco States representatives, went before Congress yesterday.

Introduced by Representative John W. Flannagan, jr., of Bristol, Va., a member of the group, the bill directs the Secretary of Agriculture to place into effect a national marketing quota whenever at the beginning of the marketing year the total supply of tobacco exceeds the surplus reserve supply level.

Congress Hope Of Quitting by Aug. 21 Dashed

the South for Federal loans to peg the falling price of cotton has given him a powerful lever to force either immediate action on a control bill or an ironclad guarantee that such action will be taken within a few months.

The difficulty in the situation is that the President yesterday at his press conference professed to be unable to see how he could be given such an iron-clad guarantee short of actual enactment of control legislation now.

In order to illustrate his position, the President at his press conference—and, he explained, he also had recited the same illustration during the day to other visitors who called about the agricultural situation—compared himself to a lender of money who has had a request from a young man wishing to borrow $100,000. The young man, he said, earned only $10,000 a year, but said he had hopes of getting a $25,000 a year job next year.

An earning capacity of $25,000 a year would be good security for such a loan, the President said, but the young man did not have a contract—he only had hopes of getting such a job. Of course, the President added, none would lend him $100,000 on his hopes alone. Thus, he said, he did not propose to make cotton loans unless there was a guarantee that future crops would be brought under control and the security for such loans would not be destroyed by uncontrolled surpluses.

Repeats Loan Condition.

But, the President was asked, what guarantee did he demand? Ah, replied Mr. Roosevelt, with a smile, he was the lender and that should be proposed by the prospective borrowers or their representatives. After another question or two, Mr. Roosevelt conceded that he did not see how a small group could commit Congress.

Then he repeated that until crop surplus control legislation was enacted, there would be no agricultural commodity loans from the Federal Government. Did he mean to say, earnestly asked a correspondent from the wheat belt, that if no crop surplus control legislation were enacted until January, there would be no commodity loans until January. Mr. Roosevelt replied that was about it.

This seemed to indicate definitely enough that the President had taken a firm stand on that issue and was challenging on the cotton bloc in the Senate and House who are insisting on such loans. But not all of the President's auditors thought he had said the final word. Some thought he was seeking to make the best deal he could make by asking at first the maximum.

Meanwhile, the Senate Agricultural Committee seemed bent on forcing the Administration to advance money on the cotton crop, irrespective of what action is finally taken on surplus control legislation. That committee commenced drafting a resolution making it mandatory for the Commodity Credit Corporation to make loans of 10 cents a pound on cotton subject to the provisions of previous loan contracts of this type.

The President, of course, could veto such a measure if it is passed by House and Senate—and the latter could pass it over his veto if they are able to muster such strength. But such a struggle will consume days, if not weeks. Before it gets to that, it appears that one of two things will happen: either the President will back away from his insistence on passage of a bill before loans are made, or the Congress will undertake to meet his demands.

G. O. P. Aid Needed.

And while this controversy is raging, the House Democrats appear badly split over the wages and hours bill. Already it is apparent that a majority for the bill in the committee is possible only through support of Republicans—who seem eager to do their bit in driving deeper this wedge into the Democratic majority.

The question of whether the hours and wages bill should win party support was deferred by the Democratic steering committee. But members of that group said there was little enthusiasm for the measure among them. Chairman Jed Johnson, of Oklahoma, chairman of the steering group, asserted that "I would prefer to see wages and hours go over until the next session, unless we get farm legislation as well."

Incidentally, the steering committee delegated Johnson to visit the President to ascertain his exact attitude on farm legislation.

Bob Burns Says—

My friends often wonder why I never accompany them on hunting trips, but I'm just gettin' so I can't harm anything. I once killed an ant. I didn't realize until then what loyalty a little insect like that can have in his heart.

I went to open a new box of cornflakes one morning and there was an ant runnin' around the top of the box as hard as he could tear. Thoughtlessly, I made a swipe at him with my big hands and hit him. The ant looked up at me with a hurt look in his eye and he crawled over and died with his little paw pointing to the directions on the box as if to show me he was only trying to help me. I read the directions and it said, "Tear around dotted line."

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

HAS WAHOO BOUGHT THE WIGWAM NIGHT CLUB TO STAR MINNIE-HA-CHA ONLY TO HAVE HER TAKEN FROM HIM BY THE RAJAH OF RAZ-MAH-TAZ
LISTEN, MY SLAVE! I HAVE 13 WIVES, AN UNLUCKY NUMBER. WILT THOU BE NUMBER 14 ?
I DON'T KNOW - I - I - -
CREEK ROOM
YES - YES, RAJAH - I WILL MARRY YOU!!
LATER
NO, WAHOO - I CAN'T EXPLAIN IT, BUT HE HAS SOME STRANGE MAGNETIC POWER OVER ME!
AH, MY MAGIC JEWEL, THE CAT'S EYE OF SHAMPOO - IT NEVER FAILS! HE WHO POSSESSES IT IS IRRESISTIBLE TO ALL WOMEN. I CAME HERE FOR A SANDWICH AND FIND ANOTHER WIFE!
SO THAT'S THE SECRET OF THE RAJAH'S CHARM! CAN WAHOO SAVE MINNIE FROM THE HAREM?

ROY POWERS, EAGLE SCOUT — The Loosened Arrowhead! — By Paul Powell

QUICK-THIS WAY—I'M A CLUMSY BLUNDERER BUT WE'RE NOT LICKED YET—WHAT HAPPENED? WHO ARE THESE INDIANS?
THEY'RE FIERCE APACHES—DON'T ASK ME HOW THEY GOT HERE. THEY CAUGHT US AND WE'D HAVE ESCAPED BUT FOR THAT INFERNAL APACHE THIEF!
MEANWHILE, WHITNEY, PROFESSOR HART, ROCKY AND CHUNKY THINK ONLY OF SAVING THEIR FRIEND, ROY POWERS.
YOU CAN BET THEY'RE ON OUR TRAIL NOW! WE CAN'T BUCK THEM ALONE—MUST HAVE HELP—I'M GOING BACK TO TUBA CITY AT ONCE!
WHAT? AND LEAVE ROY IN THE HANDS OF THOSE DEVILS?
IT'S THE ONLY WAY—WE'LL HEAD FOR THE DESERT BASE AS FAST AS WE CAN. I'LL PUSH ON ALONE TO TUBA CITY FROM THERE!
B-45
MEANWHILE: ROY IS TIED TO A TOTEM POLE AND THAT NIGHT THE WANINIS DANCE THEIR DANCE OF DEATH AROUND HIM. BUT, IN THE EXCITEMENT OF THE DANCE, A LOOSENED ARROW HEAD FALLS NEAR HIM—

JANE ARDEN — Or Do I? — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

WHAT AM I GOING TO DO ABOUT TOMMY? HE'S A DEAR AND I LIKE TO BE WITH HIM—
BUT HE'S GOING TO BE A HANDICAP—HOW CAN I WORK WITH HIM AROUND ALL THE TIME?
AND I CAN'T LET HIM EVEN GUESS THAT I AM HERE AS AN INVESTIGATOR!
JUST WHEN I THINK I'M GETTING SOME PLACE WITH JANE, SHE SPENDS ALL HER TIME WITH MAJOR SPRAGUE—
MAKING HER THINK I'VE FALLEN FOR HER IS THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP AN EYE ON HER—
AND IT ISN'T AS IF I REALLY CARED—OR DO I?

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY— A Toss-Up. — By Frank V. Martinek
Lieut. Cmdr., U. S. N. R.

Hear Don Winslow on the air—4:30 p. m. today—WRC

OH! DON, WHAT A HORRIBLE CRASH!
YOU STAY HERE, MERCEDES
YOU SAW 'EM, MISTER—THEY DROVE RIGHT INTO MY TRUCK!!
PULL YOURSELF TOGETHER, FELLA, AND BEAR A HAND HERE QUICK!
THE CROWD'S GOTTEN SO THICK I CAN'T—OH, HERE'S DON AT LAST HEAR THAT SIREN, MERCEDES IT'S THE POLICE AMBULANCE AND WHETHER IT'S NEXT STOP WILL BE THE HOSPITAL OR THE MORGUE IS STILL A TOSS-UP!

Famous Football Coach.

THEY'RE ON THE PAVING, OFFICER!
DOWN AS LOW AS POSSIBLE, EVERYBODY!
OFFICER, I STILL WOULD LIKE TO KNOW WHAT THAT THING IS ON THE BACK OF THEIR CAR!
I'M GOING TO LET SOME AIR OUT OF THEIR TIRES!
SPRAY THE JUICE, PAL!
WITH PA-LEASURE!
STRIKING A COLORLESS LIQUID WHICH SPEWED FROM THE CAR AHEAD, THE PURSUING CAR SPINS CRAZILY IN THE MIDDLE OF THE HIGHWAY!
I CAN'T HOLD HER!

Rufus Has Company. — By Rube Goldberg

IF RUFUS WAS IN TROUBLE HE'D A YELLED OUT-GUESS HE'S TAKIN' HIS TIME LOOKIN' AROUND
MAYBE WE ALL SHOULD HAVE GONE IN—YOU AIN'T ANY GREAT PROTECTION OUT HERE!
LOOK! THERE'S A LIGHT IN THAT WINDOW!
RUFUS MUST BE UPSTAIRS THAT AIN'T RUFUS!

MICKEY FINN — By Lank Leonard

YA MEAN THAT "TRUCK" MACKAY WENT IN THERE? —WE DIDN'T SEE HIM!
H-HE WENT UP THE BACKSTAIRS!
WHAT!! IF HE BROKE IN THAT REAR DOOR HE'LL NEVER GET OUT ALIVE!
MICKEY! STOP!! IT'S TOO LATE!!

Zionists Split Over Partition Of Holy Land

200 Led by Rabbi Wise Refuse to Consider It in Any Light.

By the Associated Press.

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 10.—A minority resolution expressing opposition to any dealings with Great Britain on the basis of the plan to partition Palestine was introduced tonight at a special session of the World Zionist Congress.

The congress earlier had split wide open over partitioning, and it was only after hours of negotiation that opposition delegates were induced to meet with the others tonight. Rabbi Stephen Wise, of New York, acted as chairman.

The minority resolution declared the whole of historic Palestine was understood to be the territory designated for the Jewish national home in the Balfour declaration of 1917, which pledged England to establish the Jewish home under her League of Nations mandate.

Charge Mandate Failure.

"It is our profound conviction that it was the administration of the mandate itself which failed," the resolution said.

The minority resolution declared the British royal commission proposals "a violation of pledges given the Jewish people by Britain and confirmed by the nations of the world." (The British commission suggested three states—one Jewish, one Arab and one British mandate.)

"It (the congress) solemnly declares it is unalterably opposed to and will firmly resist dismemberment of Palestine by every means at its command."

Louis Lipsky, of New York, criticized Rabbi Wise and Rabbi Abba H. Silver, of Cleveland for abandoning the majority of the United States delegation and refusing to consider the partition plan.

Fears Forcing Issue.

He said: "The proposal to accept a Jewish state in part of Palestine, if rejected at once, means as an alternative the practical congealment of the Jewish national home as it is and reduction of Jews in the land to a minority."

Nearly half of the voting delegates had ignored the day's regular session and attended a separate meeting under Rabbi Wise.

This special meeting was called to formulate counter proposals to Zionits President Chaim Weizmann's plan, which would permit consideration of the British scheme to partition the Holy Land into separate Jewish and Arab states and a third British mandated region including Jerusalem.

Followers of Rabbi Wise were called by the other faction the "neinsager group" (no-sayers) because of their persistent opposition to any plan for division of Palestine.

Rabbi Wise's appeal for "all or nothing" alienated some 200 of the 490 congressional delegates from the regular meeting.

Pilsudski's Aide Held for Attack

Krakow, Poland, Aug. 10 (AP).—Gen. Joseph Roja, one of the late Marshal Joseph Pilsudski's best-known officers, was arrested and held in military hospital today for attacking President Ignacy Moscicki and accusing Gen. Edward Rydz-Smigly of setting up a dictatorship.

Roja, 60 and ill, was unable to be transported to prison, so guards were placed around his bed. The general's accusations were contained in 1,000 letters sent to a Pilsudski leginnaires' meeting on August 8.

He called for the election of a new President, suggesting Ignace Jan Paderewski, pianist and premier in postwar years.

Bernard Manyette, 36-year-old unemployed steam-pipe fitter, plumber's helper and truck driver, yesterday gave his blood in an effort to save the life of Leon Strong, 44, who has undergone a series of chest operations at Providence Hospital. He read of Strong's plight in the newspapers, and was the first to reach the hospital. His blood was the type needed. "I don't want money, I just want a job," shrugged Manyette, now on relief. He is pictured here with his children. Left to right, John Manyette, Manyette, Mary Manyette and Bernice Manyette.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

All of us have, as declarer, been buoyed up or cast down, as the case may have been, by discovering that missing key-cards lay in such and such a position. The province of an expert defender is to confuse the declarer in this connection—i. e., to make him feel that all is well when in reality all is not well, or vice versa. Consider East's play in the following hand:

South, dealer.

	♠ A Q 10 9 4 ♡ Q 10 ◇ J 10 7 ♣ 8 7 2
♠ 6 5 3 2 ♡ K 9 8 4 3 ◇ 6 5 ♣ 5 4	North West East South	♠ K J ♡ 7 6 2 ◇ A 8 3 2 ♣ J 10 6 3
	♠ 8 7 ♡ A J 5 ◇ K Q 9 4 ♣ A K Q 9

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 N T	Pass	3 N T	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened his fourth-best heart, a. dummy's Queen held the trick. Declarer could count the following sure tricks: three diamonds, two hearts, three clubs and one spade—a total of nine. But, since this was duplicate, he was vitally interested in snaring all the tricks possible. To that end he led the diamond Jack. East ducked, and the ten was continued. Again East ducked, and this time declarer correctly overtook with the Queen, with the object in mind, since he had now cashed two diamond tricks, of going after the spade suit.

He led a low spade and finessed dummy's nine. Meanwhile East had been doing a little thinking on his own account and now, without hestitation, won this trick, not with the spade Jack, but with the King. Declarer was delighted when East, instead of laying down the diamond Ace, returned a heart.

On the theory that 11 tricks now were cold and that even if the club suit did not break, a squeeze in clubs and diamonds could be executed against East, declarer climbed up with his heart Ace, laid down the Ace and King of clubs, and then confidently took another spade finesse to the ten spot. To declarer's horror East pounced on this with the Jack, cashed the diamond Ace and then returned his third heart so that West could run off three heart tricks. Instead of a squeeze developing for his slam, declarer found himself down two tricks.

It is true that an experienced player would look with some suspicion on East's first play of the spade King, but it is equally true that in a match point duplicate game no declarer could afford to let such a suspicion deprive him of the opportunity to make two or three precious overtricks.

Rebel Gunboat Taken in Coup By 7 Prisoners

Basques Force Crew to Take Them Into Port in France.

By the United Press.

Bayonne, France, Aug. 10.—Seven Basque prisoners, guns in hand, brought the Spanish insurgent gunboat Miren Aiyguerua from Pasajes into port today after they had overpowered the captain and crew.

They landed the ship safely and surrendered to police, asking to be taken to the Spanish consulate.

They seized the ship after it cleared Pasajes, using revolvers they had obtained while in port there to force captain and crew to bring them here.

3,400 Prisoners Exchanged.

Valencia, Aug. 10 (AP).—A prisoner excange was begun today at the insurgent-held port of Palma in the Balearics—1,700 government prisoners are to be returned to the insurgents for an equal number.

The American aviator, Harold E. Dahl, of Champaign, Ill., a prisoner at insurgent Salamanca, may be among those exchanged. Employed by the Spanish government, his plane was shot down inside insurgent lines two months ago.

Among those in the first group today were the aunt and a niece of Jose Antonio de Rivera, fascist leader reported executed last November. They were exchanged for Odon de Buen, Spanish Geographical Society worker, and his wife.

Most of the other exchanges will be effected through France.

Valencia Bombed.

Madrid, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Rebel bombers and pursuit planes raided Valencia at 9:45 o'clock tonight, bombing the loyalist seat of government and its suburbs, reports reaching here said. A score of persons were killed or wounded.

Both Sides Attack.

Madrid, Aug. 10 (AP).—Both government and insurgent forces launched brief but ineffective offensives today in the Jarma and Aranjuez sectors south of Madrid.

Insurgents attacked in the region of Cuesta de la Reina, south of the Tagus River and controlling the road leading from Madrid to Aranjuez, 30 miles to the south. Government troops said they repulsed the attack.

Duke Reported Slain.

Salamanca, Spain, Aug. 10 (AP).—A report received by insurgents here today said the Duke of Horachuelos, formerly adjutant to the late Primo de Rivera, had been assassinated at Madrid.

Party Gains Seen By G. O. P. Women

By the Associated Press.

Republican National committeewomen, gathering here for a midsummer conclave, reported yesterday "an amazing change of sentiment" among former supporters of President Roosevelt.

Mrs. William D. Hoyal, of Douglas, Ariz., said persons who once idolized Mr. Roosevelt "now have doubts and fears," whereas those who still idolize "feel about him as they would toward a small child, as a result of some of his policies."

Present were most of the 18 State representatives, who accepted an invitation of John D. M. Hamilton, National Republican chairman, for a meeting today.

Il Duce in Sicily For War Maneuvers On 'Pacific' Visit

Messina, Sicily, Aug. 10 (AP).—Premier Mussolini, arriving here to supervise extensive mock warfare in western Sicily, told cheering throngs today he was on a "pacific and constructive" trip and served notice he would make an important political speech.

Fifty thousand picked troops were paraded to test the invulnerability to sea invasion of the craggy, western part of this island in maneuvers beginning Friday.

The trip marks Il Duce's first visit here since he liberated Sicily from the grip of the Mafia (Black Hand movement) 13 years ago.

Italian Picnic Sunday.

Local Italians will attend an outing at Anchor Inn, North Beach, Md., Sunday afternoon. A feature of the program will be a beauty contest, open to all Italian girls. A gold and silver cup will be awarded to the winner by Mayor Michael Lane of North Beach. There will also be a spaghetti-eating contest and a program of folk dances.

Those planning to attend are to make reservations at Anchor Inn before noon Sunday.
